A Bruin tradition each class must stand up to

The history of Northrop High School is one filled with success. Winning has become a Bruin tradition not only in the area of sports but in other areas as well. Each class that enters Northrop has this winning tradition to stand up to and continue. Northrop students excel in many areas — athletically, academically, socially, and maturity.

While many schools can identify outstanding aspects of their fine arts programs, none can compare with the excellence of the entire fine arts program at Northrop. We have outstanding performing groups such as Swing Choir, Concert Choir, Concert Band, and Concert Orchestra. The Northrop marching band, The Big Orange Pride, has been outstanding since its start and placed fourth in the state band competition and earned the honor of performing in the 1988 Rose Bowl Parade. No other school in Indiana can boast the annual excellence in overall music education compared with Northrop. In addition our fall play and spring musical compare favorably with any in the state and with many on a university level.

Northrop also has one of the biggest and best staff of teachers and administrators. The 1987 Fort Wayne Community Schools Teacher of the Year was Mrs. Stephany Bourne.(continued on page 5)

Northrop students successfully compete with others

She won this honor for going above and beyond the call of duty as many of the teachers and staff members do for their students. Mrs. Bourne went on to compete with other teachers in the statewide competition for Teacher of the Year.

The goals of every secondary school should include providing an academic program which insures that graduates have every opportunity to succeed at the next level of schooling. Students at Northrop excel academically and are able to compete successfully with graduates from any high school in the United States. The highest accumulated grade point average ever achieved in the Fort Wayne Community Schools was earned in 1987 by Northrop graduate Mike O'Hear. Every year Northrop has many National Merit Semi-Finalists including two (Megan Brown, Mike Braun) in the 1987-88 school year. Two Northrop students (Valerie Pacer, Megan Brown) were also the only Fort Wayne students to receive the National Council of Teachers of English Achievement Award for their excellent writing.

Though Northrop is one of the two "youngest" schools in the Fort Wayne area, no school has won as many state championships. (continued on page 6)

Winning:

Students strive for best year in high school history

Northrop is known statewide for athletic excellence not only in men's sports but in women's as well.

These are just a few of the areas of excellence at Northrop. There are many groups that have not been mentioned such as our speech team which is very successful and has won many awards on a state as well as national level. Another group is our Students Against Drunk Driving (SADD) chapter. Interest in this group was outstanding this year as they announced that their goal was not to encourage students to stop drinking but to discourage them from driving after they drink.

Each year thousands of students come to Northrop and face the tremendous pressure of continuing the winning traditions of Northrop. The Class of 1988 and its followers, the classes of 89, 90, and 91, began the school year with the goal to not just carry on this tradition but to exceed all other accomplishments of former NHS classes. They had one and only one goal — to be the best class to ever attend Northrop High School and to have the best year in high school history. They had to be the best, after all, what else is there!?!

One Body

Thinking about Northrop High School Student Life 1987-88: 'It was the best of times, it was the worst of times ...' — Charles Dickens

Stuck lockers, crowded hallways, indigestible lunches, fire drills on the coldest, rainiest days of the year, insurmountable amounts of homework, frustrating rules and dress codes — all elements of high school life.

But despite the downside of a high-school year, a year which will be forever remembered in this book, many cherished moments and feelings filled the halls of Northrop, overshadowing the unpleasantness —

The Class of '88 standing together for the first time as seniors at the homecoming pep session, the juniors making it to the lower level of the gym, the sophomores ecstatic victory over the seniors, and the freshmen's contagious enthusiasm for their first year of high school.

Even through those "horrible days" there was always something special given to us from Northrop — a smile from a certain person, encouraging words from a teacher, a postponed test, or even an assembly during a least favorite class.

We laughed, we smiled, we cried, we complained.

We worked, we played, we failed, we succeeded.

We were four separate classes as one student body.

We will never have this same time together in the same way again. Never.

But we will never forget these times.

For they were the best.

The Fall Play was very realistic

The Northrop Auditorium was transformed from a regular stage into a household in Tuscumbia, Alabama during the 1880's.

This year's rave reviews go out to the cast of "The Miracle Worker" for their outstanding performance. The Fall Play, on November 5th and 6th, took a new twist with its theme and its realism. It was one of the best performances that this reporter has ever seen.

The story revolves around the relationship between Helen Keller, played by Sophomore Kelly Greene and Annie Sullivan, played by Senior Megan Brown. Helen Keller, a blind, mute child, and her life-long teacher Annie Sullivan are in complete conflict at the beginning of the story. Helen's parents, Captain and Mrs. Keller (Jason Keller and Karl Rittenberg), hire Annie Sullivan, who was at one time handicapped herself, to teach their daughter Helen to behave like a "normal" child. The Keller's are tired of Helen throwing tantrums when she doesn't get her way, they know that she can be a disciplined child if only someone could teach her. Annie has more extensive plans for Helen, as we soon learn, she understands the need for language and plans to try to teach Helen. What Annie does not realize is that Helen is used to getting her own way, and the first thing she has to teach her is discipline before she can teach her language. What follows Annie's teaching lessons are a series of physical confrontations. At one point Helen hits Annie in the face with a doll that Annie had brought to Helen as a gift, and later in the story she spits scrambled eggs in Annie's face.

When questioned by this reporter about what kind of padding she wore during the play, Megan Brown painfully stated, "I didn't wear anything, Kelly had on knee pads, but I didn't have on any padding. Mr. Procter said it took away the realism".

Realism was one of the many things that the Fall Play definitely had, especially Kelly Greene's performance as Helen Keller. Greene's performance was extremely realistic for a school production, she practically became Helen Keller. Another thing that the play had was the praise of Principal H. Douglas Williams. On Friday morning he made an announcement encouraging all who had not gone to the play to go Friday night, and promised to refund the money of any person who was not totally satisfied. The set of the "Miracle Worker" was excellent, as can always be expected from a Northrop production. The entire cast should be commended for their hard work and quality performance.

Talent in the cast and crew, a money back guarantee, and realism, were the reasons that this years fall play was one of the best performances ever displayed by Northrops Performing Arts Department.

pirited Days

Do ya'll dress up for all this?

How many people really do all this? Should I dress up? What should I wear? Are ya'll gonna' dress up?

These were my first questions as Spirit Week came 'round. Well, ya' see, back home sure we had spirit week, but it was always kinda' borin'. So I really didn't know what to expect. Here's what I saw:

MONDAY-Sweats, Shades day and Lick 'em day. Quite a few of ya'll had on your sweats and hats, and the cheerleaders sold us all suckers which kept our mouths puckerin' all day. Them there suckers went a might fast. Dawn Dwyer sold 100 suckers before school even started!

TUESDAY-Nerd and P.J. day. Not very many nerds were around, mostly people in their P.J.'s. One big thing that was in, was them animal slippers! Everything from elephants, bear claws and bears to even pigs! Ya'll had on long nightshirts, t-shirts, shorts, and even bathrobes. Teddy Bears seemed to be in everyone's hands too.

WEDNESDAY-Costume day. Seemed more as sports day. We had football, baseball and soccer players. We even had one Scarlett O'Hara (Renae Clark). The teachers went out of there way this year to dress up for Costume day, some even rented costumes. Teachers in Oklahoma ain't never did that.

THURSDAY-Hawaiin day. Yes, even in "A good time is what powderpuff is for, winning isn't everything!" explains Andi Spaulding

Oklahoma we all loved Hawaiin day! The day to sun the bods, wear florescent nose coat, grass skirts, tank tops, flowered shorts and shirts, and towels! People carried with them anything from beach balls to lawn chairs. The big thing were them lei's, which were sold in the commons for $.25. At that price, they couldn't have been no cheaper!

FRIDAY-School Color day. Trash bags were given out before school and seemed to be on everyone. Truthfully, I ain't never seen no orange trash bag before! The 3rd hour classes with every person in there with a piece of bag on them somehow in someway, won a breakfast. Ya' know what, 55 classes won! Then came the pep assembly, which was pretty fun. We had one interuptment during the day though, the seniors claimed School Color day as Toga day. But hey, you're only a senior once. Huh?!

Friday night was even more exciting with the game and the Homecoming dance afterwards. The dance took place in the commons, which nine-hundred students filled up. Senior Class President, Robin Dunn, commented on how she felt the dance turned out, "I was pleased with the way the dance turned out. Usually a lot of the people who show up for the dance like to stand around and talk, but this year everyone seemed to participate in the fun. Maybe they enjoyed the D.J."

I must admit to ya'll, Spirit Week here was better than Oklahoma's. I was really impressed!

Something a Little Different

The homecoming court usually assembles during half-time at the homecoming game, this year Northrop did something different.

Before the game Friday, October 16, the former Homecoming queen, Rochelle Reinking, gave up her reign as she crowned the 1987-88 homecoming queen. The honor was accepted by Senior, Chrissy Saunders, escorted by her father, Steve Saunders.

The homecoming court consisted of: Danielle Gail, escorted by Jay Foster; Dawn Rice, escorted by Jeff Teusch; and Vanessa Williams, escorted by Chris Lovelace; Juniors, Kristin Bollinger, escorted by Darryl Esterline; Lisa Edwards, escorted by Chris Raptis; and Lawanda Harper, escorted by Victor Nelson; Sophomores, Cynthia Black, escorted by James Johnson; Stacey Hand, escorted by John Daney; and Jessica Harrison, escorted by Scott Pafman; Freshmen Michelle Childs, escorted by Troy Granning; Tracey Frank, escorted by Craig Beaty; and Toya Key, escorted by Anthony King.

During half-time, the Northrop Marching Band crossed the field in many colorful uniforms that caught the eye of the crowd. Also during half-time the senior band members were recognized. The crowd became excited as fans cheered on the team. A neck and neck battle took place up until the last three minutes of the game. At this time Wayne scored a touch down making the score 16-18, in Wayne's favor. With only seconds left, the Bruins drove down the Generals and scored pulling ahead and leaving the game in a victory, 22-18.

Seniors Look Ahead to the Future

I guess I never realized what our senior year was all about until our Senior Assembly which took place in September of our graduating year.

The thought that most seniors have is about graduating and moving on to new things. The Senior Assembly made a lot of us realize what we were actually leaving and made us think about where we are going. I guess we all assumed that the assembly would be another boring lecture on college choices and skipping school; instead we ended up crying while watching a film about leaving our friends and fun. After we graduate and go on with whatever it is that we plan to do with our lives, I guess that is when we will see that these really were The Best of Times.

The freshmen got a look at how a real high school is run at their assembly (initiation). It's September and the freshmen are scared to pieces about starting high school, so naturally we have to send them to their Freshman assembly (initiation) so that they become even more terrified. As memory goes Mr. John Weiker approaches the podium and smirks and screams in a sarcastic, cruel way, 'While you are at Northrop there will be no smoking, swearing, breathing, small items of clothing on your bodies, itching, stabbing, spitting, running, yelling, talking, sneezing, weapons on your person, music boxes, leaving for lunch, fighting, no vulgar language-even if your teachers use it first; there is no way that you are going to get away with enjoying your high school years.' I hope they all make it to be seniors!

How many schools do you know of that can get almost the entire student body to wear trash bags? On one given day that is? That's right, only Northrop High School. With the help of the administration and the creativity of the student body our first pep session was very high-spirited and very orange. There were a total of 2000 trash bags handed out in the commons Friday morning before the pep session and at least 1600 students were wearing trash bags. We even had teachers dancing around in that neon plastic.

Members of the football team had made a relay and were running all over the place wearing dresses, drinking baby bottles and even riding bicycles. We, of course, were cheering them on and getting them fired up for the Homecoming game.

Last, but not least, we crowned Mr. Irresistible, John Ellington. Didn't he look sweet!

We packed quite a bit of craziness and fun into one short half-an-hour. I think they should make our pep sessions longer! —

Kurlie
Hitchcock

"It wasn't until I stood in front of 500 seniors that I realized what my high school years were all about," stated Robin Dunn.

Wild Times

Doing your own thing

Fun, a form of amusement or something that provides us with enjoyment, is only defined by the person engaged in it.

We had many forms of fun at Northrop High School this past year. The student body had their fun and the administration, in between their work, had a pretty wild time too.

Fun may be described by some students as going to a party with some friends on a Friday or Saturday night and talking or listening to music all night. Some students say that fun is just hanging around at their favorite spot, like the mall or the park, and just soaking up the atmosphere. Being with a good buddy to talk over all of the fun of the past was also a major source of craziness. There were even a few students who made the best of school and had a good time roaming the halls of Northrop or catching a few winks in government class. From a Senior's perspective the freshmen were especially good at making school fun, because of their nill-to-nothing social lives. While the freshmen were having fun in school, seniors were making fun of school, and doing it quite well.

There was even reason to commend the administration for having their bit of fun this past year. The members of the administration have found that they can enjoy making an extra buck on Saturday mornings, which they all need. The way they made these great fortunes, of course, was Saturday School. Saturday School was assigned when a student was late to school five or more times and he has to attend an extra day of school to make those tardies up. Of course the Seniors with their "Senioritis" were hit the hardest by this new source of administrative fun. But hey that is how they have their fun, can we question?

The student body and the administration even had a bit of fun together; the WOWO Penny Pitch. The students worked hard to bring in lots of money for people who needed it and the administration worked hard to give the students some initiative to do so.

Part of the administration agreed to get the major hair buzz if the students could raise $12,000. Though the students did not quite reach their goal, some of the administrators still remained good sports and got those hair buzzes that they promised. Dr. Williams looked the best, of course.

Hopefully the student body and the administration can still have a bit of fun after the graduating class of 1988 is gone.

nything Goes

Fashion is in the eye of the wearer

Apparel in any and every style was in during the past school year. If you were willing to wear it, it must have been some kind of style.

Whatever a particular group of students were comfortable wearing, is what was in to them. This was not one of those wonderful years when everyone had to wear a specific style or he/she was completely out of it. The students seem to be content with what they were wearing and did not seem to make a big issue out of someone else's tastes or styles.

Of course we still had our usual punks, preps, bikers, bums, people who insisted on dressing up, and naturally we had the casual dressers. Some of these trend-setting looks were even combined to create new and original looks.

The punks did not change too much from past years, besides that there were more people who were willing to be a little rebellious in their appearance. They wore blue-jeans rolled up and t-shirts, with a few rips and some creative art added to them to make them unique. To make their outfits complete they added a pair of combat boots and a trench, and any hair style which required little hair. Even though the punks wore blue-jeans, t-shirts, and combat boots, their style was not too much different than any other style. The only major difference was in the accessories that they wore.

The preps wore old style cardigans, turmatch their cardigans was a big hit with the preps.

The bikers did not get as aggressive as they had been in the past years, they still stuck to lots of black and lots of leather. The concert t-shirts were also a popular item but the chains decreased in popularity by shocking numbers.

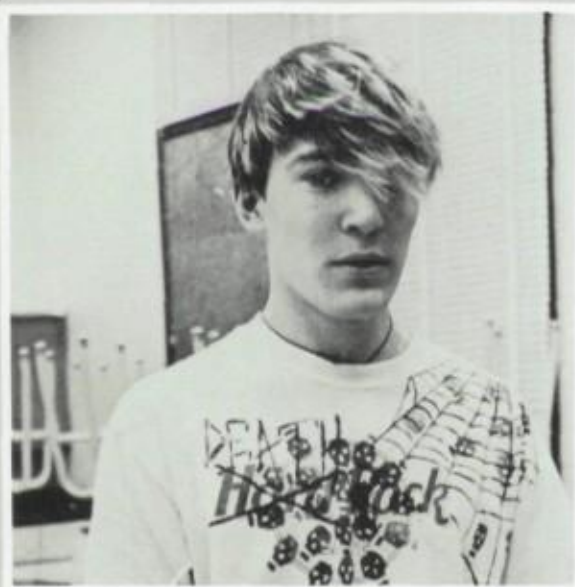

The bums wore sweats that they left on the floor from the night before and old gymshoes.

Those bums who forgot to shower came to school with hair that looked like it had been whipping in the breeze in all different directions.

Most of the Bruins who liked to dress-up in skirts, sweaters and dress slacks did so for a couple of reasons. Some of the students had to dress-up for work, some did so because they enjoyed looking sophisticated.

The casual look was probably the most popular look among the students. Stonewash, acid wash, blue-jeans (Guess, Palmetto, and Bongos), with a sweater or sweatshirt and gymshoes or flats were all part of the casual look. We skipped out on the bleached blue-jeans this year, yea!

Everyone had their own styles, but they all made up one Bruin student body. — Kurlie Hitchcock

Hold On To The Memories

For those who want to get a running start for the prom, can now attend the Semi-Formal.

The Semi-Formal is similar to the Prom, with dancing, love, fun, friends and of course, pictures. The Semi-Formal is just that though, Semi-Formal! You don't have to dress extremely formal like the Prom, and this attracts a lot of students. It seems as if the students really enjoy not having to go overboard as they do with the prom and yet they are not just attending another blue jean, t-shirt, after a game dance. (And it is cheaper than the Prom).

The first Semi-Formal, held in 1986-1987, took some work to get going and to get the students interested in having one. But the second Semi-Formal, which was held on Saturday, February 27, 1988, had a tremendous turn-out. It did not seem as if it took any convincing to get these students to attend. The dance was held in the commons, which was decorated with white and blue streamers and balloons, even the Bruin Bear was made up for the occasion. Adding to the atmosphere, were the dimmed lights and the popular dance music, (which brought couples closer together on the dance floor). Pictures were being taken in the cafeteria for those who

Though a lot of students came in couples, there were those who went stag and had a wonderful time with their friends and with those of the opposite sex who also went stag. It is a good way to meet someone.

Dressing Down

Students enjoy going to a dance and looking bummy

Toilet paper and newspaper decorated the commons as the '87-'88 MORP began with a bang.

Students were dancing all over the place and having a great time dressed in old clothes (the idea of the MORP is to dress down). The music was blaring and the lights were flashing as the students danced the evening away. The theme of the dance was just the opposite of the PROM (MORP is PROM spelled backward).

The girls asked the guys out to the dance and they picked up the tab for the evening, including the dance tickets and dinner. Before the dance is when most couples like to get a bit to eat; the girls were suppose to pick a real cheap restaurant, like McDonalds or the K-Mart cafe. Everyone dressed down for the cheap evening by wearing old clothes that looked as bummy as possible. And some of the couples dressed down very well!

The big trend for the MORP dance this year seemed to be with the couples wearing matching shirts and sweatshirts that said things on the front and back. There was one couple who wore sweatshirts, the girls reading "Trouble and I go hand in hand," and her date's sweatshirts read "Trouble", Mr. and Mrs. Riley even did their part to participate in the fashion scene by wearing sweatshirts that read "Coach Riley" and "Mrs. Coach Riley." Though every couple did not get into wearing the matching shirts, the unique outfits worn by many of the couples in attendance made the evening very exciting. Getting pictures taken was definitely a thrill for most of the couples; taking home a picture of yourself and your date all grubbed-out is always a pleasure to show your parents.

The highlight of the evening came when a carpet of newspaper was rolled out onto the dance floor and all of the contestants for MORP king came to the front. The contestants were Brian Bolinger, Brian Weslowski, Dennis Springer, Fred Jenkins, and Jeff Heitger. After all the suspense and waiting, Fred Jenkins was the lucky guy to be crowned MORP king. Fred Jenkins made his way down the newspaper runway and was congratulated by others in attendance.

The MORP this year was one of the best so far in the history of Northrop High School. The students really enjoyed turning the tables and dressing down (but we know that the guys went because they liked having the girls pick up the tab for the evening). Although the MORP was exactly the opposite from the PROM, it was just as fun.

Oh, Give Me a Break!

No restrictions and no parents are the main reasons that most students can not wait for Spring Break.

Students are not the only ones who look forward to Spring Break, the parents become quite thrilled around that time of year because they are sick of hearing how each and every day at school is getting longer and longer. The teachers at school get pretty nervous and restless too; however, I do not think that the parents' or teachers' feelings about Spring Break can compare to the students' overwhelming joy. Northrop students feel that they are getting that so deserved vacation from those people who like to nag at them and that they have obtained some kind of revenge on those in authority.

Though not all Northrop students leave town for Spring Break most are excited about not coming to school and about being able to sleep in. Some students obligated themselves to work over Spring Break to make those few extra dollars while others trotted off to Florida, North and South Carolina (or somewhere where the sun is) to spend those extra bucks and to just get out of Fort Wayne. Naturally there were those students who could not wait to get back to school, but we try not to speak about those people.

Where ever Northrop students decided to spend their Spring Break they made sure that it was a non-stop party!

Stepping out in style!

The prom is an evening that students always remember as that night they spent with that someone special.

After months of preparation the 1988 Prom finally arrived. The prom was held at the IPFW ballroom on Saturday, May 14th, keeping up the tradition. The prom has been at IPFW since Northrop's first prom thirteen years ago. With the wonderful planning of the junior class the prom was a big success and the attendance was incredible. There were nearly 660 tickets sold; this was the highest number of sales ever. The junior class handed out long stem silk roses to all of the girls attending as they entered the ballroom.

The fashion of the prom varied. Some girls wore tea-length dresses and some wore long, formal gowns. The colors of some of the dresses seemed to fit the spring season with soft pastels and others were really flashy and bright, including royal blue and black. Of course there were pictures taken so that students could take home more than just memories, but pictures to hold on to those memories.

The 1988 prom court consisted of Vanessa Williams and escort Chris Lovelace, DeeDee Holtzberg and escort Darryl Esterline, Teresa Camp and escort Kevin Feldman, Chrissy Saunders and escort Brian Bollinger, and the 1988 prom queen and king were Valerie Pacer and Dave Hastings.

Even though the prom came to a close, most of the couples had plans for after-prom events. Some couples went to King's Island the following day and others had made plans to go to parties or just be alone together. The prom plays a large part in a senior's life and it is one of those moments that is hard to forget. Looking back at high school, years from now, the class of 1988 will not remember those sad moments in school but they will remember their senior prom, a "night of starlit elegance".

Achievements

Memories of Northrop High will never be forgotten

Our fears, joys and sorrows all wrapped up into our one graduation.

As Northrop's Graduating Class of 1988 made their final appearance at graduation they left their mark on the administrators, the parents, the faculty members, and their friends. The graduating class of 1988 will never be forgotten.

As a senior I have to say that the senior year has to be the scariest because the seniors have to say goodbye to all of the friends and teachers that they had known for four years and had to say hello to new lives and to new futures. Graduation is the first big step into new worlds and new accomplishments.

The moment that everyone had waited so long for finally came. Even with a ceremony that lasted 50 minutes (which had to be record timing), most of the seniors recaptured years and years that they spent to get to this one major accomplishment in their lives. The two senior class speakers Sandra Ray and Sudip Chowdhury summed up the four years that we all spent at Northrop High School and gave us a little taste of what we could look forward to in the future.

As we walk down the road of success, We can never forget our past — Our good, bad happy, and sad times. It's our turn to find out about the world and all the challenges it has.

Valedictorian Bruce Colbert, and Salutatorian Todd Ruppert were recognized, not only by the administrators and the parents, but by the students as what being the best academically is all about.

The large number of High Honors and Scholarships with Distinction show the high standard of academics displayed by the graduating class and just a portion of its accomplishments.

Being in high school was not so bad. As much as the graduating class of 1988 probably complained about wanting to graduate, we will all miss Northrop High!

Athletes' hard work pays off as Northrop has another outstanding year in sports

For many years, athletes at Northrop have strived to be the best. This year was no different.

Being the best does not start with winning every game, but rather with athletes giving their all. From the Freshman Football Team winning the city championship to the Boys' Varsity Basketball Team having an excellent winning season, Bruin athletes were the best. The success, however, does not stop there. Through girls' basketball, boys' and girls' cross country, wrestling, and track just to name a few, Northrop proved it has some of the best teams in the land.

During 1987-88, through hard work and dedication, Bruin athletes experienced some of the most glorious moments of their high school careers. because of that same hardwork and dedication we showed that as Bruins, we always give it our best shot.

Teams Combine for Great Season

With hard work, dedication, and talent, the boys' tennis team finished with their best season in years.

Mr. Jim Keim, tennis coach, explained the success by saying, "When the teams won, it united them, making them men, not boys. When they lost it made them work harder."

The varsity team finished with a record of 10-4 overall and 6-3 in the Summit Athletic Conference. After struggling at the first of the year, Northrop came on strong to win nine of their next eleven matches, including a pivotal upset win against North Side that clinched Northrop's third place in the SAC.

The reserve squad, led by Chad Patterson and Mike Weaver, also had a good year with a record of 9-5. Keim said that the reserve team "displayed talent ready to spring forward any time". Next year the varsity team will lose four seniors, Kevin Dougherty, Todd Ruppert, Coy Herald and Brian Wesolowski, all who contributed heavily to this year's success. Their combined record for the season was 42-12, so this year's reserve squad will have to come through next year.

Sectionals brought expected results for the team. In the first round they defeated Bishop Luers 3-2, but in the second round, against the state ranked Snider Panthers, they fell 0-5. No one even took a set off of Snider, but they couldn't feel bad since they gave their best.

A common complaint of the team was lack of support with little attendance. "I thought that we had the capability to win first place in the Summit Athletic Conference, but with the lack of attendance to our matches, our dreams just couldn't come true," commented Wesolowski.

Northrop was well represented on the all-conference teams. Number one doubles Jeff Lovell and Mark Ruppert made first team all-SAC, while number one singles Rick Confer and number two doubles Wesolowski and Herald made the second team all-SAC.

Keim said that producing another year like this will be tough, but next year looks "decent".

Frosh, Reserve Post Excellent Records

This year's football program did better than expected and this success has carried over into the Freshman and Reserve Football Teams.

This season, the freshman team went undefeated in all home games. Said Assistant Coach Todd Townsend, "This team was a 'big play' team — almost every one of our scores came on big plays, such as streaks, reverses, long runs, kick-off returns, and interceptions.

The freshmen outscored their opponents 141-76, and averaged twenty points per game. They also scored first in every game, which helped them capture the city title for the second straight year. They claimed the title in the last game of the season, beating North Side 25-6. Leading the team most of the season were Keytron Davis and Dave Black. Davis, a tailback, rushed for 175 yards in the championship game and scored nine touchdowns during the season. "It feels great! The seventy-seven practices (throughout the season) really paid off," said Davis, commenting about the championship. Black, a quarterback, threw four touchdown passes and two two-point conversions during the season. "Everybody played great," commented Black, "our motto this year was 'heart, character, and dedication.' "

The reserve team, in contrast, had more than two outstanding players. According to Assistant Coach Terry Burton, all the players on the teams were "outstanding." Even though the team suffered only three losses, two to North Side and one to Bishop Dwenger, Coach Burton felt that the team would have won more games it wouldn't have given up some of its talent to the Varsity Team.

Overall, both Townsend and Burton were happy with their respective team's finish. Concluding, Burton said, "We were surprised with the outcome."

Two Seniors Make All-Conference Team

"We had high hopes in the beginning," stated Varsity Football Coach Dean Doerffler. The gridsman went 4-6 on the year and just 2-5 in the Summit Athletic Conference.

This year's team was very young, with only seventeen seniors on the team. Twenty-eight juniors and thirty sophomores made up the remainder of the team. The team also had a new young coach. Mr. Todd Townsend joined the coaching staff, working with virtually all the squads.

The season started with two outstanding victories against Elmhurst in the Jamboree, 27-0, and Richmond, 20-13, respectively. From there, however, the season went downhill. The gridsman lost their next four games, with a 22.5 points allowed average. The game against Harding seemed, at the time, to be the turning point of the season. Beating the Hawks 42-0 got the team motivated to win again. "We overcame our obstacles toward the end," said Assistant Coach Ernie Bojrab. The season ended with a loss to North Side, 24-14, a homecoming victory over Wayne, 22-19, a first-round sectional stomping of heavily favored Huntington North, 34-0, and the season-ending loss to Penn, 35-14.

"We came together more as a team this year than last year," said Tackle Herman Curry. Adding, Coach Bojrab said, "We came together more as a family." Doerffler described the season as "having its ups and downs," making for an interesting season. The team had its highlights and more than its share of disappointments, but at least "the second half (of the season) was good and it ended on a high note (the sectional win over Huntington North)," Doerffler commented.

One of the highlights of the season was the selection of Dennis Springer and Steve Carr to the All-SAC Football Team. "Being chosen for the All-SAC team made a season full of ups and downs end on a high note for me," said Springer. Carr added, "It topped off a very frustrating season."

With approximately fifty-eight returning lettermen for next year, and advancements from the talented reserve team, the future looks to be bright for the Northrop Gridsmen. — Dave Witte

An SAC victory.
The Sectional Title.

These tremendous victories were led by three outstanding new runners who constantly battled for the number one position on the 1987 Girls' Cross Country Team. These three outstanding runners were freshmen Amy Anspaugh, Melissa Clark, and Rachel Williams, and they were nothing short of excellent throughout the season.

Win S.A.C. With 7-0 Record

When a group of young runners decides to train extremely hard and put their whole heart into the idea of working as a "team", success is the result.

That was Head Coach Janet Young's feelings toward the 1987 Girls' Cross Country season and a successful one it was. After a four year absence from the winner's circle, the Bruins are back and running strong. "The girls developed very competitive attitudes and a strong desire to be good," said a proud Coach Young. "It was exciting to watch average ability runners develop into very good runners because of their hard work and determination," she added.

Led by team captains, Seniors Candy Williams and Tessa Swiftney, along with three outstanding freshmen, Amy Anspaugh, Melissa Clark, and Rachel Williams, the Lady Harriers took the S.A.C. and Sectional titles, just missing the chance to compete at the state meet by only four points at regionals.

Along with defeating many state ranked teams and their S.A.C. and sectional victories, the Bruins' top runners, freshmen Clark, Williams, and Anspaugh were members of the All-S.A.C. team, placing 4th, 7th, and 11th, respectively.

Sophomore Harrier Erica Cohee summed up the season by saying, "Winning the S.A.C. was really great so the hard work REALLY paid off!" Senior Captain Candy Williams said, "I contribute the team's success to the coaching skills of Ms. Young. Tessa Swiftney, the other senior captain, added, "The team's success and the success of the three freshmen is due to Coach Young's training program. It provided the balance of speed work and endurance build-up that gave us the ability to take the S.A.C. and sectional titles. Under her guidance and the new talents coming to Northrop, winning is doubtlessly ahead for the Girls' Cross Country Team!"

The Lady Harriers will return most runners next year, and with the talent and the competitiveness, the upcoming seasons should be very promising, indeed.

arriers Set Pace

Post 8-0 Conference Record

With their thirteenth conference championship, the Boys' Cross Country Team is, undoubtedly, setting high standards for future Harriers.

The team's record of 17-3 was more than a notable effort, indeed. The three losses came early in the season with the Bruin Harriers improving to the point where they were virtually unmatchable in the conference. "I was surprised," stated Coach Fred Blanks, "I felt we had a good chance and that it (the season) would come down to the wire, but it turned out we dominated."

Dominating the conference would be an understatement. The boys went 8-0 in the conference and won the S.A.C. championship.

A third place finish at the Fort Wayne sectional qualified the Bruins for the Bellmont Regional. Outstanding individual efforts by Marc Scales, Matt Wertman, and Sean McGann plus good pack running advanced the Bruins to the semi-state. "We always gave a 110 percent effort," commented Senior Tom Downs, "no matter what we did." Unfortunately, the state-bound team was stopped short due to the illness of three of the top four runners.

Although the end of the season was traumatic, it proved that the Harriers are one of the best athletic teams at Northrop.

Frosh Post Outstanding Record

"Very good" is the phrase Coach Jennifer Titzer used to describe the season of her Reserve Lady Spikers. The reserve team went 17-5 in 1987-88 and 7-2 in the SAC. Their underclass counterparts, the Freshman Volleyball Team, coached by Larry Bleiler, went 18-1 on the season and won the SAC championship.

Coach Titzer said the reserve team seemed to lack the 'drive' for the game. "Fundamentally, the girls were very solid. They could hit, set, spike, . . . carry out the basics very well," said Titzer. In addition, she said, "They just were not aggressive enough on the court, especially at the net."

"This team had a lot of talent," Titzer said. Because of that, she said there was not a "best player" on the team. "At the end of the season," Titzer said, "the girls voted on the best players and that's how we decided." Tina Williams was voted most improved player; Carrie Dahman was selected best server; Jill Karasek and Louise Steinkamp were voted best offensive player and best defensive player, respectively; and Lori Derheimer received the mental attitude award.

For Titzer, the season was very pleasing. "From the beginning, I saw improvement in the team as a whole, and they practiced their skills to improve even more," Titzer said. Improvement did not come in just the skills, however. Said Titzer, "Their (the teams') consistency also improved as the season progressed."

On the reserve team this year were eleven sophomores and one junior, which is a fairly young line-up. Commenting on next season, Titzer said, "With only four girls returning on varsity next year, some of the reserves will move up without any varsity experience at all." Continuing, she said, "We (the coaches) know that some of the reserve girls will have to move up, but we do not yet know how many. We'll just have to wait until next season!"

Burt, Hughes make All-SAC

"Meridith and Stacey are good all-around players and they can play any position at anytime," said Varsity Volleyball Coach Mary Coats. Senior Meridith Burt and Junior Stacey Hughes were selected for the first and second all-SAC teams, respectively.

This season, Burt broke the hitting record set by Lori Meinerding with 228 hits. Burt also had 129 digs, and the second highest number of aces for the team.

S pikers go up, down

'Serve' 18-10 record

En route to a season record of 18-10, the Girls' Varsity Volleyball team experienced numerous ups and downs. Despite the turbulent season, though, the Lady Spikers, coached by Mary Coats, managed to keep a "positive attitude" throughout the season.

The season got off to an exceptional start, with only one loss in the first five encounters. "The girls were really consistent in playing their games," Coats said. "Stacey Hughes and Lisa Howe were probably the most consistent, though," she added.

In contrast, however, there were some areas of the game that the Lady Spikers lacked consistency in, such as aggressiveness. "We really needed to be more aggressive up by the net," Coach Coats said. She added, "We needed to get up there and hit the ball instead of just standing there saying, 'Are we supposed to hit this little ball?'"

The season brought numerous injuries to the team. Coach Coats said, however, the team made up for the losses. She said, "The team was a really tight group, so when someone got injured and had to set out, they pulled together and worked harder. They were always pulling together and helping each other through the tough times."

Overall, Coach Coats said she was really pleased with the season. Said Coats, "The season ended on a high note with the two sectional wins over Bishop Dwenger and Concordia, especially Concordia because of them beating us earlier in the season." She then added, "With all things considered, I think the girls played really hard all season long!"

The varsity squad will be losing eight girls next year, but with the advancements from the reserve team and the incoming freshmen, it all balances out to another great season.

Riley and Northrop go Hand-in-Hand

Girls' golf coach Dave Riley has undoubtedly had a major impact on Northrop athletics.

Riley graduated from Ball State University in 1956. He came to Northrop in 1977 as a P.E. teacher and coach.

His coaching career at Northrop has been phenomenal. From coaching a record-setting girls' basketball team to coaching an excellent girls' golf team, Riley has been very successful.

Lady Linksters Aim 'Fore' Improvement

Make Regionals for Sixth Straight Year

"Improvement was the word for the Lady Linksters of 1987.

The girls' golf team, coached by Dave Riley, compiled an 11-5 record and turned what looked to be a dismal season into a trip to regionals. This is the sixth consecutive year that the Lady Linksters have advanced to regional competition.

The season began at the Northrop Invitational, where Northrop placed eighth. "The girls were really down at that point," said Riley.

With steady improvement from that point on, the team was optimistic going into sectionals, where they placed third behind Snider and Dwenger. That showing allowed them to advance to regionals.

"Regionals was not good at all for us. No one played well," commented Riley. The team placed eighth out of nine teams.

Leading the Lady Linksters was Senior Amy Chambers. She had the team's best average and came within one stroke of competing in the state individual finals.

Chambers was selected for the All-Summit Athletic Conference team by a vote of SAC coaches.

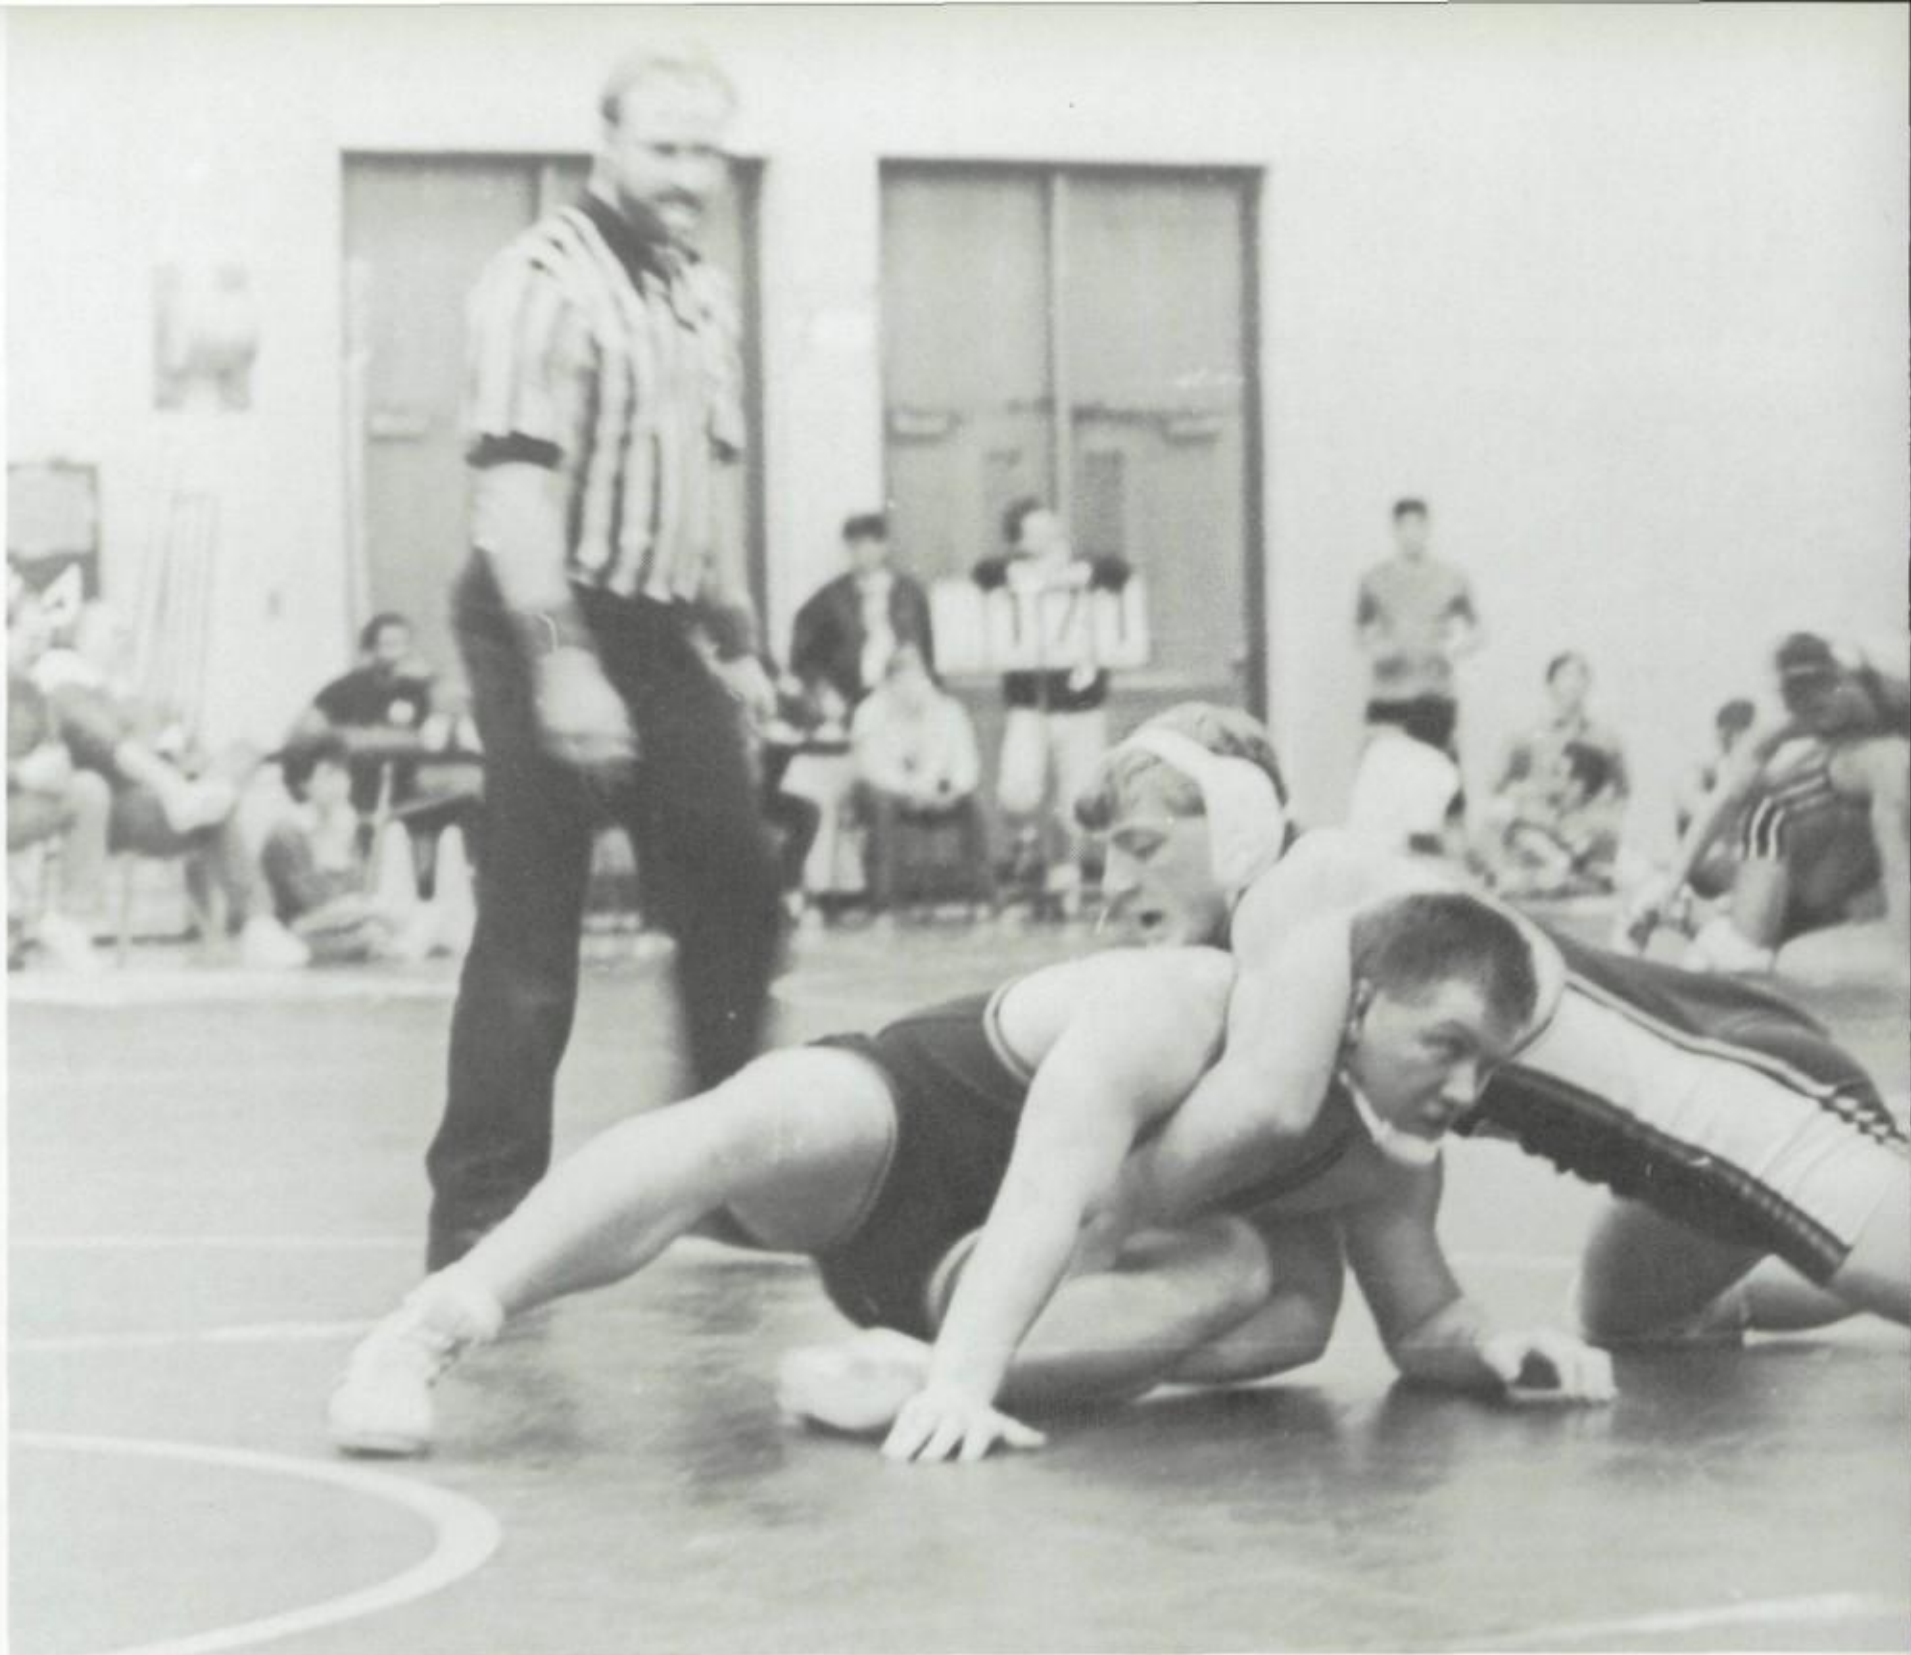

With three of the five varsity members returning next year, Riley said that the team looks like it will be "really good".

*Freshman, reserve, varsity teams
'pin' an excellent season*

"Inexperienced" would be the word to describe the freshman and reserve wrestling teams in 1987-88, while "dominating" would describe the outstanding varsity squad.

The reserve team, despite its inexperience, posted a respectable record of 9-3. The lack of experience was mostly due to none of the middle schools, or 'feeder' schools, having wrestling programs for the freshmen and sophomores to get experience in the past years. As the season progressed, however, the teams did very well in the tournaments. They placed in the top three in almost every meet, and several of the grapplers went to the championship matches in the meets. Stated Head Coach Sam DiPrimio, "I see a bright future for these boys."

Some of the young wrestlers were switched between the reserve and varsity wrestling teams, therefore, gaining some valuable varsity experience. The experience will help those who go on to the varsity. When asked how he felt about the season as a whole, freshman grappler Mike Bair said, "It was a fun and exciting season. I really enjoyed it." Sophomore Tom Szymczak added, "I thought our team really pulled together this season and Coach DiPrimio was a great influence."

The varsity wrestling team, which posted an outstanding 12-3 record, became S.A.C. co-champions with arch rival Snider. In addition to the conference title, the varsity grapplers also represented Northrop well in post-season action. Eight Bruins went to sectional and regional competitions; four, Dennis Springer, Keith Battenfield, Mike Huntington, and Shane Yoder went to semistate; and one, Dennis Springer, went to the state finals.

Coach DiPrimio was very pleased with the season as a whole. He was especially pleased with Dennis Springer. "I wish I could have a Dennis Springer on every one of my teams," he said.

Tumbling Talent

Varsity, Reserve Gymnasts Roll To An Excellent Season

After last year's 9-3 record, the Bruin Gymnasts were expected to do exceptionally well this 1987-88 school year. They certainly lived up to the expectations with a 12-1 record for both the varsity and reserve teams, and a state ranking as high as number two for the varsity.

The reserve team finished their season with a 7-0 record in the S.A.C. Head Coach Maureen Hornak had a feeling that the team would do well, "I knew we had a lot of excellent talent coming in this year and I thought we'd do well." Hornak added, "This was the best reserve team Northrop has had in a while."

The Bruin Varsity Team clinched the S.A.C. title by beating North Side during the last meet of the regular season. The team also placed first in sectional and regional competitions, and advanced to the state finals at Indianapolis Perry Meridian High School. In the state competition, the varsity team placed fifth out of the five schools competing; however, only one and a half points separated each team. Out of an average of 42 competitors in each event, the Bruin Gymnasts placed near the top in each event. Freshman Karen Beer placed fifth in the beam, third in the floor routine, second on bars, and third all-around. The highest possible score an individual can obtain in a state meet is 10 points. Senior Lola Young came very close to this score with a 9.70 on the vault. Other gymnasts coming close to this score were Ann McElroy, Shannon Carey, Jada Little, and Stacey Frick. "I don't think that anyone in Ft. Wayne could have done better," said Hornak.

With the successful records posted by both teams and the talent shown throughout the season, it is no wonder that the Bruin Gymnasts tumbled their way to the top in 87-88.

It isn't easy for an incoming freshman to work her way to the top in her first high school season. However, Karen Beer overcame the odds and placed in sectionals and regionals this year.

"Gymnastics is my life," Karen said, and one look at her experience proves it. She has been involved since she was six, and she plans to continue as long as possible.

Transition

Reserve, Freshman Cagers Learn To Play The 'Bruin' Way

The Boys' Reserve and Freshman Basketball teams found out this year that winning isn't everything. The two teams had a combined record of 11-26, the reserve going 7-13, and the freshman going 4-13 respectively.

Playing on a reserve team is a stepping stone to the varsity level. While on the team, a player gets a chance to improve the weak elements of his play, while he polishes his already mastered skills. Said Reserve Head Coach Jim Spencer, "A program's priorities aren't straight if the team is measured by its win-loss record. Rather, it should be measured by the player improvement, and some of our players improved greatly over the season." Said Sophomore Tory Harris on improving his skills, "Each day I try to do something better than the day before." One key to having a good season is having a team that plays well together. Although they posted a losing record, the reserve players seemed to have the chemistry to play well together. "As the season progressed, the team began to gel and play really well," sophomore reserve player Scott Kruger said. "Once we got to know each other, we played pretty well together," he added.

On the freshman level, there are some definite changes players must go through — both physical and emotional. Freshman Coach Mike Cheviron said, "The freshman year is a very difficult time for these young men. It takes a long time for them to learn and understand the system and our 'Bruin' style of playing."

Academically, life as a freshman can sometimes be a rough transition from middle school days. The same is true from an athletic standpoint. If a freshman basketball player doesn't know what to expect from the "big" high school games, the first few times on the floor can be a harsh experience. What the coach expects them to do is to learn from their mistakes, and apparently they did just that. Said Freshman Scott Putman, "We didn't always win, but we learned."

Mixed emotions

Cagers have ups, downs in regular season; fall in sectionals

Despite an 18-6 record and championships in both the S.A.C. and the S.A.C. Holiday Tournament, the 1987-88 boys' basketball season was a rather disappointing one.

After opening the season with five straight wins, the team looked as if it would fulfill expectations of getting to the final four. However, they were blown out at home against Muncie South, 62-44. Then, following two consecutive losses was the team's most successful weekend. Against Bishop Luers, the Bruins jumped to a 20-0 lead before ending up crushing the Knights, 93-42. Then came the match-up against top ranked Richmond. Northrop led by 12 with two minutes left, but couldn't hold on. The Red Devils eventually won, 86-84, in overtime, but it was probably the finest game for the Bruin Cagers.

The squad finished out the last seven regular season games with a 6-1 record. Then it was sectional time. They drew

North Side, whom they had already beaten three times during the regular season. Once again they beat the Redskins, but just by two, 56-54. Their next foes were the New Haven Bulldogs. Northrop held the lead for most of the game, but their downfall turned out to be free throw shooting. They missed a total of 18 free throws, and ended up losing, 59-51.

The Bruins were definitely a senior-based team. Seven seniors played regularly, and four of those usually started. Front line men for the squad were Seniors, Chris Lovelace, Tornell Moore, J.C. Harris, and Corey Martin. Chad Becker, the only junior to start, was a forward. Starting guards were usually Lamont Tolbert, the team's leading scorer, and Senior Andy Norris; and John Ellington was the first guard off the bench.

The Bruin Basketball Team had an abundance of talent that just never came together; however, with an 18-6 record, in no way was the season a total disappointment.

Cagers Improve

Frosh, reserve girls overcome problems, work together as a team

"This season was a lot of fun because we had a winning season, the team worked together, and I got to meet a lot of new people," said Freshman Kate Clemmer, who played forward on the Girls' Reserve Basketball Team.

This year the main focus of both the reserve and freshmen girls' basketball teams was on teamwork. This method apparently worked because the reserve team only lost two games, and the freshmen only four. As freshman guard Tracy Haug said, "At the beginning we weren't really a team, but at the end, we really pulled together and worked."

Mr. Phil Ginder, the reserve coach, was pleased with the 1987-88 season. Said Ginder, "The kids worked well together. We played two freshmen and the rest were sophomores. We played well in every ball game except two."

The season was an important one for the Lady Bruins. The reserve team helped the varsity win the Summit Athletic Conference tournament, and the freshmen had a lot to deal with. The freshmen had to come together and work as a team, not as players from different schools. Many times, freshmen have a hard time adjusting to the togetherness of them and their middle school rivals, not to mention that they have to change their style of play. In addition, this was the first year Coach Lisa Plumb, a former Northrop player, had ever coached. Yet as Freshman Amanda Hale says, "I think she (Coach Plumb) did a great job."

The Lady Bruins had a lot of talent and consistently improved their basketball skills throughout the season. Sophomore Dawn Kiel says, "We had a pretty good year. Everyone improved over their performance of last year." Many of the players will even further improve their basketball skills at various camps, held at Indiana or Purdue Universities during the summer months. The 1987-88 season was very successful and Freshman Leigh Ann Johnson best sums it up. "The coaches were great and the team worked hard," Johnson said.

O ver achievers

Lady Bruins have impressive season despite being labeled 'rebuilding'

If a school has a girls' basketball with a cumulative record of 75-6 over a three year period, it should be obvious that the school has both an unusually talented group of girls and a quality coaching staff. Such is the case with Northrop's Lady Bruins and head coach Dave Riley.

Although this year was a year of rebuilding for them, our ladies proved themselves to be very strong players, with the ability to excell past even their own expectations. The team as a whole was a powerful force this year, with a very talented starting five and a strong bench. Led by Vanessa Williams and Meredith Burt, the varsity team came out of the season with an impressive record of 18 wins and only five losses overall, and 7-2 in the S.A.C. This is the fourth best season in the history of Northrop girls' basketball, and was reached mainly because of the ladies' further development in both skill and confidence as a team.

Coach Riley said that the girls had continually improved and moved on to greater heights, both as a team and individually throughout the season. As a team, they upset previously undefeated Huntington North, who had been ranked eighth in the state. They were also awarded an honorable mention by the Associated Press, and finished in third place in the Summit Athletic Conference. Individually, Williams made the all-S.A.C. team, and Burt made both the all S.A.C. team and all-Area teams as well. These accomplishments were well-deserved by both players. They worked hard throughout the season and contributed greatly to the teams' overall success.

However, the achievements of Williams and Burt might not have been as easily attained if it weren't for the strong support of their teammates. As Senior Jill Flowers expressed, "The whole team had a positive attitude and worked hard all season."

Duty Calls

Schoeff commits himself to Northrop athletics

Many people often overlook the hard work it takes to be a high school administrator. Most administrators agree that it takes a lot of time, diligence, and most of all, patience. Such is the case with Northrop's Athletic Director, Mark Schoeff.

The job of athletic director includes a tremendous amount of responsibilities. Schoeff's responsibilities include the scheduling of games, hiring of officials, and the transportation to the away games. Scheduling for varsity football and boys' varsity basketball takes place three to four years in advance. "After an initial schedule for a season is set up, it's easy for us to follow that schedule year after year," Schoeff said. He added that he follows that same routine for each of Northrop's sixteen different sports.

Mr. Schoeff is very proud to be a part of Northrop High School. Said Schoeff, "For the seventeen years that Northrop has been around, I don't think any school in the state can match our athletic achievements for that same period of time." Adding, he said, "And I like to think that I played a major role in the success."

For the upcoming years, Schoeff said some changes may occur in Indiana high school athletics. One change is the addition of soccer, now a club that Northrop is strong in, as a sport sanctioned by the IHSAA. However, it could be one or two years before that happens. "Before a sport becomes sanctioned by the IHSAA, a survey is conducted and if fifty percent of the member schools want the sport, the (IHSAA) committee will take further action," Schoeff said.

Mr. Schoeff came to Northrop, like many other teachers did, in 1971 after Central High School closed its doors. He said he really enjoys his job. "I really love my job," Schoeff said. "And I wouldn't change a thing," he added.

Coaches' wives very happy

Anita DiPrimio, Sharon Riley, Dottie Stavreti, and Cheri Trammel all hold double roles at Northrop, so to speak. While all of them have jobs here, they are also wives of coaches at Northrop.

DiPrimio and Riley both say that they are very happy. "I enjoy sports and really enjoy watching the kids," Mrs. DiPrimio said. Adding, Mrs. Riley said, "I love it!"

Along with the advantages, there are also disadvantages. DiPrimio said that making sacrifices is one of the disadvantages she has. "We don't get to spend as much time together as we'd like to," she said.

Overall, they support their husbands in any way possible. All of them realize that coaching is what makes their husbands happy, and they would not do anything to change the happiness.

Girls' tennis team has rough season despite high expectations

Tennis is one of Northrop's many spring sports. Our girls' team had a rather disappointing season this year with only four wins and thirteen losses. "Our attitude of how our team was great made our playing ability decline as the match went on," said Sophomore Tonya Hart. Head Coach Ron Barnes also seems to think that the girls' attitude was a problem. "To win you must have the proper attitude. You have to want to win," he said.

It's no doubt to the girls' on the team that they could have done better. "We expected to end with a good winning record," said Hart. The girls have their own ideas on how the team could improve. Sophomore Laurie Derheimer said, "If we could practice during the off season, as well as during the season, we might do better." Laurie also said that the team concentrated more on other things than tennis.

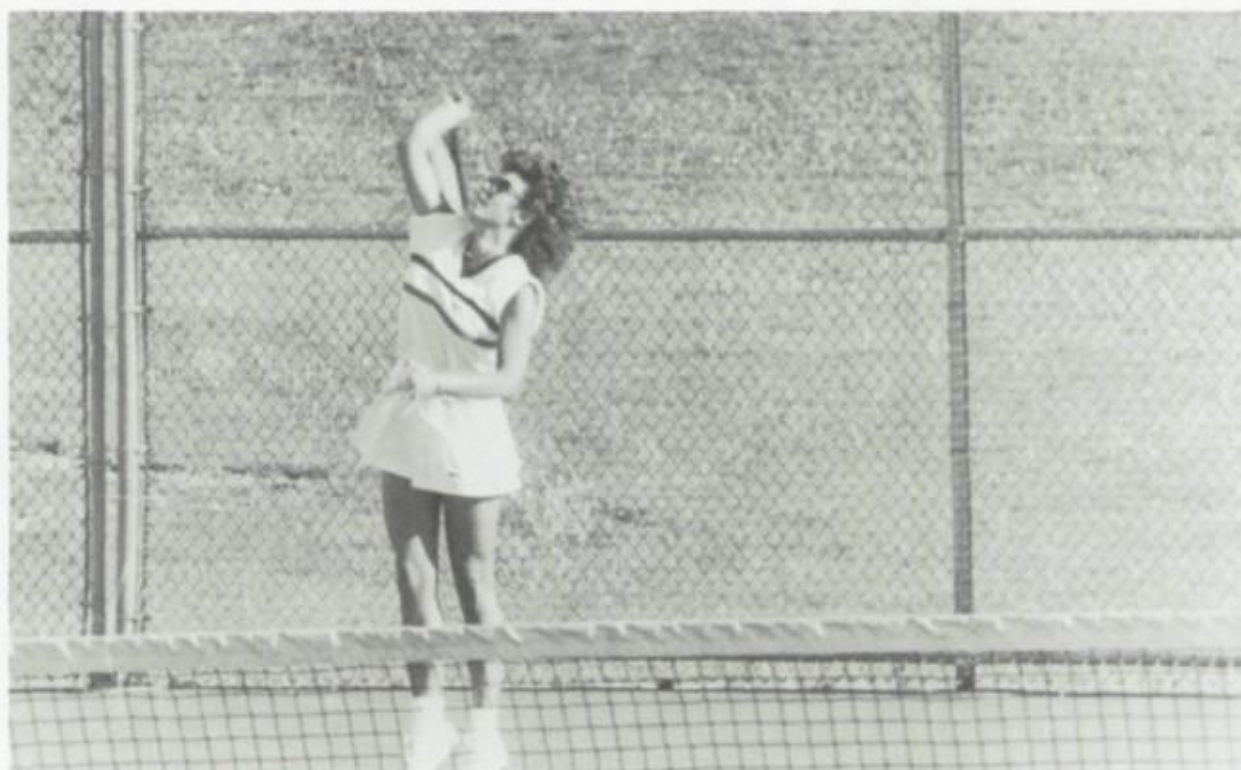

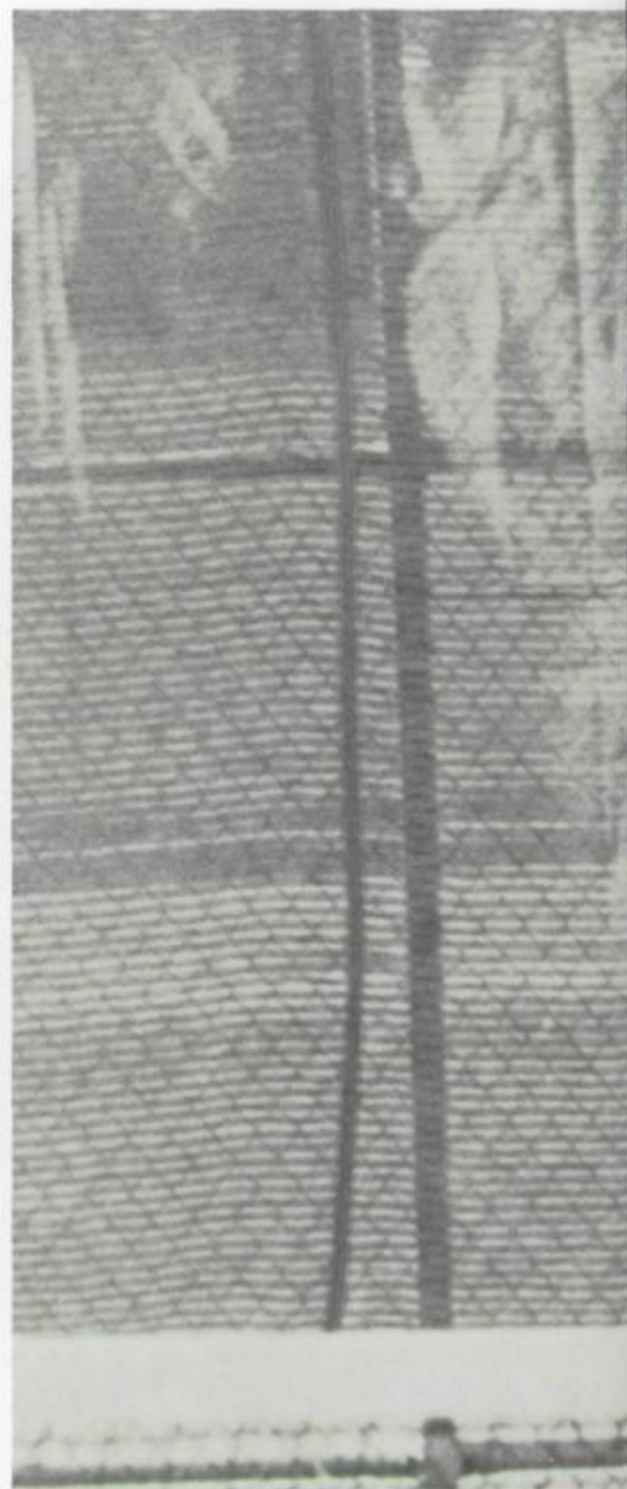

The team did keep busy, though. The girls played in three to four matches a week and tried to squeeze two practices in between.

A new powerhouse in Indiana high school athletics is on the rise. This sensation is the Northrop Softball Team, coached by Mr. Bob Walleen. Only in its second year, a tradition is being formed — a tradition of excellence.

A year ago, these ladies burst onto the scene with a perfect conference record and S.A.C. title. This year, they duplicated the feat and went on to be ranked fourth statewide. From the first day of practice this season, the outlook was good. Each starter returned with a year of experience and a season of development. "Our philosophy was to have fun and enjoy it," said Assistant Coach Jim Spencer, "and they gave a hundred percent at all times, and their record showed it.

Practice everyday after school from three until five at Northrop was where it came together for the team. Said Sophomore Jenny Norman, "They've showed me how to throw better and improve my batting." The team's success was due to a combination of hardwork and natural talent. Offense became a trademark for the team with scores that doubled, and sometimes tripled, that of their opponents. The hot bats on the team belonged to Sophomore Della Kinslow and Senior Meridith Burt. Junior Stacey Hughes and Senior Chrissy Saunders were also talents at the plate, giving Northrop many of their hits. The opposition's low scores came as a result of Northrop's outstanding pitching. Led by Senior Jill Shappell, with an earned run average of 1.49, the team's pitchers kept the scoring to a minimum. The year's highlight was the clobbering of the then fifth-ranked DeKalb Lady Barons, showing to the spectators and the rest of the area that this Lady Bruin team was for real.

This year showed to many people the success that such young teams can have, if they only try. The girls feel they earned the defense of their Summit Athletic Conference Title outright.

Beginnings

Reserve diamondmen turn rough start into a season of winning, learning

"I feel the team did an outstanding job with some great effort. The coaching was good and there were more fans than expected." These are the words of Junior Varsity Baseball player Jim Hontz.

It took hard work and patience to develop a strong JV team, and with a record of 13-5 it would seem that is just what we have. However, Coach Park Ginder says there were major problems that plagued the team and immaturity was the biggest.

Ginder explained that early on, much of team's practice time was used because of having to deal with immature attitudes and actions. "We talked to them, that seemed to help, or sometimes we'd make them run." The "we" Ginder referred to is Assistant Coach Ron DelaCuesta and himself.

Both coaches worked together to initiate a new angle on teaching the team. Instead of the "winning is everything" attitude, the guys were taught fundamentals in a training camp atmosphere. "The purpose of JV is to prepare the players for the varsity team," Ginder stated.

DelaCuesta was "pleasantly surprised" about the amount of success the team had with the amount of natural talent he had to work with. Although not as much raw talent was present this year, with the help of a few key players, the team was able to pull ahead and enjoy a winning season. "I think we came around as a team," said Freshman Greg Piatt. "We started off at point zero and gradually increased," he added.

Pitching was a strong asset for the team this year. Several of the players including Doug Couch, Mike Mendler, and Scott Paris led the team in this area. Ginder commented, "If you can't pull the ball across the plate, you're in trouble."

Overall, despite the early problems, the team enjoyed a very beneficial season. The team came together, and the coaches helped all the players to realize that hard work does payoff.

Diamondmen prove to be winners in every way

The 1987-88 Varsity Baseball Team can be described in one word: consistent. Head Coach Chris Stavreti's men finished the season at 20-5-1, with an Summit Athletic Conference championship to their credit.

Stavreti's explanation on the team's success was simple, "We really never went into a slump offensively. When one guy was struggling, another picked up the team with a clutch hit."

Leading the team most of the year was Junior Brent Berglund, who made the All-S.A.C. second team, and Senior Ryan Wedge, who was made the first All-S.A.C. team. Of his idea on the team's success, Berglund said, "We put pressure on the other teams and made them make the mistakes."

Besides offensive power, the team had some mainstays on the mound. The pitching staff for the Bruins in 1988 consisted of all seniors: Dan Trent, Dan Schenkel, Dave Johnson, Ryan Wedge, and All-S.A.C. first team member, Mike Klopfenstein. Johnson thought that the success was due in part to two factors. "I think we stayed away from the other teams having big innings, and our pitching staff had a lot of experience. That helped us," said Johnson.

As S.A.C. champions, the mainstays in the Bruin line-up were Junior Mike Holom at third base; Sophomore Heath Bowlin at shortstop; Sophomore Jamie Holland at second base; Berglund at first base; and Junior Steve McCullough behind the plate.

The outfield consisted of Seniors Wedge and Klopfenstein; and Juniors Chad Kohli and Jeff Kirchner.

This season brought an abundance of youth to the team, and along with that came some valuable learning experiences. The many wins and the S.A.C. championship helped the young members grow "old", so to speak, and it added one more memory for the senior members to look back on.

Lady Tracksters give other teams 'run' for their money

The 1987-88 Girls' Track Team had a successful season, with the hard work of team members and team captains Tia Glass, Vanessa Williams, and Monique Johnson.

The team captains are established by the team members. "This year's team has more speed and depth than last year's and the quality of the runners has increased," said Coach Fred Blanks. This year's team was a very young team with the leadership of freshmen, Amy Anspaugh, Melissa Clark, Rachel Williams, and Sonya and Tonya Shepherd.

The team placed third out of seven schools in the Summit Athletic Conference meet, and many team members advanced to sectionals. Leading the team in the sprints were Sonya Shepherd, Tonya Shepherd, Monica Johnson, and Monique Johnson. In distance running, Linette Little also went to sectionals. In the field events, were Rachel Williams, Amy Anspach, and Melissa Clark. Tia Glass was the Summit Athletic Conference champion in the high jump.

Coach Blanks said, "The talent was there, they just had to pull it together."

The team advanced to regionals and placed tenth out of 58 participating schools. Regionals were held at Spuller Stadium here at Northrop on May, 25. Runners that advanced to state were Monica Johnson, who placed third in the 100-yard dash; and Alicia Harris, she placed fifth in the long jump. The 400-meter relay team, consisting of Monica Johnson, Vanessa Williams, Sonya Shepherd, and Tonya Shepherd, placed second. Although she didn't advance to state, Tia Glass placed sixth in high jump. "I feel we had a good season," said Coach Blanks, and he feels that the girls gave it their all.

Herald Takes Charge

Although this year's Boys' Track Team lacked senior leadership, senior Coy Herald's contributions to the team are hard to overlook.

After high-jumping for the Bruins four years, Herald's performance steadily improved. Coy owes a lot of his success to the fact that he, as a senior, was the team's strongest, most experienced high-jumper and had to lead the way. Said Herald, "It was different for me this year because the high jump hasn't been strong. I just try to keep consistent so I can win."

Track team overcomes obstacles, performs better than expected

Though we did not win team championships, we still believed that this was a successful season. Looking at talent versus success, it was a pretty good season, said Coach Bob Trammel of the 1988 Boys' Track Team.

This season was weaker than previous Northrop seasons, mostly due to the team's one major weakness — lack of senior leadership. This was a difficulty for the team because in past years, the teams had been led by seniors with years of experience, but this year the team only had three seniors. Coach Trammel said, "We had plenty of good talent, and now, after this year, we'll have the experience, and you really need both of those elements to win."

The team also suffered from a series of injuries that left some of its key members unable to compete. "It helps in upcoming years, though, because many of our freshman had to compete on the senior level because of the injuries," said Trammel. Said Senior Coy Herald, "We did a pretty good job. . . We had some injuries during the season that hurt us, but we, as a team, kept going and never gave up."

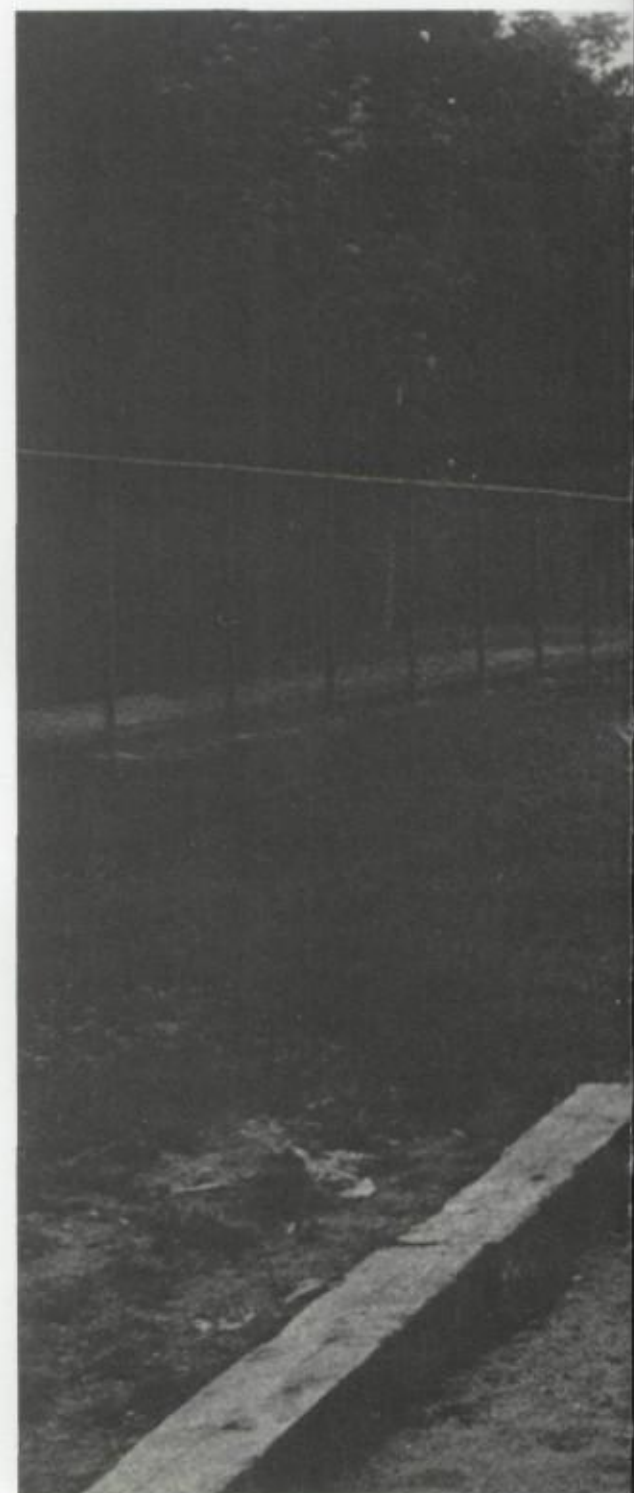

The team did realize that without much experience, winning would be difficult. Finishing the season 5-1 in the S.A.C., though, was a good standing for such a youthful team. Their only loss was to Snider, the area sectional and regional champs. "Although it would have been great to beat favored Snider," Trammel said, "We weren't discouraged by the guys because we weren't really in a position to win a city or sectional championship."

Although the guys are looking to next year, they have to realize that this year was a learning experience that will help them next year. In support, Trammel said, "The young men worked hard and did just about all they could. A certain degree of maturity was developed over the season."

Bruin linksters make the grade, have winning seasons

Improvement was a necessity this year for the Boys' Golf Teams, and they met that need by finishing with a varsity record of 7-5, and the reserve team went 13-5, respectively.

Many factors contributed to the good season, including more player motivation. Said Head Coach Bruce Oliver, "I feel that the dedication and hard work by all members of the varsity and reserve teams led to their improvement." Oliver said that Senior Tim Wagner was the key to the varsity's success this year. Wagner had the most consistency and lowest scores, and at the annual athletic awards presentation he was received the most valuable player award. Wagner was the only Bruin Linkster who advanced to regional competition after posting a score of 80 at the fifteen team sectional; however, he got that score only after winning a tight four-way playoff. Linksters who made the sectional team included Sophomores Tom Rotering and Shannon Royer, and Juniors Brian Hensler and Brent Murphy.

The varsity squad started the season on a good note by placing sixth at the Bruin Invitational and winning the next three out of four matches. However, the momentum slowed somewhat at the Summit Athletic Conference meet, where the linksters placed fifth.

The reserve team did equally well, considering its eighteen game schedule, compared to the varsity's twelve game schedule. Both teams' seasons were filled with tournaments and invitations, including the Concordia Tournament, Wawasee Invitational, and the Culver Invitational. The lowest score at any of these events was a very respectable 341, which came at Concordia, giving the linksters sixth place out of nineteen teams.

review

Final look at sports season

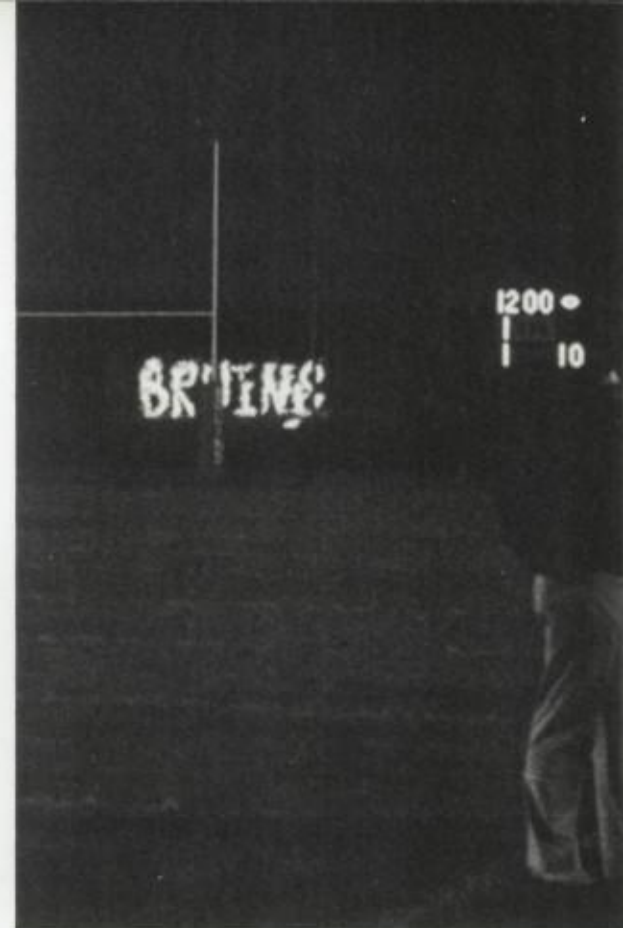

It all started in late August with the Jamboree
The gridders doing everything for a big TD.
They tried and tried, but didn't win every battle
But come Homecoming time, the Generals they did rattle.

Then came the cagers and they were plan-nin'
For some wild hoops and J.C.'s slamma-jammin'.
The ladies, well, they had a groovin' season
And they were winning for all the right reasons —
With Burt in the center or Williams at the line
The Lady Bruins blew everyone's mind.

Next were the diamondmen with a coach named Stav
And an excellent season they did have.
With excellent pitching from a guy named Dan
Everyone wanted to become a baseball fan.
But the softball team was hard to believe
Opponents thought Coach Bob had something up his sleeve.

Well, that's the end and it's time to go
But one more thing especially seniors should know:
All of us Bruins want to take this spot
To say "Thanks" for giving it your best shot.

Jobs give students responsibility

Are you one of the many teenagers who manages a part-time job, high school classes, extra-curricular activities, and still enjoys an active social life? If so, you are not alone. A survey taken in a senior academic English class showed that the majority of students had some sort of a part-time job.

Most students admit that the biggest compensation in having a job is the money, but the second largest reward, many agree upon is meeting new people. Also,

"I work because I want money." —
Meredith Jackson, freshman

"I work so that I can get money so that I can get a real car." — Shanna Clements, junior

many enjoy the challenges they are presented with and eagerly take on the extra responsibility.

The types of jobs differentiate from working at fast-food restaurants to working at a bank or at a legal office. Kim Colchin, senior, is an assistant teacher in a four year-old classroom at the Crescent Avenue Week-day School. She plans on going to college and says that her part-time job does have something to do with a career that she would like to pursue in the future.

Although most obtained their jobs on their own and without any parental influence, there are very few students who feel that their parents disapprove of their part-time job. In fact, parents do receive at least one benefit from their son's or daughter's part-time job: "They are glad that I'm not asking for money all of the time," said Regina Drudge, senior.

There are some limitations set though. For instance, Todd Kortte, junior, stated that "my dad won't let me work on weekdays because of school and grades, but he has no problem with me working on weekends."

The question "could you stand to quit your job?" was very controversial. Some said yes, but others have real financial difficulties that they have to deal with and so they could not. The biggest factor in keeping that job seemed to be the question of that weekly pay check.

Bruins find time to have fun

Fun? What to do for fun in the Fort? The Fort is such a big place, bigger than you think. You would think there would be a lot to do in this city. Well, we'll see.

Don't blink or you will miss it. That's right, you're entering Hicksville, Ohio. Home of The Palace. Located about 45 minutes away from the Fort. You and your friends pile in and get ready to party. The Palace provides entertainment for all. For all who are 18 and older. Yep! You have to be 18 to get in. The size being not so big, you have to cram your way around. Stand, sit, squat, or what ever you do, I assure you, you will have a good time.

The Blue Mountain Cafe, located in downtown Fort Wayne on the landing provides good live entertainment and unique choices of eats. No cover charge required — it's just a nice warm feeling kind of place to hang. Over the years The Mountain has become more and more popular.

Rock America used to be a popular place for dancing. It still may be popular. The Rock (as it is known) is pretty good size. It gives all the teenagers a place to go dance and socialize. If you're lucky, you may even be introduced to someone new.

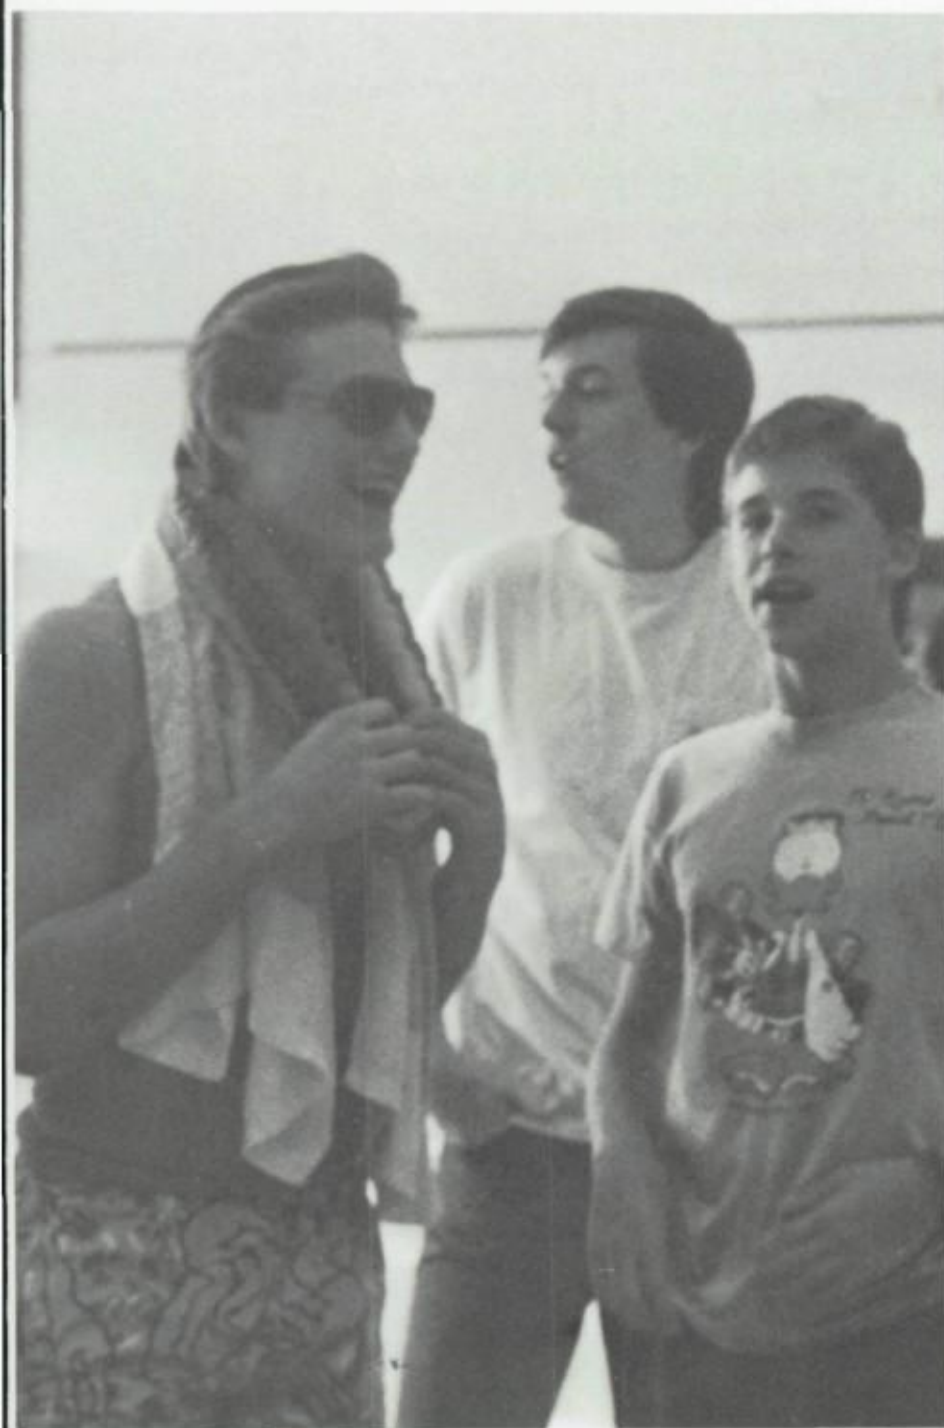

"Spare time? What spare time? I listen to music, and go out with friends." — Pam Harding, Freshman

A friend's house is the second choice if there is nothing to do. You and your buddies can get together and mess around or just sit around while mom's out, talk while the hi-fi pumps out your favorite tunes.

The mall is a place to go shopping. Not really. Adolescents go there to hang out around the ice rink hoping to pick up a future friend. Some go to lessen the intelligence. I'm speaking of the keeper of lost I.Q. points, Tilt. Tilt (mall arcade) enhances kids' minds by attracting them with such intense games as Contra, Road Blaster, Double Dragon, and Rampager. If you're not into all that, you probably go and visit friends who work at the food court, eventually purchasing some alright pizza at Sbarro's.

As you can see Ft. Wayne is filled with excitement and is such a happening place. O.K.!

Excellence in the Classroom

When most people think of recognition, they think of a basketball player being named most valuable player in a game or a member of the speech team taking first place, but few people think achievements in the classroom deserving of such merit.

Two years ago, Mrs. Mansbach, Mrs. Galvin, and others in the English department thought about ways of recognizing those students who excel in areas of their school work. The way they chose to commend these students is with the Students of Excellence program.

Every month, a list of students awarded this honor is announced. A large sigh with the students' names

"Thank you so much, I was completely in shock!" — Susie Anderson, freshman and the area in which they received the award is made and posted in the main office window. Those honored for the first time are given an orange pennant proclaiming them a "Student of Excellence", each additional time the student is honored, they receive a ribbon.

Different departments go about the selection in different ways but, for the most part, the selections are made at the monthly departmental meetings where the department head asks for suggestions from other teachers in the department.

While the faculty sees this program as an asset to the recognition of good students, some students feel that the program is a waste of the PTSA's money. There are other students, however, who, like Senior Dave Hastings, feel that, "Being a Student of Excellence has been very gratifying to me. I feel like I have endeavored to seek out the best possible education this institution has to offer." Others feel that being recognized shows them that their teachers are paying attention to their work. "Being chosen to be a Student of Excellence makes me feel as though my teachers are noticing my accomplishments," commented Tom Szymczak, sophomore. Brett Fischer feels that, "... being a Student of Excellence has shown me that all of my hard work has paid off."

Senior Gina Snowberger says that the Students of Excellence program is an asset because, "It gives recognition to those students who come to school every day and work hard in their classes not just the sports stars." Dr. H. Douglas Williams explains that the funds, $400 annually, are used to recognize those who excel in a few subjects but may not necessarily be on the honor roll.

Most teachers side with Dr. Williams in the view of the program's worth, they feel that the program is designed to recognize those students in their classes that don't always get A+'s but work hard to understand the topic that is being studied.

While the mixed feelings, between the students and teachers, over the program may never be resolved, it seems that with administrative backing, the Students of Excellence program is here to stay.

College Creates Options

"College not only provides skill needed for success, but it shows prospective employers that the students has perseverance and dedication — two qualities necessary for success in the business world," claimed a local businessman.

College is truly important; and it seemed that the students of Northrop High School knew it. Seventy-three percent of the Bruins go on to school after Northrop: 49% to a four year college program, 7% to a two-year college program, and 17% to a trade or technical school.

"I want to go to college because I don't want to flip burgers all my life"
— Shannon Hagerly, junior

This compares to a 50% total nationwide.

Northrop's students feel that college will be serious, not just fun and games. "I'm getting most of my partying out in high school so when I'm down at Ball State University I can concentrate on my communications major," commented Sean McGann.

"I'm going for an education, too," claimed Senior Steve Rigsby. "College is to further advance my education, not just party."

Mr. Tom Gordon, senior counselor, says that he tries to get every student at Northrop into a college. Even if the student cannot be accepted to his/her first choice for a college, Gordon says that he can get everyone into some college.

"The two major problems of today for college enrollment that the students claim are money and grades," says Gordon. "Indiana-Purdue Fort Wayne is inexpensive — not only are the classes (inexpensive), but students can live at home and not pay for room and board. Most students can also get some sort of scholarship: for grades, sports, or whatever."

Other sources of money for college are guaranteed student loans programs, sponsored by the government and co-op programs. The student loans are set up so students do not have to begin paying back the money until their education is complete. Co-op programs work by having a student attend college for two years and then work for one year, for example, at a work place in cooperation with the college.

Grades can also be overcome. Gordon says that many students have gone on to post-high school education with straight D's. There is no guarantee of not flunking out, though.

We have all heard our teachers give the "You Won't Be Able to Get Away With That in College" speech, but it is true. "It's the first time the students are away from home and they can make their own right or wrong decisions. Also, the instructors merely present the material and it is entirely up to the student to research and take advantage of it," explained former college professor Mr. Robert Lovell.

Though most Bruins who go to college enter an Indiana one, no Indiana college and only one Big Ten college are in the top ten academically, according to U.S. News and World Report. Those ten are: (1) Stanford; (2) Harvard; (3) Yale; (4) Princeton; (5) University of California, Berkeley; (6) Dartmouth; (7) Duke; (8) University of Chicago and University of Michigan, Ann Arbor; (10) Brown. The University of Illinois at Champaign ranks number eleven, but no other Big Ten schools rate in the top twenty-five.

Although Northrop has about the same number of college entrants per year, Gordon

Fashion hits the Fort in style

Fashion changed dramatically in the 1987-88 school year. We saw an "uplift" of hemlines. Skirts got shorter and to accentuate the revisited length of the sixties and early seventies sweaters also took form getting shorter and shaplier.

Color plunged toward the earth tones highlighting a lot of olive green, mustard and coco brown mixed with pastel shades of cream, peach, yellow, and dusty rose for spring. The neons and bright attire became passe (it was time) and simplicity became a key factor.

Accessories were kept to a minimum sticking with the traditional metals of gold and silver. The plastic "SWATCH" of the early eighties disappeared and was replaced with leather and gold watches bearing resemblance to grandfather with

"Arsenio Hall is totally spinach. I love his outrageous behavior and his wicked clothes." — Della Kirkman and Paulma Grunden, sophomores their roman numerals and astrological scenes. Pearls and classic jewelry had a revival, it became obvious that plastic and detailed was not and simple and classic was haute.

We saw the death of the paisley (except for in men's ties and pajamas) and stripes — don't worry give it five years it will return. Patterns were minimized to that of necessity and fabrics to that of expensive.

Although fashion didn't do anything wild (except raise the hemline) this year was a milestone for it set fashion back at base one allowing designers to once again dream up ideas in day-glo colors.

— Karin Rittenberg

When asked who they felt was the most fashionable person of 1987, this is what the students at Northrop had to say.

Michelle Kivi, senior: "Bruce Willis — he's so casual, but he's still so hip."

Angi Scott, sophomore: "Lisa Bonet — she's so awesome, she's cool, and she shows her personality and originality in her clothes."

Chad Becker, junior: "Mr. Keim — I like his blend. Western with modern."

Eric Henricks, sophomore: "Lead singer from Def Leppard — he's pret-

You can always spot them at school, blood shot eyes, sometimes asleep during school, usually hard of hearing for the day. They often display t-shirts with slogans such as "kick", "Hysteria Tour '87". Yes, yes, this is the concert goer, the people doctors say will be deaf by the time they're 25.

Even with elevating ticket prices today's music scene is alive and happening in Fort Wayne. An estimated $1,120,000 were spent on ticket sales alone last year.

Rockers in Fort Wayne had a wide variety of acts to see. Everything from funky pop sounds of INXS to the heavy metal sounds of Kiss.

1988 looks to be an even bigger year for Fort Wayne concert goers. These following reviews are over some of the biggest and most discussed shows to come to our area in 1987; U2, INXS, Def Leppard, Aerosmith, and Kiss.

— Dave Witte and Sean McGann

It was nine o'clock as I stood on the edge of my row G seat. The wait was over, as I saw INXS enter the stage. A vision I have always wanted to see.
From the opening number through the two encores, I never rested once, neither did anyone else. As I looked around, energy was everywhere. Cops had to tell me and others to stop dancing in the isles. My thanks goes to INXS, you were the gift that Fort Wayne youths needed.
— Steve Rigby

The beginning of the end of the Christmas season began with a bang when Kiss and Ted Nugent came to town.

Kiss, as usual, had one of the largest and most decorative stages yet. The set contained old classics like "Detroit Rock City" and "Love Gun", to newer ones like "Crazy, Crazy, Crazy Nights" and a remake of Led Zeppelin's "Whole Lotta Love." All this was laced with fire, bombs, lights, the giant Kiss sign, and approximately 120 decibels.

Def Leppard — To make their show memorable they put it in the center of the Coliseum. Throughout the show the band played many of their hits both new and old including: "Animal", "Photograph", and "Rock of Ages". The band featured one armed drummer Rick Allen in the center of the stage constantly rotating. The rest of the band moved around giving everyone a good view of the band.

As if having a stage in the center wasn't enough the band also made use of lasers by making images of their new album and Marilyn Monroe on 2 large screens. — Dave Witte Aerosmith — Aerosmith came back this year with Permanent Vacation, their biggest selling album in some time. The supporting concert was a spectacle of music and activity with the new "clean" Steven Tyler running around like a crazed lunatic while singing tunes like: "Dude" (looks like a lady) and "Dream On".

Part of Aerosmith's regained popularity is due to their newest hit "Dude" (Looks Like a Lady). The band performed a stomping rendition of the song bringing the crowd to its feet. — Dave Witte

U2 — From shaky start to powerful finish, U2's two hour performance at the Hoosier Dome introduced the band, for the first time, to Indiana soil. A taped introduction announced the first number, "Where the Streets Have No Name", with the band members taking their positions quickly; drummer Larry Mullen and bassist Adam Clayton established the beat, guitarist Edge and vocalist Bono steered the band's melodic course. Creating the band's trademark rhythms, Edge rocked slowly from the waist, but all eyes were on Bono. — Sean McGann

"A week on an isolated island with gorgeous dudes and my best acquaintances." — Michelle Davis

Getting tired of the same old thing? Does the ever too loud alarm fail to phase you in the morning? Maybe you need some time off, someplace warm and comfortable. You need something to escape the everyday ho-hum-dull-drum, you need a vacation.

But where would people really like to go? Most responses were toward a warm climate, with the few exceptions such as Mark Kerr's ideal trip to Pluto for sightseeing.

Dawn Miller would like to go "Carribean diving with any available surfer dudes." This response seems to be a fairly reasonable dream, so watch out Carribean surfers. Along the same lines, Marge O'Connel desires to "bronze her body on the shores of Jamaica."

Now for the wild side, Senior Steve Manos said "a week in the Bahama's with an unlimited supply of Dew would be quite nice."

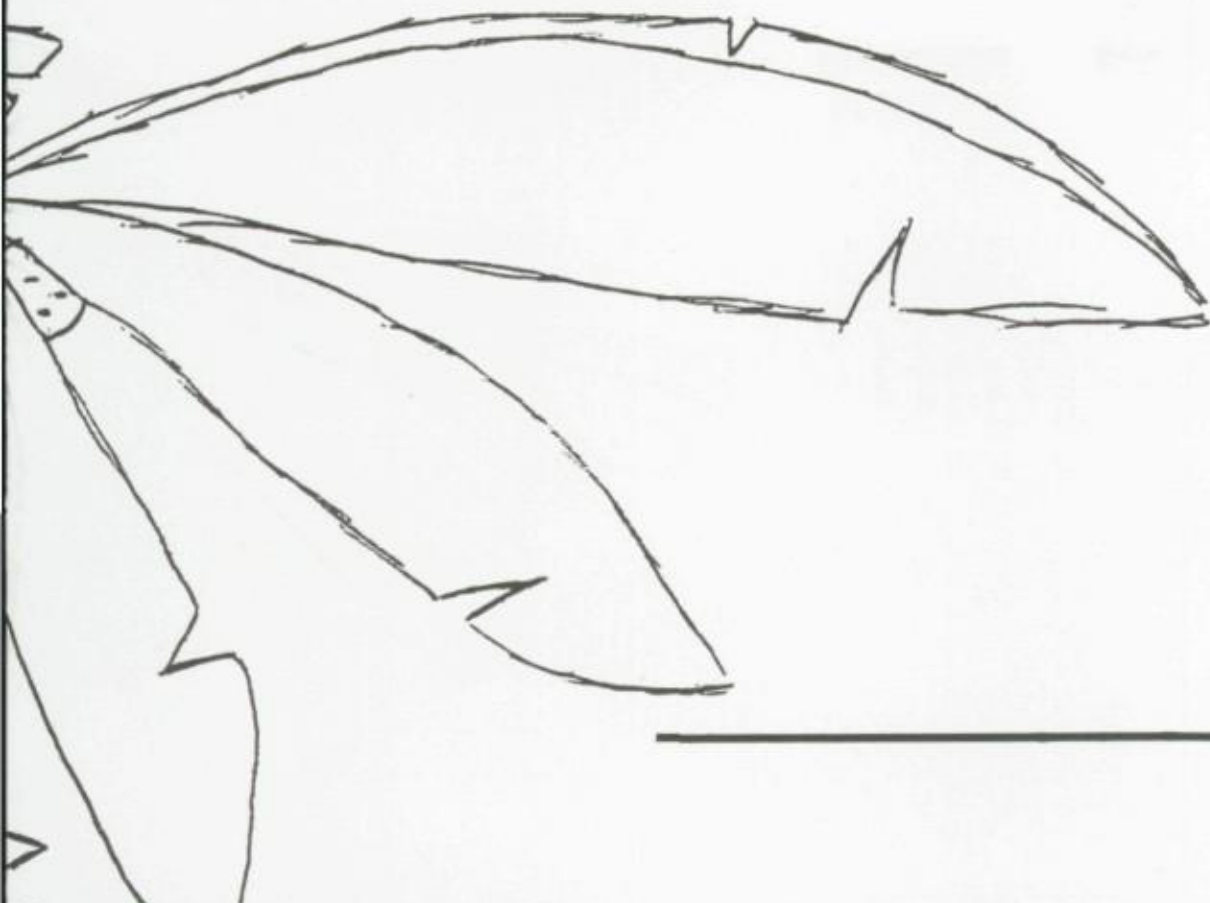

Some of our fellow comrads have quite a "different" idea of the perfect vacation. Matt Roberts hopes to travel to Lithuania to check out the female shot putters.

So how about you? Are you up for Lithuaniaian shot putters? Or sightseeing on Pluto? Maybe you just like the home life and prefer to stay in Fort Wayne. Or maybe, just maybe, your like Chad Achbacher and want to "spend two weeks in St. Thomas, with recreational supplies, and women at your side."

Those Strange Talents

Ear wiggling; "Anyone can do it, you just have to move your cheeks," said Senior Angie Glentzer. photo/Tami Clark

What do people do when they want to create a scene, at say McDonalds? Some people just become loud and rude, but others are more creative.

In a school the size of Northrop, people with odd talents tend to show up, and at Northrop they do show up. Take for example the kid who blows spit bubbles off his tongue or The Living Pretzel who can put his legs behind his head, and drive a car.

There are others too, poms who do things that just have to be seen to believe, along with those who cross their eyes, touch their nose with their tongue, and a host of others.

To many some of these people may seem obnoxious, but these creative abilities can and do serve a purpose; to make us laugh, and a laugh is one of the greatest pleasures on earth.

One Final Word . . .

Well . . . this is it, Northrop's first-ever Pinnacle. In case you're still unclear on what "pinnacle" means, let us explain. Pinnacle is the "supreme best", and that's what this publication was about — the supreme best of the students of Northrop. We covered everything from the way students talk to the activities they liked or disliked. When coming up with ideas for the Pinnacle we tried to cover many aspects of the lives of students at Northrop, and to find the little things that may not be remembered in years to come. We hope this is enjoyed by the readers as much as we enjoyed creating it (except for a few missed photos). A special thanks to Mrs. Kruger for the creative freedom we were given.

That's ALL Folks!

*Students, teachers, administrators
come together to make it work*

People — that's what makes it all work. The students, the teachers, the administrators, and every other person who puts their eight hours in at Northrop nine months out of the year contribute to Northrop's success. None could exist without the others. They all come together to form Northrop High School.

The students make up the majority. They come to high school to get an education but they leave with much, much more. As graduates they not only have an education but also have experiences that will last them a lifetime. Perhaps the most important things students will leave with though are the friendships they have formed over four years.

Friends are what makes high school bearable. Someone to talk with between classes, eat lunch with and generally be seen with is what high school friendships are about. What would high school be like without your best friends? It's too scary to think about. So go on, turn the page and find all of those special people who are called 'friend'.

These same people also give something to Northrop in return. They give Northrop the winning records, reputations, and honors it is known for. These are the people who help to make NHS the best it can be.

hallway. With the Winter Semi-Formal they had to do the decorations, hire a disc jockey, sell tickets, and much more. The theme had to be decided. To make a dance work successfully you have to have the students show up. They had to go through all the preparation for the MORP. Both of those dances had to have a special touch.

Along with this they also have several other responsibilities. These included deciding on where to take the class trip, holding an election to decide senior superlatives, and also coming up with the class motto.

But even before all of the work of the job starts, the officers must first work to be elected. In a class of 512 people, getting a majority of people to vote for the same person is hard. The people who finally make it are those who were persistent and worked hard to get every vote.

We're Finally Seniors

"WE'RE FINALLY SENIORS!" was the statement of September. School had begun and we had finally reached the exciting level of being a senior, and the downfall of ending our high school years. Many seniors had mixed feelings as we moved toward graduation, although some of them know exactly what their feelings are. Dawn Rice said, "I've enjoyed my high school years and I'm sure I will miss my friends, but I'm looking forward to achieving the goals I've set for myself after high school."

Graduation is a hard fact to realize for Danielle Brown, but she is not the only one, "It hasn't really hit me yet that shortly I'll be graduating from an environment I've grown used to. It's really scary to think about the future, but the excitement exceeds it all!"

Some people have no fears of graduation and know exactly what they want. Lisa Rash has no fears about graduation, "I'm really excited about graduating although I know I'll miss all my friends, but the thought of college and a career makes me extremely ambitious to get out on my own."

Stacey Stuckey feels that "Graduation is something we all have been working for, and now that it is here I'm glad to get out and go on with my life, college, etc. But I will miss my friends."

So as we, the class of 1988 leave the security within the walls of Northrop High School I am sure that whatever our dreams are, wherever our hopes lie, we will all succeed.

Two Earn Recognition

Northrop is very happy to honor Meg Brown and Mike Braun, who scored very high on their PSAT tests which are given to juniors. They scored so well that they now have the opportunity to represent Northrop as National Merit Scholarship finalists. The national recognition for this competition is given to approximately fifteen thousand students out of over twenty-six million students who take the PSAT. Meg and Mike had the honor of competing for the scholarship last year. The judges decisions are based on academic records, self-descriptions and information about "extra" activities that they are involved in. Another factor included in the decision are their educational goals and interests.

The semi-finalists who show the strongest variety of abilities for qualities needed for success, leadership and personal accomplishments will have the best chance.

Brown was involved in such activities as Student Council, tennis, the fall play and the spring musical. She was a class officer and she works part-time at Parkview Hospital.

While Braun was not involved in so many school-related activities, he had a part-time job at a local law firm and worked very hard on his family's farm.

The Best and Worst of Northrop

With 2200 students, crowded hallways, and long lunch lines, it's easy to come up with some complaints about Northrop High School. Many students spend the bulk of their stay at Northrop complaining about one thing or another.

One major problem Senior Tami Clark came up with was the lack of soap in the bathrooms. She said, "How do they expect us to wash our hands without any soap?"

Senior Matt Roberts cites, "the abusive and vindictive language of the Saturday school supervisors" as his biggest complaint.

But Senior Kurlie Hitchcock summed it up by simply saying, "we just don't have enough freedom."

Even though these people came up with valid complaints, they also found some good things to say about Northrop. Tami Clark says, "having a large sampling of electives to broaden people's horizons" makes Northrop one of the best academic schools in the city. Along the same lines, Kurlie Hitchcock says that "having strong student-teacher relationships" make Northrop the great place it is.

But Senior Jenny Welsh said what every woman in the building has probably thought at one time or another. She said the best thing about Northrop is, "being greeted in the morning by the most handsome and the best dressed principal in the state."

My Homework? Well . . .

Homework. The thing most students think teachers developed to torture them.

Most students have devised excuses to cover up the fact that they have not done it. Of course, the older the student, the more excuses they have. Seniors, being the oldest high school students are the best people to interview for excuses. Senior Dave Johnson had several original excuses. He said that one of his most successful excuses was, "my dog is paper trained and . . ." but his fantasy excuse was, "I was driving down the road with my window open and I hit a deer. The force from impact made my homework fly out of the window."

Wendy Ford, senior said that honesty is the best policy and she just tells her teachers "I didn't do it."

Other excuses vary from "I left my books at school" to "my dad used it to start a fire in the fireplace".

Athletes use their particular sport as an excuse. One basketball player says she uses, "I had two games this week and practice in between." Most excuses do not work because the teachers have heard them all before. But every once in a while a student gets lucky and gets a teacher who has a good sense of humor and lets him off the hook.

WHAT DO YOU THINK?

What do we, as teen-agers, think about dating, current issues, and our parents? That is what the "Bear Tracks" staff wanted to find out. Here are some of the questions we asked and the responses received.

Q: How do you feel about girls asking guys out?

A: The answers were unanimous: it's fine. The girls all mentioned that if they ask, they will pay the bill, while the guys really liked the idea. One male said, "It's nice to not have to worry about the 'Big R' (rejection)", while another male summed up his attitude in one word, "Perfect".

Q: How do you feel about going out with someone older or younger than yourself?

A: Most people agreed that personality is more important than age. In general, guys had no preference, but females preferred their dates to be older.

Q: When is your curfew? Your dates?

A: Generally, the time were between 10-11 pm on weekdays and between 12 pm-1 am on weekends. Males usually had no curfews, while females did. Hmmm . . .

Q: When was your first kiss?

A: The youngest answer was in the fourth grade, while the oldest was in the Sophomore year. Usually people had their first real kiss in either their Freshman or Sophomore year.

Q: Have you ever had a serious relationship?

A: Most people said they have had a serious relationship, lasting anywhere from four months to a year or more.

Q: What was your worst experience on a date?

A: Most people chose not to answer this question, but there were some interesting responses, such as, "She forgot to come.", "My mom found me at this one guys house", and "He was just so loving!"

Q: Do you feel more comfortable around a group of people with your date, or do you have to be alone?

A: Everyone seemed to feel that both aspects were needed, 50/50.

IT IS SO HUGE!

Psst, who's that? I don't know, she must be new here.

Sound familiar? It should, this is a typical first-day-of-school remark. It happens all the time, especially at a large school in a high growth rate area.

People most surprised by our wonderful school are those that come from a smaller school. Brian Ferry, originally from Garrett, felt Northrop was "freaky, surprising because of all the people". Marge O'Connell stated, "I moved here from a really small school and I was so afraid because Northrop was so huge."

Freshmen are usually the most worried because high school differs greatly from middle school. The main scare of freshmen is best stated by Kelly Ferro, "I was afraid of getting lost."

Now what about after a new person becomes acquainted with the school. Do they like it here? "I love it here! It's so much more alive than DeKalb," said Della Kirkman.

— Dave Witte

A few freshmen were asked what their impressions of Northrop were:

Brandon Wilson: "It was fun. I felt nervous because I didn't know what was going to happen and I thought that I was going to get lost."

Mark Widmann: "It's big."

Shannon Winter: "Kinda scary, everybody was bigger. It was kind of boring and dull for the first couple of days."

Jamie Arnold: "It was okay. It was big but I liked Shawnee better."

The Re-Occurring Plague

Each September a recurring plague hits Northrop High School. It's called "Freshmen". Freshmen are (in the opinion of upperclassmen) ugly and obnoxious lower life forms.

Actually, from a freshman's view point, Northrop is a huge and terrifying place, where one wrong move could send you into intensive care.

Most freshmen came to Northrop last fall with fears. The most common fears were getting lost, making new friends, or being ridiculed by upperclassmen. Also, many freshmen were afraid of trying out for teams or joining clubs.

"I was scared I wouldn't make the volleyball team," said Nina Allgier. Some freshmen were afraid of being beat up. As Chad Roop said, "My theory was if you get lost, you get beat up."

Upperclassmen didn't help to relieve freshmen's fears, either. Juan Billingsly said, "Older kids told me to go to the wrong places when I asked for directions."

Although they may have seemed like parasites last September, the freshman aren't too bad now, are they? Well, maybe.

Battle of the Bulge

Friday, May 6 was the date when Northrop's muscle men and women took the stage in the third annual Mr. Northrop contest.

The contest, hosted by Mr. Ernie Bojrab, was a success, as spectators jammed the auditorium in order to witness the contest.

The evening started with a little music provided by DJ Mr. Terry Burton. The pom pon squad then helped introduce the contestants with a dance routine. Next came the competitions.

The Miss division came first. After opening comparisons were made the field was narrowed to three: Lola Young, Michelle Davis, and Laura Thoma. Modified comparisons between these three proved that Young was to be crowned 1988 Miss Northrop. Following Young were Davis, in second, and Thoma, in third.

The Men's division was divided into three categories: Short, Medium, and Tall. Winners from each division then went on to take place in the overall Mr. Northrop contest. The winners, Matt Hamlin from the short division, Jermaine Brooks from the medium, and Tim Clark from the tall, then took the stage for one final battle of the bulge. In the end, Clark was named 1988 Mr. Northrop.

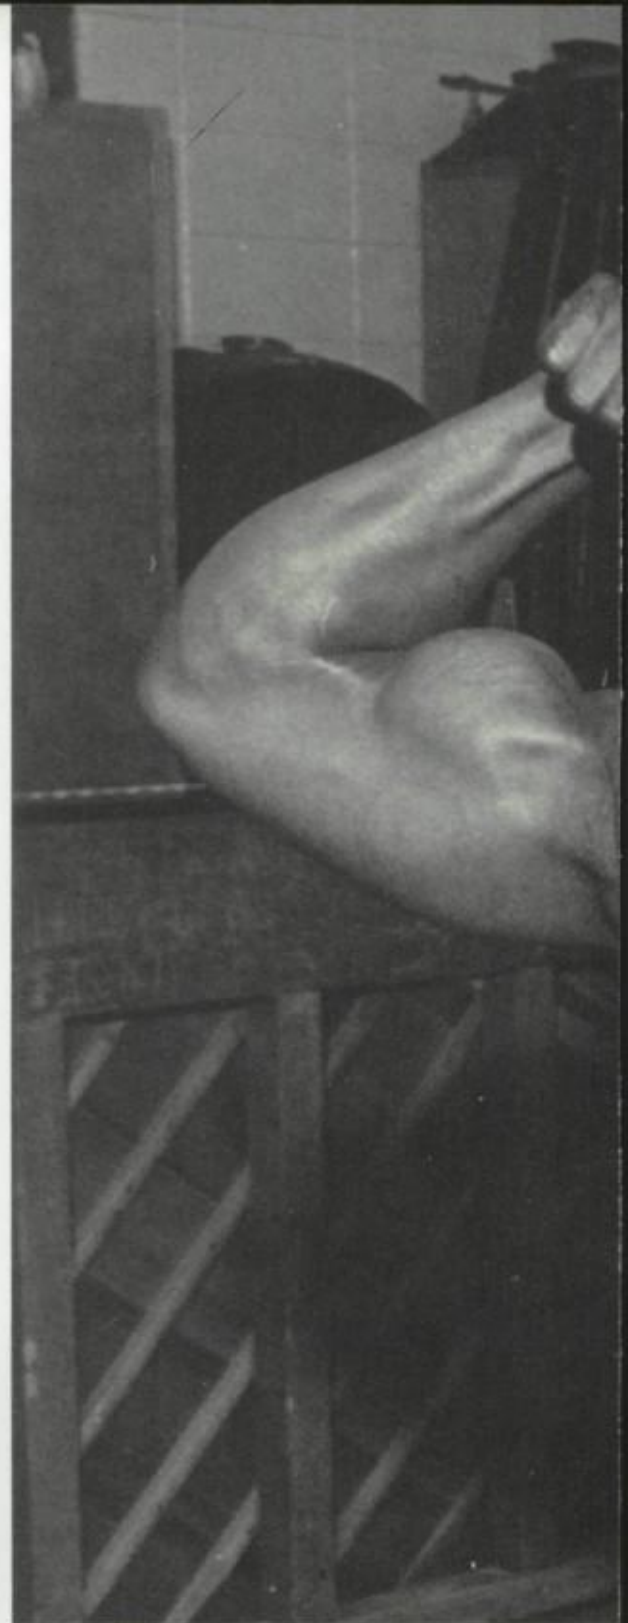

Judges in the contest were Angie Terry, Robin Thompson, and Butch Fairchild, all of whom are body builders themselves, Terry, the reigning Miss Ball State, performed after the contest.

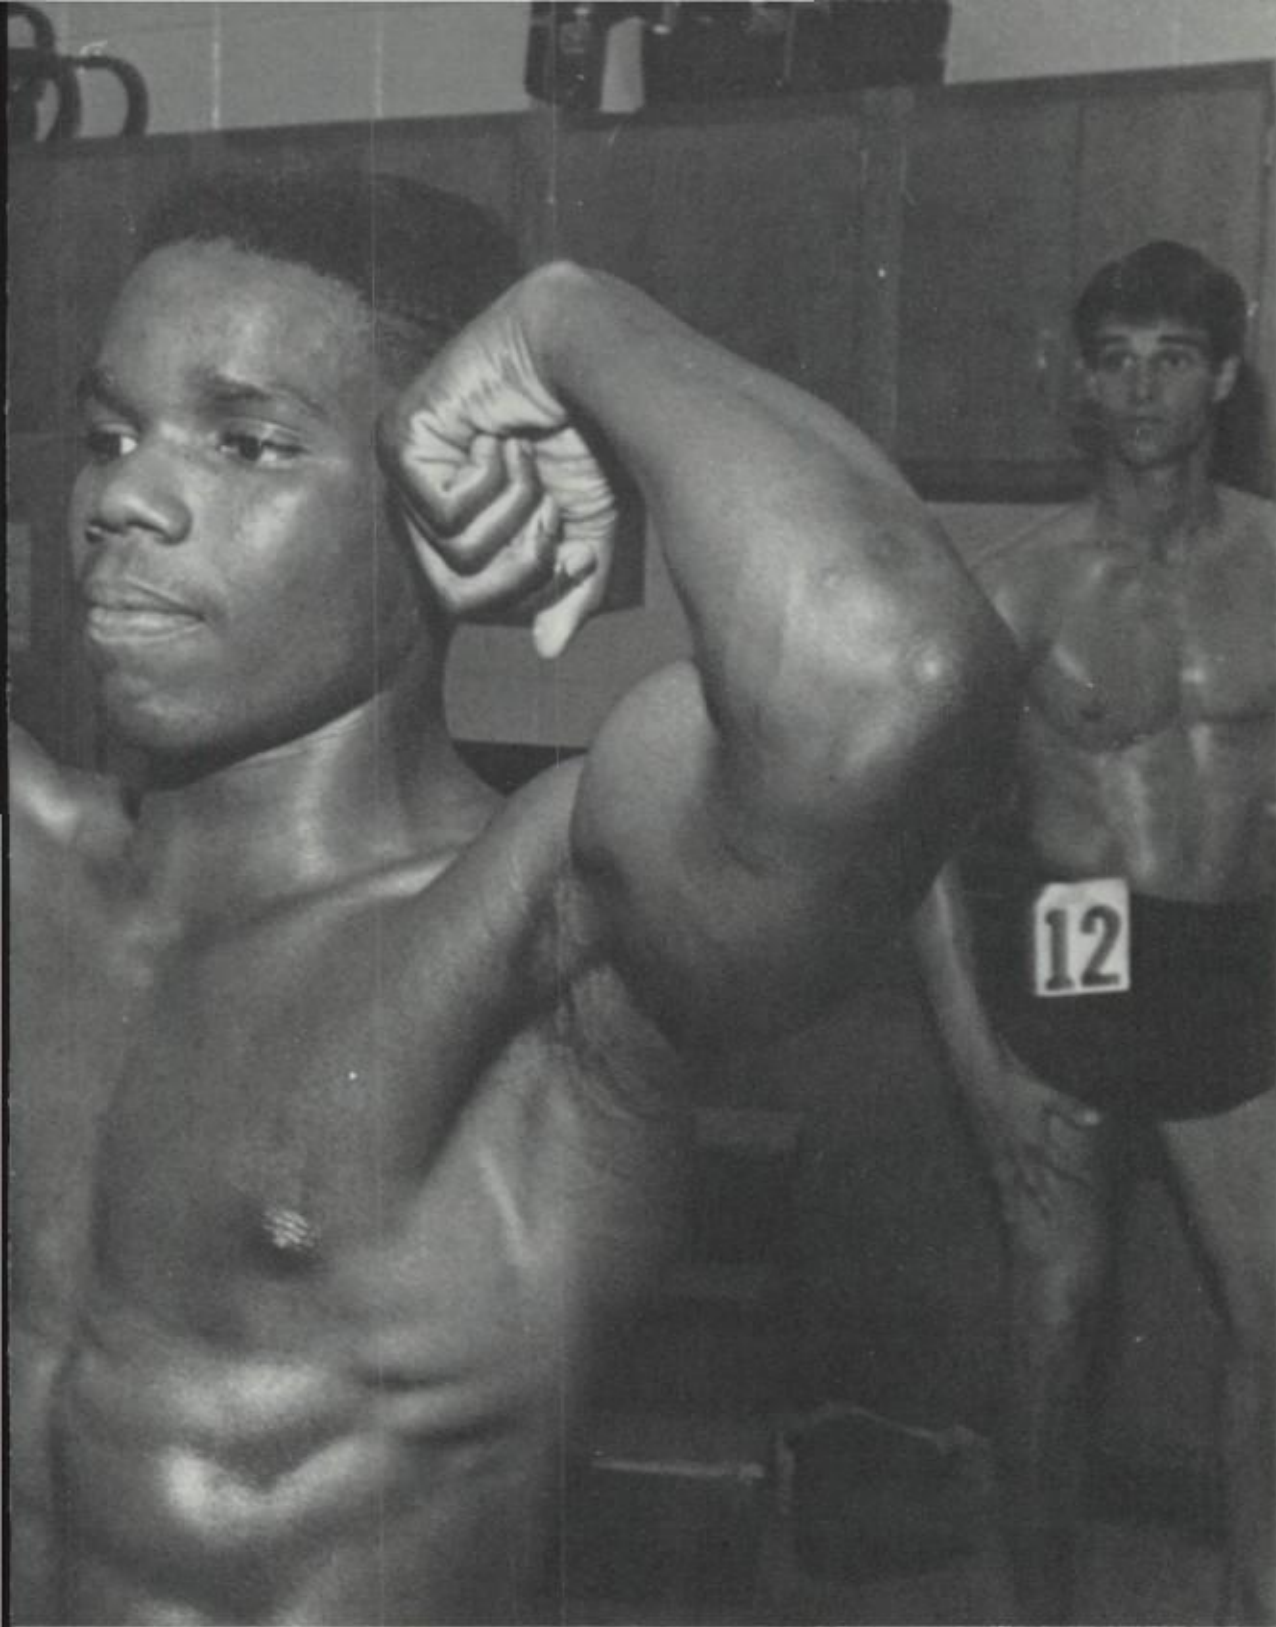

The 1988 contest was, according to Mr. Bojrab, "The best competition we've had so far."

Special Teacher

When a teacher can speak about her job with as much enthusiasm as when she talks about her summer trip to Hawaii, you know she is either crazy or a strong candidate for Indiana Teacher of the Year.

Stephanie Bourne, a special education teacher at Northrop, who is quite sane, can do just that. And that is just one reason she was chosen Fort Wayne Community Schools' nominee for Teacher of the Year.

"I really love my job," she said. "This is exactly where I want to be."

Bourne is an excellent teacher who covers her topics well, but her efforts go far beyond the call of duty. While she feels classroom learning is important, Bourne believes special education students should get other learning opportunities.

"We do a lot of extras for the kids besides academics," she said. "This has given our department a real good reputation."

The nomination for Bourne has brought mixed emotions.

"I guess I was surprised," she said, "but I was also very honored. It's kind of fun because I'm getting cards and letters from people I don't even know."

Fear of Flying

Flying is one of the most common fears in America, and not totally unjustified considering the number of air traffic accidents that have been revealed lately. But luckily there are some people who find what is feared by many to be exhilarating and fun. For these people Mr. Daniel Tannas offers an Aeronautics class here at Northrop.

Besides learning about flying it teaches a great deal of responsibility. "Mature judgement and good sense are required," states Tannas. "You can't go out there and just fly. You have to realize the dangers involved by taking on this or any responsibility! You need to know what you are doing because you could really endanger your life or the life of another human being."

The aeronautics class here at Northrop can help you if you decide to pursue a desire to learn about airplanes and responsibility.

Tannas gives the flight part of the test to someone wanting to get an Aeronautics license. He gives tests for private and commercial licenses, and flight instructions.

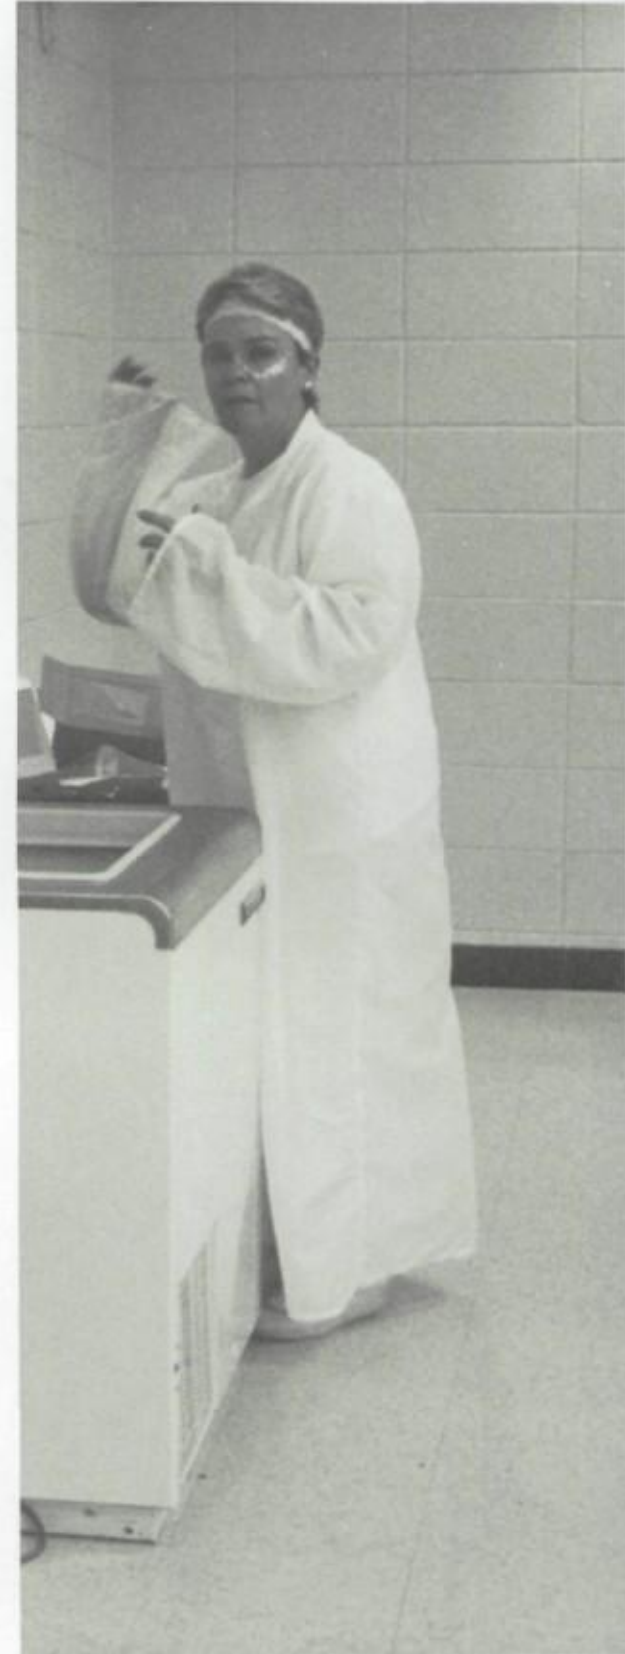

Aeronautics is a chance for many to be influenced not only in flying but in capacity.

Physical Fitness Helps the Mind

"Physical activity makes the mind clearer — an emotional accomplishment." Mrs. Betty Jo Harper a teacher and also a friend to many here at Northrop gives this basic outlook of life in general.

You might have seen her roller skating through the school in the afternoons. Besides this she likes to bicycle at least twenty-five miles a day, weather permitting. Harper has participated in several races, some of which include two triathalons and a Run Jane Run.

She finds that you should do something for yourself, and at a level that you can handle. It can help enjoy life, but most importantly it helps you feel good about yourself.

A certain amount of fitness should be maintained whether it be bicycling, walking, or any other physical hobby. It helps you keep that "young" feeling inside, with a glow of pride on the outside — besides helping you keep looking fit. So if you see someone skating through the halls, be able to tell her that you took her advice, and that you started to improve yourself; both physically and emotionally!

O

ur futures

the beginning of tomorrow
starts today —
study

It is the reason we attend Northrop High School nine months out of the year — academics. Endless assignments, frustrating research papers, and guaranteed tests on Fridays are all a part of the Northrop academic curriculum.

But the excellence of the education at Northrop cannot be denied. Each and every Bruin can name a favorite teacher who gave them special help and understanding when they were struggling with a new concept or a favorite class which taught them something new or made them think in a different way. Our faculty at Northrop consists of dedicated teachers, who take pride in their students' work and share in their disappointments and successes.

Northrop's academic program provides us with needed skills such as notetaking, listening, and learning how to study. At Northrop we are offered strong college preparatory classes which prepare us for the demanding challenges we will face in college. But despite the many challenging courses and the many enthusiastic teachers, many of us found the time throughout the school year to write notes, paint nails, do homework for other classes, and of course catch up on some hours of sleep missed the night before.

Yes, we've all complained of unfair grading scales and tests bordering, in our opinion, on child abuse, but we all must admit — the education offered at Northrop High School is nothing but the best.

O pportunity

for the future*

R.V.S. and vocational classes offer an opportunity for students who wish to work after school, or graduation, to have a meaningful work experience. It also offers a learning opportunity for college bound students.

The Regional Vocational School is located at 1200 South Barr Street. R.V.S. offers students the opportunity to prepare themselves for the future in the career of their choice or just to get a better education.

Juniors and seniors attend R.V.S. on a half-day basis. The first year, for juniors, attend classroom, lab and worksites. Seniors can have on-the-job experience with pay while earning a total of six credits.

If students go to R.V.S. in the morning they only have to take 2 required classes and if they go to the evening class they are required to take three classes.

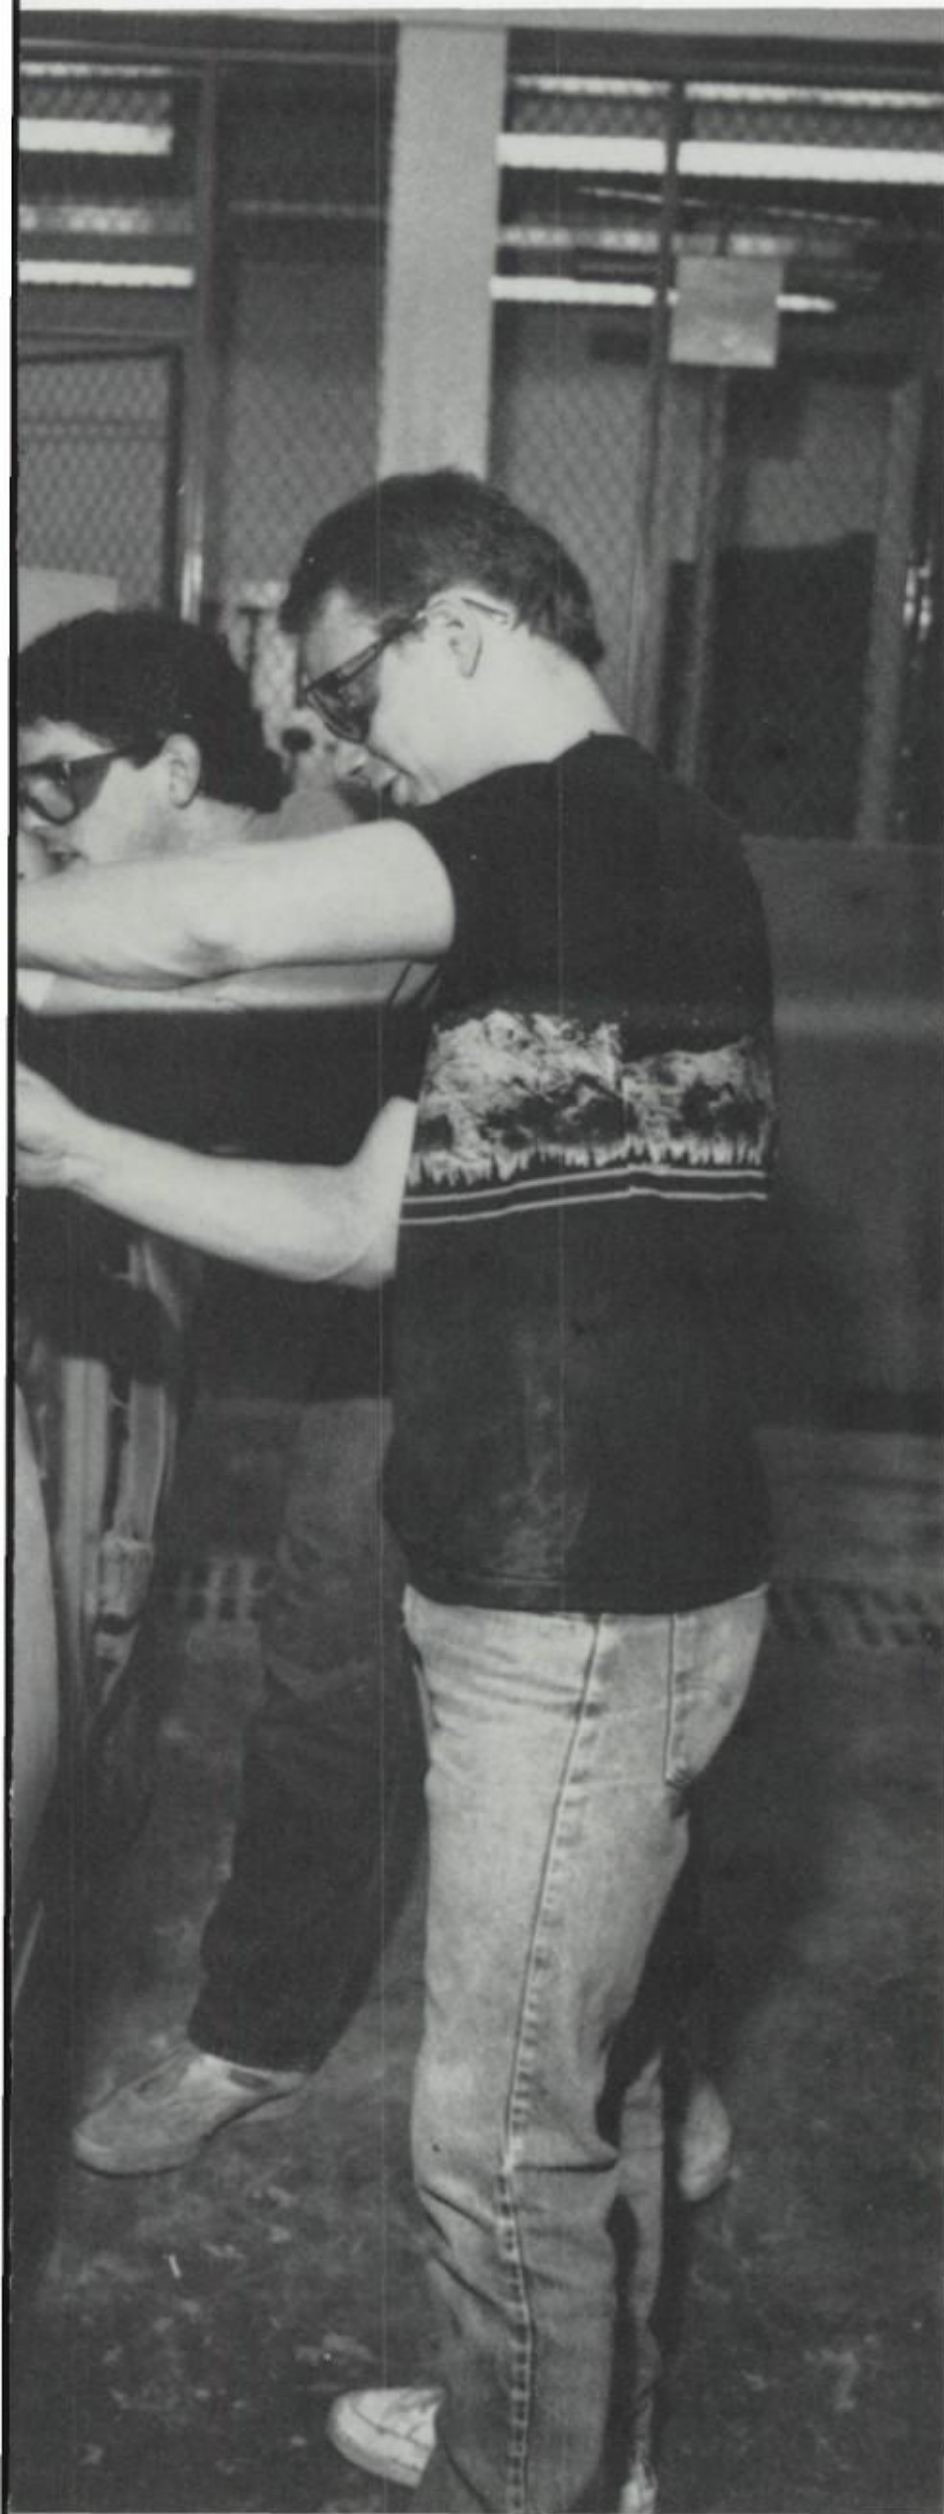

During the second year R.V.S. students may participate in the co-op program. These students are placed in jobs. They work for wages, receive three credits each semester and grades. After graduation they may continue working for the same employer.

There are eleven departments, each provide 25 different programs. Some of them are Horticulture, Automotive Technology, Food Services, and even Cosmetology. There's a little bit of something for everyone.

Students who want to go to college will learn skills in R.V.S. that will help them in college.

Vocational classes are available at NHS in areas such as woods. These courses also help students develop useful skills.

Teachers strive for student involvement

Ever wonder why some people find history to be an interesting subject? Well, Balboa isn't all there is to history, take Ms. Butler's government and economic classes for instance.

This year, Butler introduced a new project to one of her classes. It involved students investing in the stock market. Unfortunately, they made their investment right before the market crashed. Although the decline of the market is bad news for the class, Butler feels, "there couldn't have been a better semester in the last fifty years to do a project like this."

Butler believes in "getting students active in their surroundings". Discussions dealing with controversial issues, constitution changes and civil rights serve as the basis for new steps taken in her government classes. Butler has found that interesting classes help to improve class participation.

Service work, lunch, home ec. offer students chance for learning while working and enjoying

What does lunch, home economics and service working have to do with one another? Easy! Each gives a student the opportunity to learn something while working or enjoying themselves.

Lunch provides students with a chance to spend time with friends without having a teacher call your attention back to the lesson at hand. It gives students a chance to walk around, to stretch, to consult other students about homework problems, and to eat.

But even with all lunch's fun there are times many students would rather forget. Lunch is an ideal time for "Those embarrassing moments" to happen — the room is crowded and most of the people know who you are. Charmaine Keller, freshman, remembers her worst cafeteria experience. "I was in a hurry to toss my lunch bag into the garbage and it hit a girl instead," she said.

Freshman Cory Scott commented, "I dropped a shake off my tray and it landed upside down on my foot."

It's not just freshmen who have bad experiences in the lunch room. "I was going to take my tray up and a bowl of mashed potatoes fell off the counter and got all over my clothes," said Senior Coleen Bush.

The cafeteria is not the only place to encounter food. Home economics classes provide students the opportunity to learn. Students plan and prepare meals. Not only do the students learn a great deal — their assignments taste great!

Another way to learn while having fun is to be a service worker. Students could work for individual teachers, for the guidance office, the media center or student services. Students perform a variety of tasks from answering the phone, to filing books, to delivering messages to typing.

B rains

Students, this past school year, seemed to use their heads. The academic learning at Northrop High School was at its best.

Creativity flourishes as one wanders down H hall, yet behind the noise of the band and the theatrics of Mr. Del Proctor's room in the depths of the H wing is the art department.

The art department, headed by Albert Jacquay, employs three dedicated teachers; Mr. Jacquay, Mr. Gene Porter and Ms. Denise Watkins, all who teach the variety of art classes.

The art department reaches further than H hall, just ask Mr. Porter. "Yeah, I'm stuck here in E hall with English classes," states the photography, commercial art, English teacher. Photography classes occur three times a day with the prerequisite of a 35mm camera. Hourly, Porter gives away his skills and talents in this area to eager students, impressed with the magic of picture taking.

While Mr. Porter has his hands full in E hall, Ms. Watkins and Mr. Jacquay handle the basic art training. Art classes at Northrop range from beginning to advanced and the projects differ accordingly from air brushing to sculpture, paint to pencil sketches: the spark is never lost. Through art history, classroom assignments and homework sketches each student is allowed to develop his own creative potential.

Jacquay believes that the goal of the department is to provide a positive "art experience" for each student. He claims that he's "been impressed with the quality of art students at Northrop," and feels that the students are "a creative and talented group". Overall the art department is growing, thriving and making an impact on the art students and Northrop as well.

C challenges

Bugs, plants, chemicals, numbers, squares and circles

You are now entering the wonderful world of science and math! Bugs, plants, chemicals, numbers, squares and circles will accompany you!

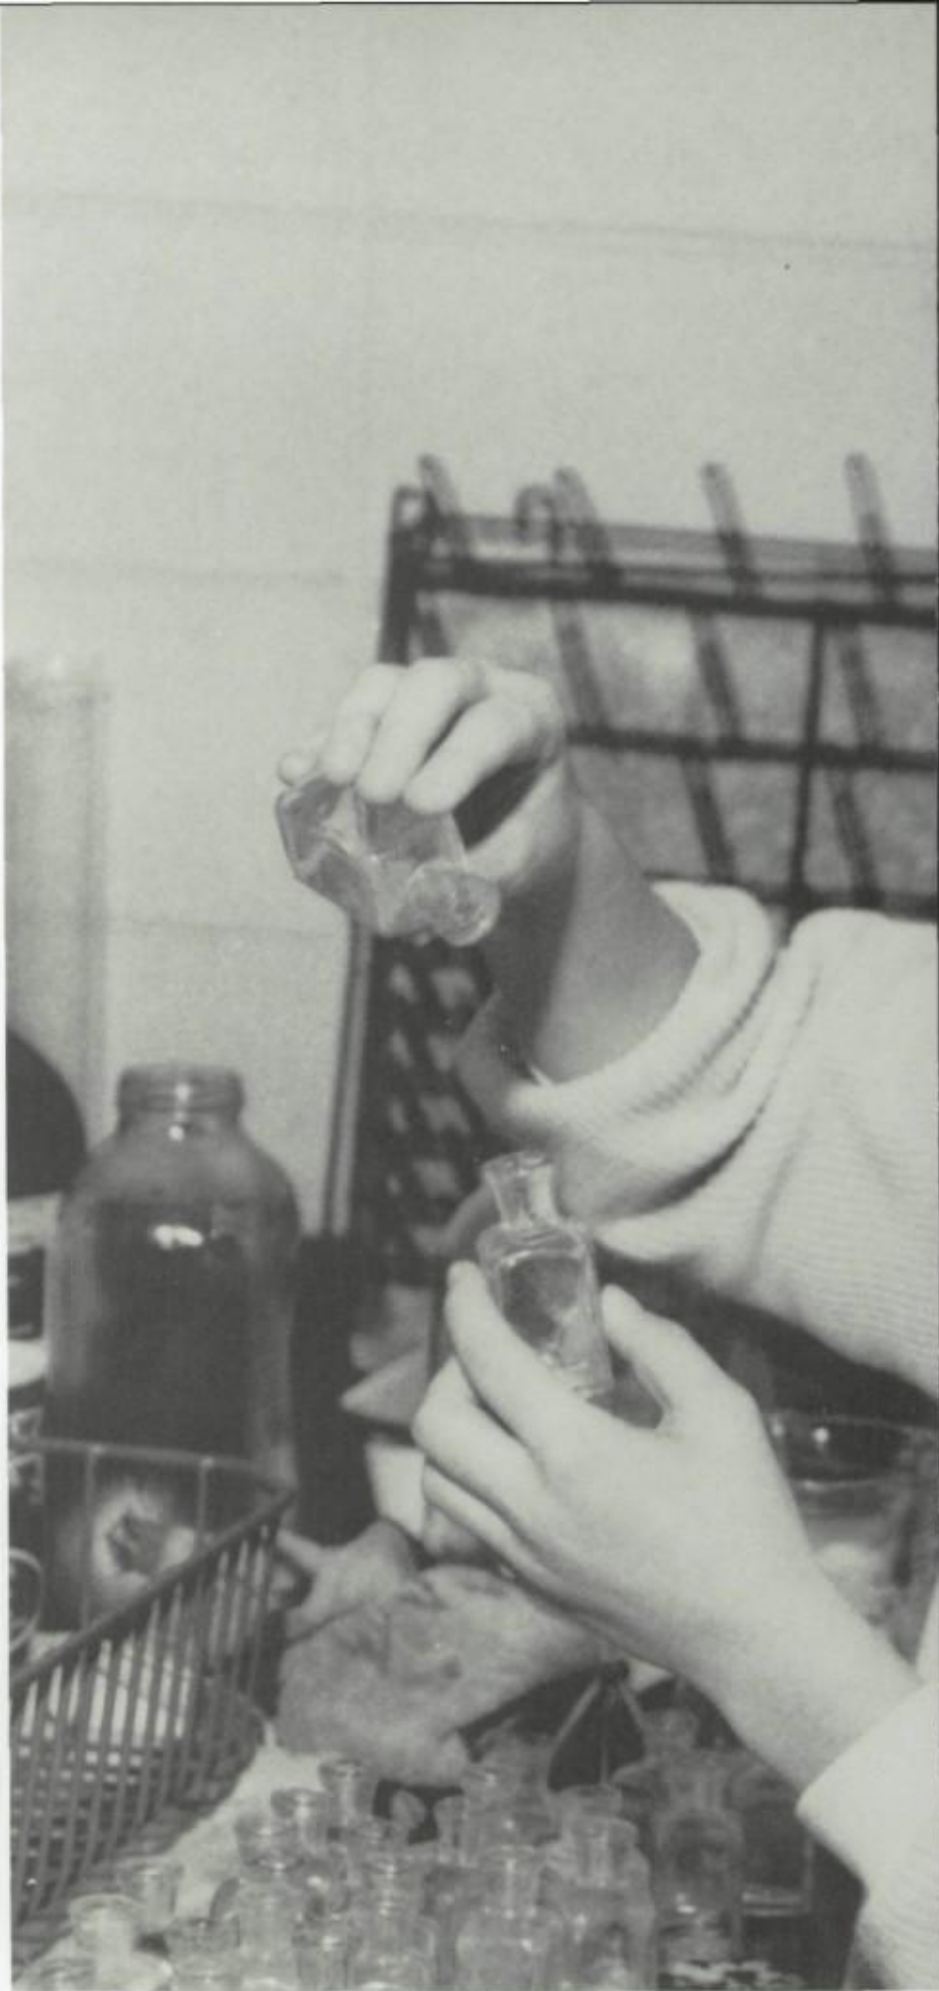

Science and math don't have to be just two more drudgery courses. Believe it or not, they can be fun, but they do require some work. You only get out of them what you put in.

Both of these courses teach you to use your mind. They present challenges that you will need to know how to overcome. Depending on what course you take, you can learn from all about stars, or how your body works, to the smallest creature's daily habits.

In math, although many students complain that they will never use what they learn in the more advanced courses, that is untrue. These courses will teach you logical thinking, which you will use in other aspects of your life.

Futures

Modern technology is taking over our lives, learning typing and computer skills is very important to all of our futures

"I really enjoy teaching typing. I enjoy a class where the students have a hands on experience. They are able to do something in class and are able to problem solve," said Mr. Buzz Doerffler. Mr. Doerffler has taught typing for eleven years.

Typing is an excellent class to take. Students need the skill whether they go to college or not. We now use computers everywhere, typing and other business classes give students the additional experience they need.

Many students don't seem to understand how much they can learn from the various business classes at Northrop. Accounting, Typing, Office Procedures, and many other business classes give you the learning and experience that you need for college.

Gym Class

The sound of whistles and the smell of sweat socks

If the sound of whistles blowing and tennis shoes screeching is in the air it's a safe bet a physical education class is near.

With puddles of sweat and the smell of stinky sweat socks present gym class, just like it always has been, it is work.

Contrary to popular belief people in physical education can have fun.

"It's challenging because we have to compete with the guys all the time," said Junior Cheryl Stone.

One reason the students have fun is there are many more activities to participate in in a high school gym class than there are in a middle school gym class.

There is a wide range of activities to students have participated in such as: archery, badminton, basketball, gymnastics, raquetball and volleyball.

"I enjoyed archery the most," Stone said, "it is a change of pace from the usual sports."

"Mr. Riley is the most special gym teacher at Northrop," Sophomore Della Kirkman said.

Whether it's because of the new high school surroundings or atmosphere students like the high school gym class.

Another reason for the student's enjoyment is the excess of and the quality of the equipment the students use.

High school gym classes also have much more discipline than a middle school gym class. The teachers try to build character and build young adults.

Participation is also different. A high school gym student is expected to give 100 percent effort during any activity.

"We have to participate, but it is still fun. We don't have to wear those ugly uniforms either," Kirkman said.

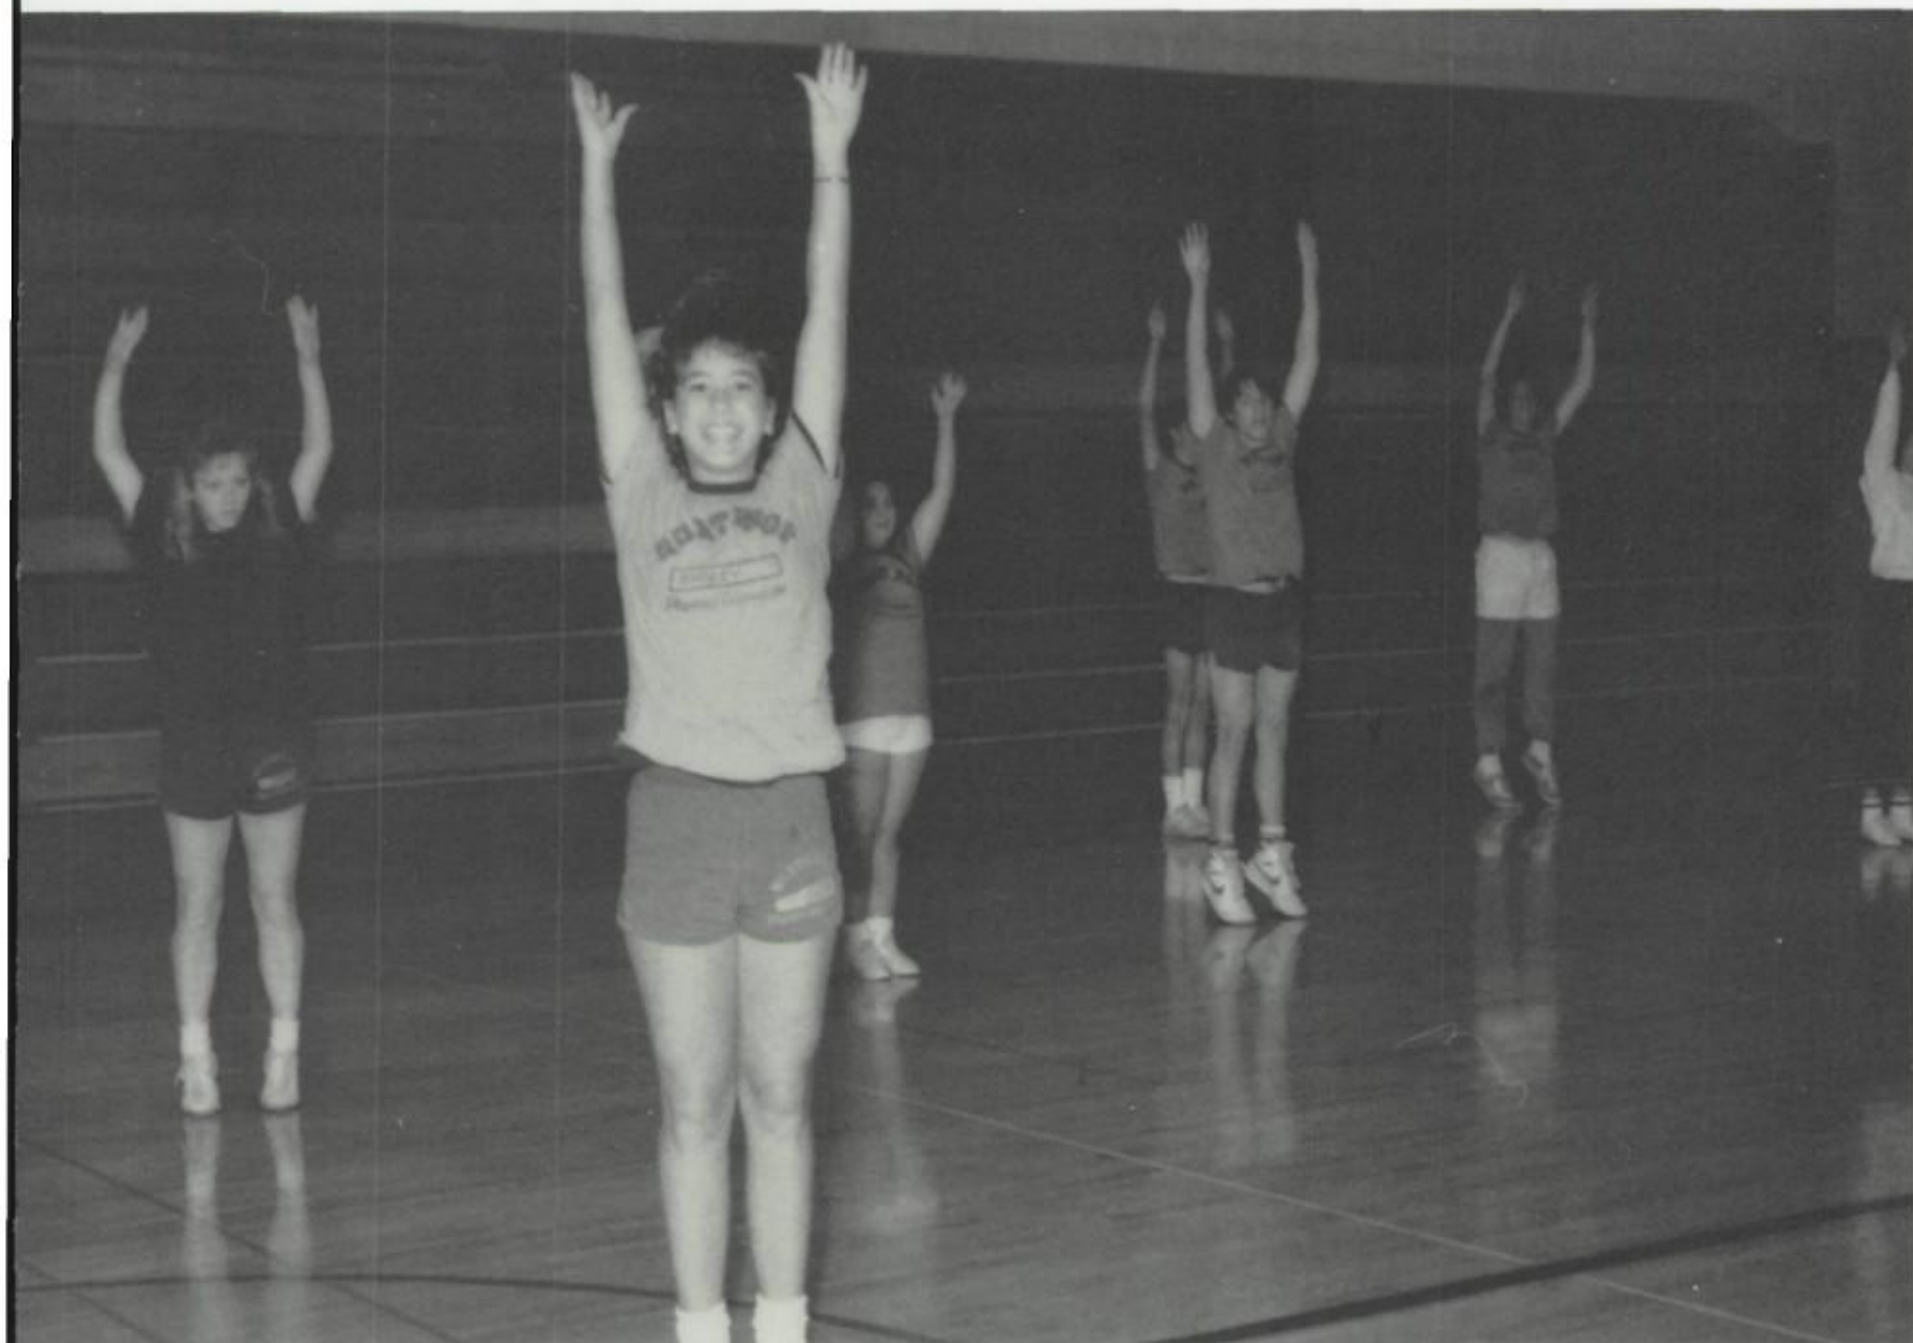

Even if the uniforms were ugly, the students would have fun.

Learning how to order lunch . . .

French, German, Latin, and Spanish are four classes at Northrop that teach more than just a foreign language; they teach culture, understanding, and mental discipline.

Many students sign-up for the reason that "colleges require it", but why do universities ask for it? Colleges ask for a foreign language because it gives a student the background they need for their future. And students appreciate it. "I received a rising interest in the French language," said Senior Amy Gehlert.

Latin, too, is offered, primarily for its foundation in other languages. "A basic understanding of other languages is what I got out of my Latin class," commented Sophomore Mike Workman.

Do the foreign language classes teach us useful knowledge, though? "If I went to France I could probably understand half of what people said," commented Junior Karen Kortenber, "and order my lunch."

"I could understand it well, if I had a dictionary," said Junior Laura Barlage.

English teachers must teach students how to communicate

The English Department at Northrop is obviously one of the best in Fort Wayne. Along with being one of the best comes responsibility. The majority of that responsibility falls on the teachers who, in turn, take it on with grace.

The Northrop English teachers have a special determination, different from all other teachers. They must teach their students communication that will last a life time, and help them to survive in this world.

"To teach students to be able to make judgements, evaluate ideas, and then write their ideas down clearly." This is one of the primary goals of Mrs. Laura Vanderlage. She feels a responsibility to give skills in thinking and writing.

Many teachers just feel that it is important to teach students how to communicate, and how to do it effectively.

"Enjoy life, live everyday to its fullest. Learn how to communicate," says Mrs. Ruth Hart. "I think people could make this world a better place if they could communicate better."

O utstanding

Northrop's performing arts groups continue winning tradition

One thing performing arts groups at Northrop have in common is talent. Another similarity is winning tradition. All performing arts groups are among the best in Fort Wayne and some in the state. For example, Charisma, the Northrop swing choir, is one of the best in the city. The group has won many awards and has been asked to perform before many groups.

Northrop's marching band, the Big Orange Pride, is ranked among the top ten in the state. The BOP also brought honor to Northrop by being invited to perform in the Orange Bowl Parade in 1984 and in the Rose Bowl Parade in 1988. Due to their outstanding performance in the Rose Bowl Parade, Fort Wayne's mayor, Paul Helmke, declared the week of January 3 as Big Orange Pride Week.

These aren't the only outstanding performing groups at Northrop. There are also the choirs, orchestra and jazz band. These groups also have been the source of great pride for Northrop High School.

All students at Northrop get a chance to show their talents at the annual all-school talent show, Etc. This show was open to all Bruins and gave them a chance to display otherwise unnoticed talents.

The performing arts department plays a vital role in helping NHS achieve their goal, their goal to be the best.

Hard Work and Talent

The BOP shows that it takes both to be successful

From their shaky start to powerful finish, Northrop's Big Orange Pride proved once again that hard work and talent is what it takes to be on top. This year's marching band had an abundance of both.

It all started as early as June. Summer Band I started on the 16th and lasted until July 2. This was the period during which basics were taught every day from 6 to 9 p.m. Then, in August, Summer Band II started and the intensity began with it. Two a' days, which are practices twice in one day, began and the band attended camp.

The week of August 16 through 22 was the hardest week of the entire year for over 150 Northrop students as the band travelled to Trafalgar, Indiana, the site of this year's band camp. "More work is done at

"The numerous practices were absolute murder but come Saturday it's all worth it." — Kevin Crabtree, junior camp then during the rest of the year," stated Mr. Barry Ashton, band director. A typical day starts at six a.m. and goes on into the night until finally perfection is achieved. Although that week was demanding both physically and mentally, it didn't go without reward. Bonds were formed within the band, bonds that were just as important as the day in day out repetitive practices that were required for the best possible product.

This year was an especially good one as the BOP placed high in all shows it completed in, defeating such power-horses as Carmel and taking the unforgettable trip to the Rose Bowl. Good playing, good marching, and a good personnel attributed to the bands success.

— Sean McGann

Lots of Fun Lots of Work

The marching band, most popularly known as the BOP, has had a fun and inspiring year. This year all of the band members had to each raise $700 for the trip to California to participate in the Tournament of Roses Parade. This was mainly done by a lot of fund-raising including the selling of cheese and sausage, candy, and candy bars.

"We had lots of fun," said band member Terri Langley.

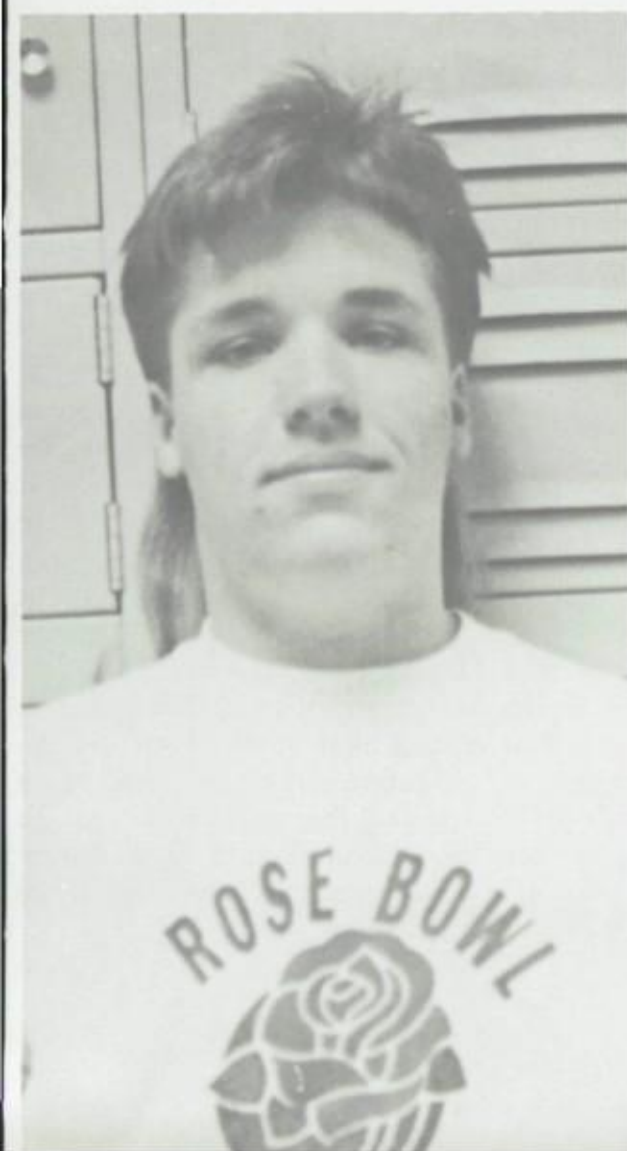

"One of the best things about band are the friendships you make." — Angie Parker, sophomore

They worked all year to give the performance of their life to show the people of California the Bruin Spirit of the Big Orange Pride.

The band placed fourth in the ISSMA contest in Indianapolis.

Marching band members Nick Dugan, Chris Ensley, and Stover Ingling summed up the year by saying, "It was long, fun, and an improvement from last year. This year will always be remembered by all the marching band members, all of the students, teachers, and parents who supported the BOP."

Parading Around

The BOP earns the honor of performing in the Rose Bowl Parade

Rose Bowl parade — more than just a march. What's better than going to Florida and marching in a major bowl game parade? Going to California and marching in an even bigger bowl game parade. On December 28, the Northrop Marching Band headed to Marina Del Ray, California, for a week of sightseeing and marching.

First on the agenda was Knott's Berry Farm followed by a trip to see the famous Spruce Goose and Queen Mary. As the week wore on, the marching band found themselves in, of all places, Disneyland. The show there was a short display of what was to come later in the week as band members were eager to explore the park or meet Micky, Goofy, or Donald Duck. "There was a general feeling of fun and excitement there," commented Angie Parker, "and the entire day was free." To finish the sights, a tour of Universal Studios was last. The band members received a behind-the-scenes look at the making of movies and up-close views of some of the most popular effects in movies today.

"Band is very time consuming but the reward is well worth it." — Dee-Dee Fischer, junior

With the California sights out of the way, it was time to do what the Northrop Band had come for — January 1 had arrived and the Rose Bowl Parade with it. A feeling of exhilaration and pride were felt by all that day. This rush of adrenaline could be detected in all BOP members as they performed on one of the best performances a Northrop Band ever has.

What Makes Them Do It?

In order to be the best a musician can, it takes practice, desire and dedication. But what keeps band members together and where does the band get this dedication?

"It's like it's one big family down there," stated Senior Kim Critchlow. However after more inquiries she admitted "when you're a senior you get authority and power."

Darren Hart's dedication comes from future hopes, "the fact that if I don't (do well), I won't go to North Texas State."

Winning competitions seems to be a large factor in keeping members dedicated. Danielle Juneau said, "I like winning." Andy Warren responded along the same line, "I like partying after we win."

"It was tough, but I'm glad that I stuck with it." — Sara Fisher, senior

Tim Cox's dedication comes from just pure enjoyment of his instrument. "The feeling I get from performing well" keeps him here.

Of course as with any other organization some people just seem there. "I don't know," responded Doug Harper when asked why he stays in band. Matt Ellenwood's favorite part of band is "dressing in front of girls on buses".

Versatile Student

Mary Satre is one of the most outstanding music students at Northrop. She is a member of several music groups which include; Swing Choir, Orchestra, Marching Band, Pep Band, Concert Band and Concert Choir. Mary was a member of the All City Honors Choir and was nominated for the Sterling Sentinal Award this year. This student was also a winner among those playing a percussion instrument in Band.

"I think choir takes a lot of work because you have to get your voice in shape, but it pays off in the end." — Colleen Freeland, freshman

Mary holds the ability to play three instruments which are the violin, mallets, and piano. She started singing and taking lessons at the age of six. Mary Satre has really gone far in her musical career. She sang and danced in the Pan-Am Games during the summer of 1987. Mr. Bill Heins said, "Mary Satre is one of our most versatile choir members. She is a fine singer who reads music very well. Her instrumental background in piano, violin, and mallet makes her a better singer too!"

Mary plans to attend Ball State University and work towards a major or minor in music. It's clear to see that she is one of the music department's finest.

Full Schedules

Choirs prove that hard work and effort pay off

The 1987-88 concert choirs were very busy in 87-88, with a full schedule of events. The choirs put a lot of hard work and effort in their time, which really paid off during performances.

All of the choir members showed how talented they were. "I think that the music we perform in Concert Choir is of high caliber and gives us a good musical background," said Senior Coleen Bush. On December 16, the choirs performed its 17th Annual Yuletide Choir Concert which included alumni from the last twenty years who participated in the finale, "Hallelujah Chorus". The concert also featured a candlelight opening incorporating all members of the choral department.

The rest of the year was also full of events including some vocal and piano soloists who participated in the ISSMA solo and ensemble contest at the district and state levels. The year was also highlighted with the fourteenth annual Northrop area choir festival at the beginning of the school year which also included all three of Northrop's feeder schools in November, and the FWCS choral festival which included all-city honors high school choir and combined high school choirs.

"One of the highlights of the year for all the choirs would have to be the finale of the yuletide concert with all of the choirs, concert orchestra, and alumni and faculty combined," said Mr. Bill Heins, choral director.

Choirs' Season Loaded

Festivals, concerts and visits to nursing home fill calendar

Mr. William Heins works very hard in the music department. His choir classes meet everyday during the school year. "Sometimes I think I must be crazy to continue in this hectic occupation, but when it comes down to it, I've been at it for twenty years, so I must love what I do," stated Heins.

Not including the normal everyday business, the choir department is also involved in fundraisers such as selling candy bars, cheese and sausage, then on top of it all, performing concerts.

In the spring, Charisma was loaded with festivals for the large ensembles, and made performance trips to Illinois, Greenwood, Indiana, and Bluffton, Indiana and presented thirty to thirty five local performances.

In March, the concert choir featured a concert with the Ball State University Chamber Singers.

All choirs participated in the ISSMA

Large Ensemble Contest in April.

The Advanced Treble Choir, Tenor/Bass and Treble Choirs performed at local nursing homes and school concerts.

"The students learn to work together in a disciplined effort to create something that an individual can't do by himself," said Heins.

"Being a part of concert choir means not only a letter in music but self achievement," said Melissa Wittwer.

Coleen Bush went on to add, "The music we sing is of high calibre and I feel that it is a good learning experience. Also, the friends made in choir are special because of the common love of music!"

High Expectations

This year's Concert Choir measured up to the high expectations of Northrop High School. The choir consisted of about 60 voices and was honored at the Embassy Theatre on March 21. Among the six other schools that participated in the musical program, Northrop's Concert Choir sang last and ended the program with dignity. As the Bruin's mighty voices sang in the huge Embassy auditorium, they sang to an audience of almost 1000 people. Due to their outstanding musical abilities the Concert Choir has been highly honored.

Talent show gives all students chance to show talents

Have you ever wanted to be a star? Well, some Northrop students got that small brush with fame that we all have dreamed of. These students were performers in Northrop's annual talent show, Etc. '88. The show, which greatly displayed Northrop talent, played February 17 and 18 in the auditorium.

Auditions were open to the entire student body, but most of the performers were in the music department. Many of the performers were in multiple acts, a further indication of the fine talent we have at Northrop. Performers were generally pleased with their show. Junior Cheryl Stone said, "there was a variety of acts and I thought all the music was very good."

Other artists were nervous about performing on the big stage. Senior Coleen Bush said, "I was really nervous, but I think I did really well."

Brad Wadkins, senior, said, "It was the most exasperating experience I've ever had."

Another good aspect of the program was the production staff, which was headed by Mr. Del Proctor, Mr. Bill Heins, and Mr. Neal Graham. The NMPA and the stagecraft and drama classes also helped out in producing Etc. '88.

Etc. '88 was a fine display of Northrop's students at their best. As Tricia Hart, an audience member, said, "It was great to see so much talent at Northrop."

Fighting to Survive

"It's very hard to keep a high school orchestra going. We're fighting to keep it here," said Mr. Dick Seeger, orchestra conductor.

The opportunity to graduate with an Honors Diploma is also affecting the orchestra's enrollment. Since orchestra is not on the list of required classes, many students feel that there is just not enough time in their schedule for it.

Although this year's orchestra is not the largest one Northrop has seen, it may be principle players include Sara Taylor, 2nd violinist, Nancy Zumwalt, viola, Emily Clausser, cello, and Brad Wadkins, string bass. There is a total of 54 musicians in the orchestra program, 38 of them strings.

Award Winning Violinist

For the past four years, Mark Robertson has been the concert master for the Northrop orchestra. A concert master is a violinist who leads the entire orchestra and sits in the first chair of the violin section.

"Since Mark has been here, all he's ever wanted to do is be in music for the rest of his life," commented Mr. Dick Seeger, orchestra conductor.

And by Mark's record, that's obvious. He has been a member of the Fort Wayne Philharmonic for the four years he's been at Northrop, and he's been a soloist at the Mark has also won some very honorable awards. He was the winner of the Stillman-Kelly Award sponsored in 1985 by the National Federation of Women's Clubs. He was also the local, state and regional winner in the young artists competition in 1987 and placed 2nd nationally, the youngest ever to even place.

What a Way to Wake Up

Bruin musicians enjoy Concert Band despite early hours

From the depths of H hall come the sounds of the concert band, practicing until perfect, so as not to be overshadowed by the marching band.

The concert band meets every day during first period, there are 112 members, mostly juniors and seniors, with a few sophomores scattered in.

Actually there are three bands; the concert band, composed of juniors and seniors; the varsity band, made up of sophomores; and the ninth grade band, made up of freshmen.

The band does not play just any music. "We're playing legitimate concert band music," stated Mr. Barry Ashton, director of the band. Some of the pieces being played were "Coat of Arms" and "Armanian Dances". Ashton feels that "Armanian Dances" sounds like a Greek dance. "I try to give them the most difficult music they can handle," Ashton replied about the difficulty of the music played.

The concert band doesn't perform during the marching band season, however it is still around only they usually practice marching music.

This year the agenda seemed to be fairly full. The band played three concerts: the orchestra concert in January; the band concert in March, and the fine arts concert in May. The band also visited many middle schools, and had a few surprises thrown in.

One of the surprises was a visit by Robert Jager in February. Jager is a professional in the music business and he stopped by to conduct "Variations on a Theme" just for the fun of it.

The concert band involved themselves in a major fund raiser during the year. The Easter chocolate sale, brought lots of The World's Finest Chocolate Bars into the school. Along with the one dollar chocolate bars the band also sold chocolate bunnies and chocolate covered almonds. The bars, which seemed to some a little expensive, were still big sellers.

To some people first period may seem a bit early to be musically creative, but many of the band members like the arrangement just fine. Junior Kevin Crabtree said, "It's an uplifting class, a positive way to wake up in the morning."

Twelve members of the concert band made it to the state competition this year. They were; Tom Cox, Jeff Cameron, Tim Cox, Kirk VanGilder, Jeremy Roth, Michelle Whitlock, Tina Graham, Maureen Pierson, Jessica Marquart, Andy Warren, Tim Cox, Stephany Nash, Matt Ellenwood, and Jeremy Roth. The members who went to state met a wide variety of musicians from all over.

Before Concert Band there's ninth grade and Varsity Band. Freshmen and Sophomores populate these beginning classes, where they learn the ropes of Northrop Band discipline and success.

The ninth grade band is precisely that. The 80 members play less difficult music and concentrate on mechanics. There were three concerts this year, and the band also competed in ISMAA competitions with the concert band being equivalent to a final exam.

This year's Varsity Band was predominantly sophomores. The music is more difficult, the shows more frequent and competitions judged stricter. The band performed a total of four shows this year and competed in the ISMAA competition.

"It's rewarding, said Angie Parker, you really become a better person."

Still, there are those who do it simply for the love of it. "I just enjoy the trumpet, the winning, and the people."

Outstanding

Bassist

"Brad is a real 'seat of the pants' bass player. He has been very dedicated to my band program — particularly the jazz element. My Jazz Band is better because Brad kicks us through the tunes." — Mr. Barry Ashton, band director

There are many outstanding musicians in Jazz Band I, but there is one in particular, who rises above the rest . . . Brad Wadkins, Jazz I's bass player.

Part of Wadkins' success is due to the wide variety of bands that he is involved in at Northrop. He has participated in orchestra, Musical Pit, Pep Band and Marching Band for four years, Concert Band and Jazz Band combo for three years and the Swing Choir Band and 9th Grade Band for one year.

He has won state-wide recognition for his bass playing in Jazz Band. In 1987 he had the honor of being the All State Jazz bassist and in that same year Wadkins won the Ball State Jazz Festival Outstanding Bass Soloist award which led to a music scholarship for a summer Jazz camp. In his senior year, Wadkins was selected to be the bassist in the Perry Meridian High School Festival All-Star Band.

Wadkins has been playing the bass since age 9. Wadkins commented, "Playing bass could get old and tiring I guess but when you win an award it just makes you want to play more." He plays both the string bass and the electric bass guitar.

A Classy Act

Improvisation may look easy . . . but these jazzy people practice a lot

Many of you may not realize the talent that exists in Jazz Band. To be in any Jazz Band, I, II, or III, a student had to audition quite a few times just to be considered. Then the student still had to audition even more to be placed in a Jazz Band. All this auditioning is started after the marching band season. Last year was unusual for Jazz Band because marching band season ran so late due to the Rose Bowl.

To be in Jazz Band I, it was important to have been in Marching Band, but not to be any certain grade level. Mr. Barry Ashton the director of Jazz Band I, said that the students were all good musicians with an excellent attitude about their music and their band. He picked hard music for the students and there were no arguments. "They would be disappointed if I picked music that was too easy," said Ashton.

"Jazz Band is one of the greatest aspects of my life. Jazz expression is an art form Mr. Ashton knows and teaches very well." — Tom Cox, senior

The bands practiced everyday after school from 3:00-4:30 p.m. All this practice paid off when they went to contests and festivals like ISSMA, Elmhurst Jazz Festival, Ball

State Jazz Festival, and the Perry Meridian Jazz Festival. They also did a concert for the Indiana School Board Meeting as well as area middle schools and even one for Northrop students.

Each level of Jazz Band gets harder. All groups do a lot of work on their own time. From this hard work the players scored high in almost all the contests and festivals. Mr. Richard Seeger, director of Jazz Band II, said he enjoyed directing very much because the kids did a lot of the work on their own which makes directing more interesting. If you ever think of auditioning remember: only 19 students make it Jazz Band I, 19 to Jazz Band II and no more than 35 to Jazz Band III.

CHARISMA:

Choreography and singing combine for unique show

Charisma n. 1. a personal appeal or power to fascinate and attract others; mysterious power of great personal magnetism or glamour.

"Charisma" is also the name of Northrop's show choir. A show choir combines singing and choreographed dancing to create a very unique performance.

This year's group consists of 32 singers, a nine piece band, and 13 crew members. "I have enjoyed the four years I have been able to participate in Charisma. To be in Charisma takes a lot of time, patience, dedication, and hard work," was Senior Dave Parker's first reply.

Mr. Bill Heins directed and did some of the choreography for Charisma. Cindy Shipley and Mike Weaver are the group's primary choreographers. All of these people are important. They all play a necessary role so that preparations and performances will go smoothly.

A member of Charisma crew, freshman Tony Bastian said, "Everyone puts their best into what they do. Being on crew doesn't make you any less important. A lot of the singers in Charisma started out in Charisma crew."

Unknown to many people, behind all the glamour of performance it's not as easy as it looks. "Charisma is not something you do in your spare time. It's a lot of hard work, but what you learn and the friendships you make are with you for a life time," said Jude Chevalier, junior.

Charisma practices everyday until the standard time of 4:15. However, rehearsals are often extended and sometimes the group has to come in on Saturdays to rehearse. Senior Nancee Meritts said, "Charisma is more than a group of people singing and dancing. It is many individuals working and learning as one. A group where everyone strives for the same goal: to be number one!"

Christmas time was a really busy time for everyone involved in Charisma. The group had performances during the week and on weekends. They performed at such places as the Scottish Rite Auditorium, the Grand Wayne Center, and Goeglein's Reception Hall.

Charisma competed in contests, also. For some contests are the highlights of the year, for others it can be very stressful. "I enjoy the contests and the trips. To me, they are the reward for all of our hard work," said Junior Duane Burris. In the fall they competed at the Bluffton Street Fair and in the Spring at Watseka, Illinois, Bishop Luers, and Centergrove, Indiana.

"Charisma is fairly young this year and will only lose six seniors. The group has a lot of potential and with maturity will be even stronger next year.

BYE BYE BIRDIE

"Bye Bye Birdie" spring musical big success at Northrop High

The Spring Musical of 1988 was a successful eye-catcher. Bright costumes of the '50's and colorful props added to the excitement, not to mention the talented individual performances.

"Bye, Bye Birdie" takes place during the Elvis Presley "era". Conrad Birdie is an Elvis look alike and many teenagers are crazed by his every move.

The plot focused on the hardships and enjoyment of being a teen, while turning the tables and explaining a parent's point of view of raising them.

Conrad Birdie is about to set his musical career aside for a while and involve himself in a military field. On the way to the academy he stops in a small town, Sweet Apple, Ohio. He stays with a family whose daughter is to receive his last kiss good-bye. At the same time Albert Peterson, Conrad's agent, has fallen in love with Rose Alvarez, his secretary. The conflicts of everyday life seem obvious and at the end many are resolved.

The 68 cast members performed wonderfully, while 52 orchestra members played music excellently and 45 production members constructed neat, colorful props and helped everything run smoothly.

Clubs are a way to get involved in extra-curricular activities at Northrop. Meeting new people and sharing ideas are all part of being a club member at NHS.

2:35. The bell rings. 2200 hysterical Bruins tear out of their last period classrooms in intense pursuit of their transportation home — all except for those dedicated few who belong to clubs.

Many students take an active part in Northrop's various clubs to be surrounded by friends and those who share a common interest. Some clubs carry an academic theme such as the Latin and Ecology Clubs while others contain a more serious message such as SADD (Students Against Driving Drunk) and FCA (Fellowship of Christian Athletes). Clubs are a vital part of Northrop's extra-curricular activities, providing fun and friendships but also a learning experience. Although becoming a vital member of a club takes valuable time and dedication, it is well worth the effort as you become involved with a group of fellow Bruins who share your same interests.

Northrop is full of interesting and meaningful clubs. Despite the various topics that Northrop clubs cover they all share a common purpose — to get involved and become a part of Northrop High School.

C omradery + Talent = Victory

Bruins do it better, but speakers do it orally!" This is the unofficial motto of this year's speech team. Just as their motto is unique, so are the 1988 Bruin Speakers. For one, there is their size. Says Coach Mr. Lincoln Record, "The team has a broader base with larger numbers. This year's team is the largest in Northrop High School's history."

Another factor that sets this team out is the sense of comradery felt amongst the members. President Teri Elliot says, "there is a closeness between the members that binds the team together. We have a lot of fun and are there for each other in and out of competition."

This atmosphere, combined with a very talented group of people, paved the way to Bruin victory. The team won a trophy at each meet this year with the exception of one. Some standout meets were placing first at Dekalb and second at Snider, very tough meets.

Another element that helped strengthen the team was its strong leadership. The officers were : Teri Elliot, president; Sandra Ray, vice-president; Angie Bolenbaugh, treasurer; Stacy Ferro, recording secretary; Keri Miser, corresponding secretary; Jon Sandmaier, historian.

A sense of comradery, talent, strong leadership, hard work, and a sense of humor have combined to form a unique and outstanding team.

Students help community

Student Council and FCA (fellowship of Christian athletes), are both important to a school such as ours. Each club has its own unique set up, but both are working towards the same goal . . . a better community.

Every year students elect a group of classmates to serve as officers on student council. These students work side by side with sponsor Mr. William Brown, and adviser Mrs. Susan Beerman, in a careful planning of yearly events.

This year the student council members planned many social events that made this year one of the best years ever at Northrop. These members were in charge of planning spirit weeks, homecoming, dances, and they were also in charge of getting classmates involved with reaching out to our community.

For the last ten years Northrop students have participated in the WOWO Penny Pitch. The annual kick off began with new and different incentives when faculty and administration promised to shave their hair, if a certain money goal was reached.

"FCA is a club that guides people spiritually through righteousness. It just gives you insight between wrong and right," explained Deborah VanDam when she was asked to explain what FCA was all about.

This year the group met every other Thursday at 7:30 a.m. The group meetings involved devotions and short Bible studies. Students were given the chance to discuss and express their own personal faith with each other.

L eadership and Talent

Afro American and Project L.E.A.D. are two clubs that give students a chance to express themselves and develop new ideas.

"Coming Down Hard in '88" was the theme for this year's Afro-American Club. The club is sponsored by Miss Reba Moseley and Mr. Fred Blanks, who work to help Northrop students become aware of their standing in our community.

The club was composed of nearly 60 people who met every Wednesday to discuss how to handle peer pressure and also to discuss new ideas for fund raisers.

The highlight of the Afro-American club's year was, by far, the talent show. This show was composed of singing, dancing, modeling and acting. It was performed in January and attracted a large number of Northrop students.

The Afro-American club couldn't have been what it was if it weren't for the officers who were elected. These officers planned many other events and listened carefully to new ideas from their peers.

"I think the Afro-American club is more than just a talent show, it is an organization functioning with the school body and in order to function it must make progress by making the people more active," commented Rodney Walker, senior.

Project L.E.A.D. (Leadership Experience And Development), was designed to give students an excellent chance to use their own talents and develop new leadership skills.

"There is no limit to what a person can do for our community," stated Sophomore Rosaline Young.

Although the attendance of Project Lead was down, compared to previous years, the accomplishments continued to grow.

Dr. Gussie Greene was the sponsor of this club and patiently worked with members planning events to reach out to the community even when only one member would bother showing up.

Nature

Most clubs at Northrop are academically oriented, that is a club associated with an offered course. The remaining clubs are extra-curricular. Such is the case with the Ski Club and Ecology Club, the only clubs at Northrop offering students the chance to get back to nature.

The Ski Club, sponsored by Mr. Frank Ebetino, had its best year ever this year. With a total membership of 104, Ebetino was very pleased with the club and said, "It's only going to get better." On the ski trips, like to Cannonsburg or Bittersweet, students pay for the bus, lift ticket, ski rental, and lessons. The executive officers deciding the trips were Jessica Harrison, Susan Hensler, Beth Richard, Dean Baughman, and Eric Saple.

The Ecology Club, sponsored by Mr. John McCorry, tries to balance its activities between environmental action, local field trips, speakers, and longer field trip experiences. The officers for 1987-88 were President, Abbie Decker; Vice-President, John Steinkamp; Secretary, Tami Clark; and Treasurer, Jennie Decker. The club took a major trip to Chicago in late December and less important trips to caves in Bedford and Bloomington, located in southern Indiana.

Many students enjoy the chance to "get away" on weekends. Senior Tami Clark, the club's secretary, said, "It's not just a club to learn about nature, it's a chance to get together with friends and have fun while learning." Clark also commented that many people think only the highly intellectual students join. "But that's not true at all!" she said.

Students Concerned with Peers

Campus Life and Students Against Driving Drunk (SADD) are organizations geared toward beliefs of individuals.

Campus Life's group leader Greg Crim, throughout the year, led many discussions concerning peer pressure, religious beliefs, drugs, popularity, and other assorted topics. The group took a trip over spring break to Florida and were active in events such as a people hunt.

SADD sponsored by Mrs. Susan Beerman, is a group that is aimed to make students aware of a serious problem, drunk driving. This year the group took part in Operation Prom/Graduation, made posters concerning this topic, and bought an ad from the Fort Wayne newspapers where students purchased a place for their name to be printed stating they had vowed not to drink and drive.

Although during the teenage years it is hard for many people to stand up for something they believe strongly about, both groups have made a comfortable and easy environment for students to share their feelings.

Recording Memorable Events

Deadlines and more deadlines — all a part of being a member of the Northrop High School yearbook and newspaper staffs. But all of the hard work and worry pays off as our school is provided with an accurate account of the past year's tragedies, victories achievements and failures.

The "What's Bruin?" staff, headed by editor-in-chief Mike Klopfenstein, published our school newspaper every two weeks. It was filled with the most recent happenings in the school, the latest sports stories, plus movie and concert reviews, editorials and usually something different like the always popular "swimsuit issue".

The Northrop High School yearbook, Bear Tracks, is always a book that students, especially seniors, can look back on and be proud of. Headed by co-editors Gina Snowberger and Jennifer Welsh, this year's book is no exception. The many precious memories of the 1987-88 school year are forever captured in this book.

S kills that last

Paragon, Quill and Scroll and audio visual club are all fun activities to be involved in, but also have many skills that can be used outside of school surroundings.

The Paragon is a literary magazine that took on its fourth year of success this year. There were four issues of the magazine published, which was compiled of articles such as poems, artwork, and really anything that was submitted to the journalism department.

The Paragon's purpose is to enhance and expose its readers as well as its staff to the workings of a literary magazine.

"Writing lets people express themselves and the Paragon allows them to share their feelings with other Northrop students," stated Michelle Kivi, co-editor of the magazine.

The International Honorary Society for High School Journalists, or better known as Quill and Scroll was started this year.

Officers were elected last September and meetings were scheduled monthly. Their purpose was to raise the standards of journalism at Northrop, thus improving all of its publications, such as "What Bruin?", the school newspaper, Paragon, and Bear Tracks. They promoted precise reporting of facts with non opinionated news present.

One activity that took place last May to recognize all of the outstanding students of the journalism department was the first annual Journalism Banquet sponsored by Quill and Scroll.

Along with the writing aspect of media, Northrop's audio visual department gives students a chance to work with the other; television and sounding.

This club, which is run by Mr. Richard Davis, reached new heights. Although it was not very publicized throughout the year, the work that was accomplished was impressive.

The advanced students worked on a sound show as a second semester project. This sound show was composed of two different parts; first the slides which make up the visual aspect, and secondly the sound that was dubbed in by the inventor.

At the end of the year each student presented his own show to other club members and also received grades for his work.

Because all of these clubs take talent, along with patience and eagerness to learn, these students will carry these skill with them for the rest of their lives

Fun

Foreign language is taken by almost all students who plan on going to college. However, some students who are really interested also participate in the club for their particular language. Here at Northrop we have the German club and the Junior Classical League.

Miss Jessica Glendenning started the German Club last year and so far it has been pretty successful. This year the club had about 15 active members, they met about twice a month.

In the spring the group had a chance to show off their speaking abilities. They competed in the state convention in Indianapolis and at the I.U.P.U. foreign language day. They competed in recitations, drama, and grammar.

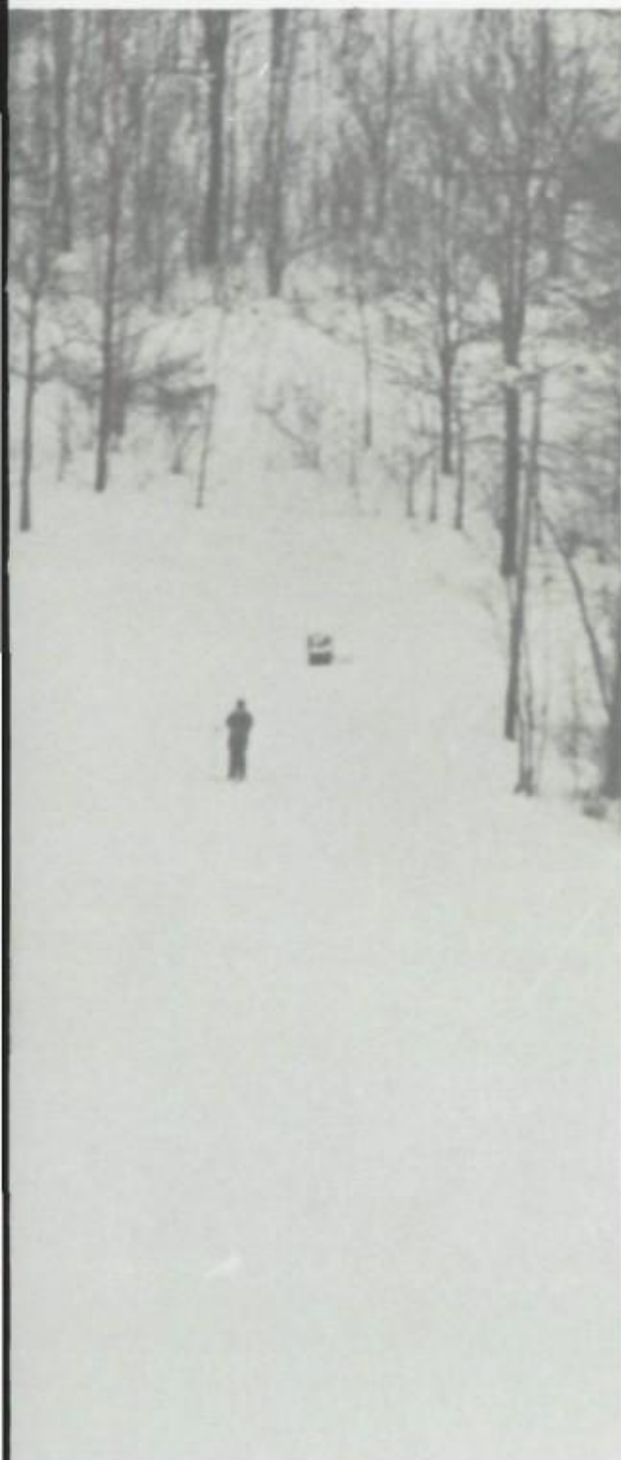

The group also did fun things just for socialization. They had a Christmas party after which they went caroling and sang a German carol. The club also went skiing at Swiss Valley on February 7 and had a German Banquet at the end of the year.

The Junior Classical League was led by Mr. Daniel Tannas, Latin teacher. There were about 22 members and Mr. Tannas expected the group to increase in size. Latin is said to be a "dead" language, it is no longer used for communication but it is very useful. Sixty to seventy percent of the English language is based on Latin and it also offers a good background for studies of other languages.

Like the German Club, the Junior Classical League also went to contest. In February they competed in a nation-wide contest in which they were questioned on culture, history, and grammar. Contests gave students a chance to compete but it also gives students a chance to meet others with similar interests.

Spirited

"It has been a really challenging year for the cheerleaders because the entire cheering had to be changed due to new guidelines established by F.W.C.S. No pyramids were permitted or stands above waste high, also many partner stunts were ruled out due to safety factors," commented Mrs. Carol Freck; cheerleading sponsor.

In July of 1987 the varsity and junior varsity squads attended a National Cheerleading camp at Purdue University and won several awards such as best squad and most spirited.

The reserve squad also attended a cheerleading camp at I.P.F.W. They learned basic cheerleading techniques and also received awards for best squad. After spending most of the summer practicing, these girls participated in a competition at the State Fair in Indianapolis.

The requirements of being a cheerleader are as follows; every cheerleader must attend all of the varsity and reserve football games, all of the boys and girls basketball games, and at least three games of all the other sports. They make spirited posters to hang up throughout the school and provide a breakfast for each varsity member of all sports during their season. They also lead pep sessions and decorate varsity players' houses during homecoming week.

By the time the school year comes to an end, the Northrop cheerleaders are planning for a successful Bruin cheerleading camp in July. This camp is designed for girls of various ages who are interested in becoming a cheerleader.

Because these girls spend so much time involving themselves in spirited leadership, few had time for other things such as jobs or outside sports, but all would agree the fun of it all is all worth it.

Dancers travel to Cal.

It's been a good year for Northrop's Lady Bruinettes. During 1987-88 the Pom-pom squad received many individual and group awards in a group size of approximately 300 dancers. Through the 1987-88 marching season, the corp was involved with many competitions with the marching band. The Bruinettes, along with the marching band traveled to Pasadena, California to march with pride in the Rose Bowl Parade during Christmas vacation. Last summer the Pom-pom squad also attended the Superstar Drill Team Camp at Indiana University.

The Pom-pom squad puts a lot of effort and time towards their performances during marching band and basketball seasons. They perform at all home basketball games, and attempt to have two different routines for each game. This year they were invited to perform with the Bishop Dwenger dancers.

For the girls the hardest part of their responsibilities seemed to be the long practices. "Practicing for such long hours in the heat and in the cold," said Holly Mason, was the hardest thing for me.

The Bruinettes are sponsored by Nancy Schmieman. She advises and disciplines them and helps the girls build confidence. There are 27 members on the Bruinette squad. Angie Firestine was last year's captain, along with co-captains Lavone Starewich and Jennifer Suter.

Even with all of the work the girls were able to have much fun. The favorite part of the year was "all of the fun i had and I all the friends I met," said Sarah Berger.

Thrill of the sport

Success was the word for this year's athletic clubs. The hockey team continued its winning tradition while the newly formed volleyball team established itself and a solid reputation. Without school funding it's difficult to keep an athletic club which competes with other schools organized but the determination of the athletes and thrill of the sport makes it work for these students.

Northrop's hockey team stunned the area with their high-scoring hard-hitting style of plays. The team went 15-6 with an upset victory over Snider during the city tournament — an upset that many considered the highlight of the year. The team centered around the polished play of Seniors Jeff Barton, Dave Hasting, Dave Orn and captain Bob Krosky. With unpredictable and spontaneous reactions from fans the team couldn't help playing harder. The team played at McMillan Ice Arena every Tuesday night. What made them contribute so much time and effort to a non-recognized sport? "The love for game," stated Dave Orn, "and the physical aspect."

The new volleyball club was equally successful in their first year. Dan Zollars and a group of students approached Mrs. Coats with the idea of an organization for boys volleyball. "Dan's really helped me in the past", commented Coats. "He and the rest of the guys really wanted to do it, so I decided to sponsor it."

The self-sufficient club meets every Tuesday through Friday at 7:00 a.m. and consists of approximately twenty-five members. The club competed at the North Side and IPFW tournaments and the White River Games in the summer. Led by Junior Dan Zollars and Seniors Brian Bolinger and Marc Malone the volleyball club paved its way as a high-standard setting team.

O n the Job

DECA and COE are business classes at Northrop that prepare students to be the best business oriented people. Through classroom instruction and on-the-job learning experiences students of these classes are off to good starts in their business careers.

DECA (Distributive Education Clubs of America) prepares students for careers in marketing, management, and entrepreneurship. DECA is a marketing education class that consists of classroom instruction, on-the-job training and the club part of the program.

Senior students of DECA are involved in on-the-job training so that they can learn about marketing through their work experience they are required to work a minimum of fifteen hours a week. Miss Jennifer Titzer, the DECA teacher coordinator helps the students to find jobs.

COE (Cooperative Office Education) prepares students, for office related careers. It consists of classroom instruction and on-the-job training. Each experience contributes to both the students' education and employability.

Students of COE possess such skills which include typing, filing, transcribing, word processing, and other business related skills. Some businesses which have participated in COE are Lincoln National Corporation, Summit Bank, Central Soya, and Magnavox.

The DECA members who went to state were: Dan Merchant, Jason Barnhart, James Bradford, Tom Esterline, Chris Turner, Misa Kelsaw, Penny Neel, Chris Fyock, Duane Birch, Elise Goodman, and Laura Clem.

Team Work

For a few years now some sports have been considered a club. Girls soccer and boys soccer are examples of sports related clubs.

The girls soccer team had a lot of talent this year, but they did not do as well as they had hoped. "I think we have a lot of talent on the team and we could do better than what we have," said Kelly Ferro.

The team had impressive wins against North Side, Bishop Luers, and Snider but unfortunately lost to Homestead and Bishop Dwenger.

Brian Roth commented, "I feel that we are finally playing as a threatening team instead of individuals."

The love for their sport has led many students into these two clubs and these clubs have taught more than just skills of the game. Molly Spake explains, "playing on the team has taught me to have a positive attitude about everything. It has also taught me that winning isn't everything, although it is fun."

Sacrifice and Dedication

The Mat Maids and Bat Girls are groups of dedicated, spirited, female students who spend their time giving their support to the wrestling and baseball teams.

Mat Maids spent time making the team "pep posters" and worked at the concession stand at home meets. Some girls managed the score keeping book, while others passed out oranges at the end of each game.

As Marie Papai explains how their responsibilities were more than just that. "Seeing how I yell loud, I tried to use my support to boost their spirits, not to mention I was willing to run errands for the team to try and make everything run as smoothly as possible."

The Bat Girls spent most of their time encouraging the baseball players.

"When I was a freshman I became a Bat Girl. I love the sport and wanted to promote the Bruin Baseball spirit. I had fun and stuck with it," commented Dee Dee Holtzberg.

The Bat Girls had various jobs, as did the Mat Maids.

Score keeping, and offensive charts were recorded by Bat Girls and they sold "goodies" at the concession stand.

Both the Mat Maids and Bat Girls are successful organizations which give athletic teams the added ambition to take things to the top!

Special Bonds

As the corner introduced a crowded, colorful, never-ending street, every member of the Big Orange Pride scanned the surroundings in awe, their eyes wide with excitement. The 1988 Tournament of Roses Parade had begun; rewarding all of its participants with an experience of a lifetime. Nothing can compare with the feeling of pride that swells within as the eyes of millions of people look upon you.

An honor as great as this, however, is not easily achieved, and the work involved to produce a good show has its share of ups and downs. No one knows this better than the members of the Flag and Rifle corps.

These young ladies spent countless hours under the vigorous direction of meticulous color guard instructors, perfecting routines to their satisfaction. Numerous moves are pieced together to capture the feeling of the music and create a colorful flowing effect.

After months of endless sacrifices, putting both time and dedication above and beyond the call of duty, a special bond is formed between these girls. They share the joy and happiness of victory as well as the tears and pain of defeat. It is a growing experience in which they learn to move with poise and pride, with their heads held high, no matter what happens. Winning is not everything to these girls; it is the personal satisfaction and sense of accomplishment they feel when they know they've done their best. As a part of one of these groups, one learns to work together with others in order to achieve a common goal. These young ladies gain respect for themselves and their organization, whatever the outcome, learning to win with grace and lose with dignity.

C ompetition

Everyone trying to be the best they can be

Competition — all students face it. Competing for grades, competing for a position on a team, a part in a play, friends, the list goes on and on. The same thing goes for a community and the business in it.

A community must compete with other communities in order to offer its citizens something to make them live here rather than somewhere else.

They must also compete for new business. We all saw this become reality in the fight for the General Motors plant that was built a few years ago.

The American system of business, the free enterprise system, could not exist if it weren't for competition.

Businesses must compete against each other for customers in order to keep their business alive. This means they must have the best products at the lowest prices and run their business in the most efficient manner possible. This all must be done to have a successful business.

All of this competition does not stop at the business world though. Every person in our society would like to be successful. In order to achieve this goal they must compete against every other person who also wants to achieve success.

So you see whether it's a student, a community, a business, or just someone in the rat race, they're all out for the same thing — to be the best in the business.

— Gina Snowberger

Successful Pitch

For the 12th year in a row, Northrop involved itself in WOWO's Penny Pitch, and once again an enormous sum was raised. A total of $8,889.88 was collected this year, beating last year's total by $1.

The money the school raised may seem large, but many various money-making methods were used.

The biggest money maker was the Penny Pitch drawing. Students and faculty sold tickets to be entered in the drawing for $1. Several prizes were given including a four-day trip to the Bahamas and a large color TV. Ticket sellers who sold over $200 worth also received televisions.

Another big money maker was the pie-in-the-face contest. Students gave money in the names of four teachers, and the one who collected the most received a face full of pastry. Physics teacher Mike Cheviron won this year's dubious honor.

One goal that wasn't met, but surely helped to draw cash, was the "hair loss" fundraiser, with a projected goal of $12,000. Had the school reached that amount, 23 faculty members would have had to cut their hair. However, because of the valient effort the school put forth, Principal H. Doug Williams and Dean of Boys John Weicker decided to get their heads shaved.

On Friday, Dec. 18, Assistant Principal Bill Brown said it was a "great day to be a Bruin" as he announced the grand total over WOWO's airwaves.

Once again, Northrop students and faculty proved they were willing to give to provide an added touch of Christmas cheer to Fort Wayne's needy.

— Mike Klopfenstein

 The good news/
 bad news grade.
 The good news
 is, you didn't flunk. The bad news is, you feel like you did.

Troy Engleman was diagnosed with leukemia about one year ago. He began treatments at Riley Children's Hospital, but as his condition worsened, he was transferred to a medical center in Iowa.

Although I only had Troy in one of my classes last year, I quickly became attached to his friendly smile, his quick mind, and his lively sense of humor. I feel bad that I never had the opportunity to get to know Troy as well as I would have liked to. However, I feel lucky to have known him at all — even for that short time — because he truly was a person to look up to and admire, and I know we will all miss him.

The English squad of the Academic Super Bowl Team was first in Northeast Indiana but was not invited to compete at the state competition.

The English squad consisted of Lisa Stewart, Team Captain; Liz Wyatt and Lara Wegner. There were ten team members that were prepared to compete. There are five other squads on the team. They are Science, Social Studies, Math, Fine Arts, and All-Round.

The trick to this is to be prepared. The I.S.E. chooses a topic, this year's was Indiana. The idea is to learn all you can about the topic that pertains to your squad. Then when you go to competition you are asked questions about the topic that deals with your squad. It's much like a game show.

The way to get to state is to have the most points out of all other teams. The problem was that the team only had one after school practice meet with area schools, therefore they had very few points going into the regional meet. They placed first in the regional meet but were not asked to compete at the next level due to their low points.

"I was really happy that we won at regionals and was looking forward to participating at the state competition. Unfortunately, we were not chosen to compete at state because it is based on points and not on whether you won first place at regionals. I was upset and disappointed because we had worked hard. It was unfair especially to Lisa Stewart and me who are seniors but hopefully next year the rules will be changed. The Academic Super Bowl competitions are definitely worth the time and effort," commented Lara Wegner.

Study:
 Those precious moments between soap operas, movies, sports, video games, food, personal grooming, and general lolly-gagging when one opens one's school books . . . and falls asleep.

The school year of 1987-88 was the year the senior class chose to make their best, most successful year. We excelled in virtually everything we attempted, with never a doubt that we wouldn't be anything short of outstanding. We, the editors, hope we have accurately conveyed, through this yearbook, the emotions and memorable events of this school year. We wish to thank our class, the senior class of 1988, for creating a year to remember, a year to be proud of, a year that will be forever contained in this, our yearbook.

A special thanks to Watters Studio and Mr. Steve Steiner for their contributed photographs and to all first year journalism classes for their contributions.

The 1988 edition of Northrop Bear Tracks was under the direction of Wendy Kruger. The book was printed by Jostens' American Yearbook Company in Clarksville, Tennessee. Body copy and picture captions are all printed in Korinna type. All body copy is in 10 points and captions are in 8 point. There were 1750 copies printed with 272 pages. Photography was done by student photographers along with Watters Studio and Mr. Steve Steiner. A special thanks goes out to Mr. Mark Childs for all his creative ideas and encouragement.

Looking back with pride

Another year has come and gone. Grades have been calculated, the cheering has stopped, relationships have ended. The end of the school year is always a time of mixed emotions — wanting it to end, yet wondering what the future will hold outside the secure halls of Northrop High School. The end of a school year is always a time for remembering past moments — those of pride, those of disappointment.

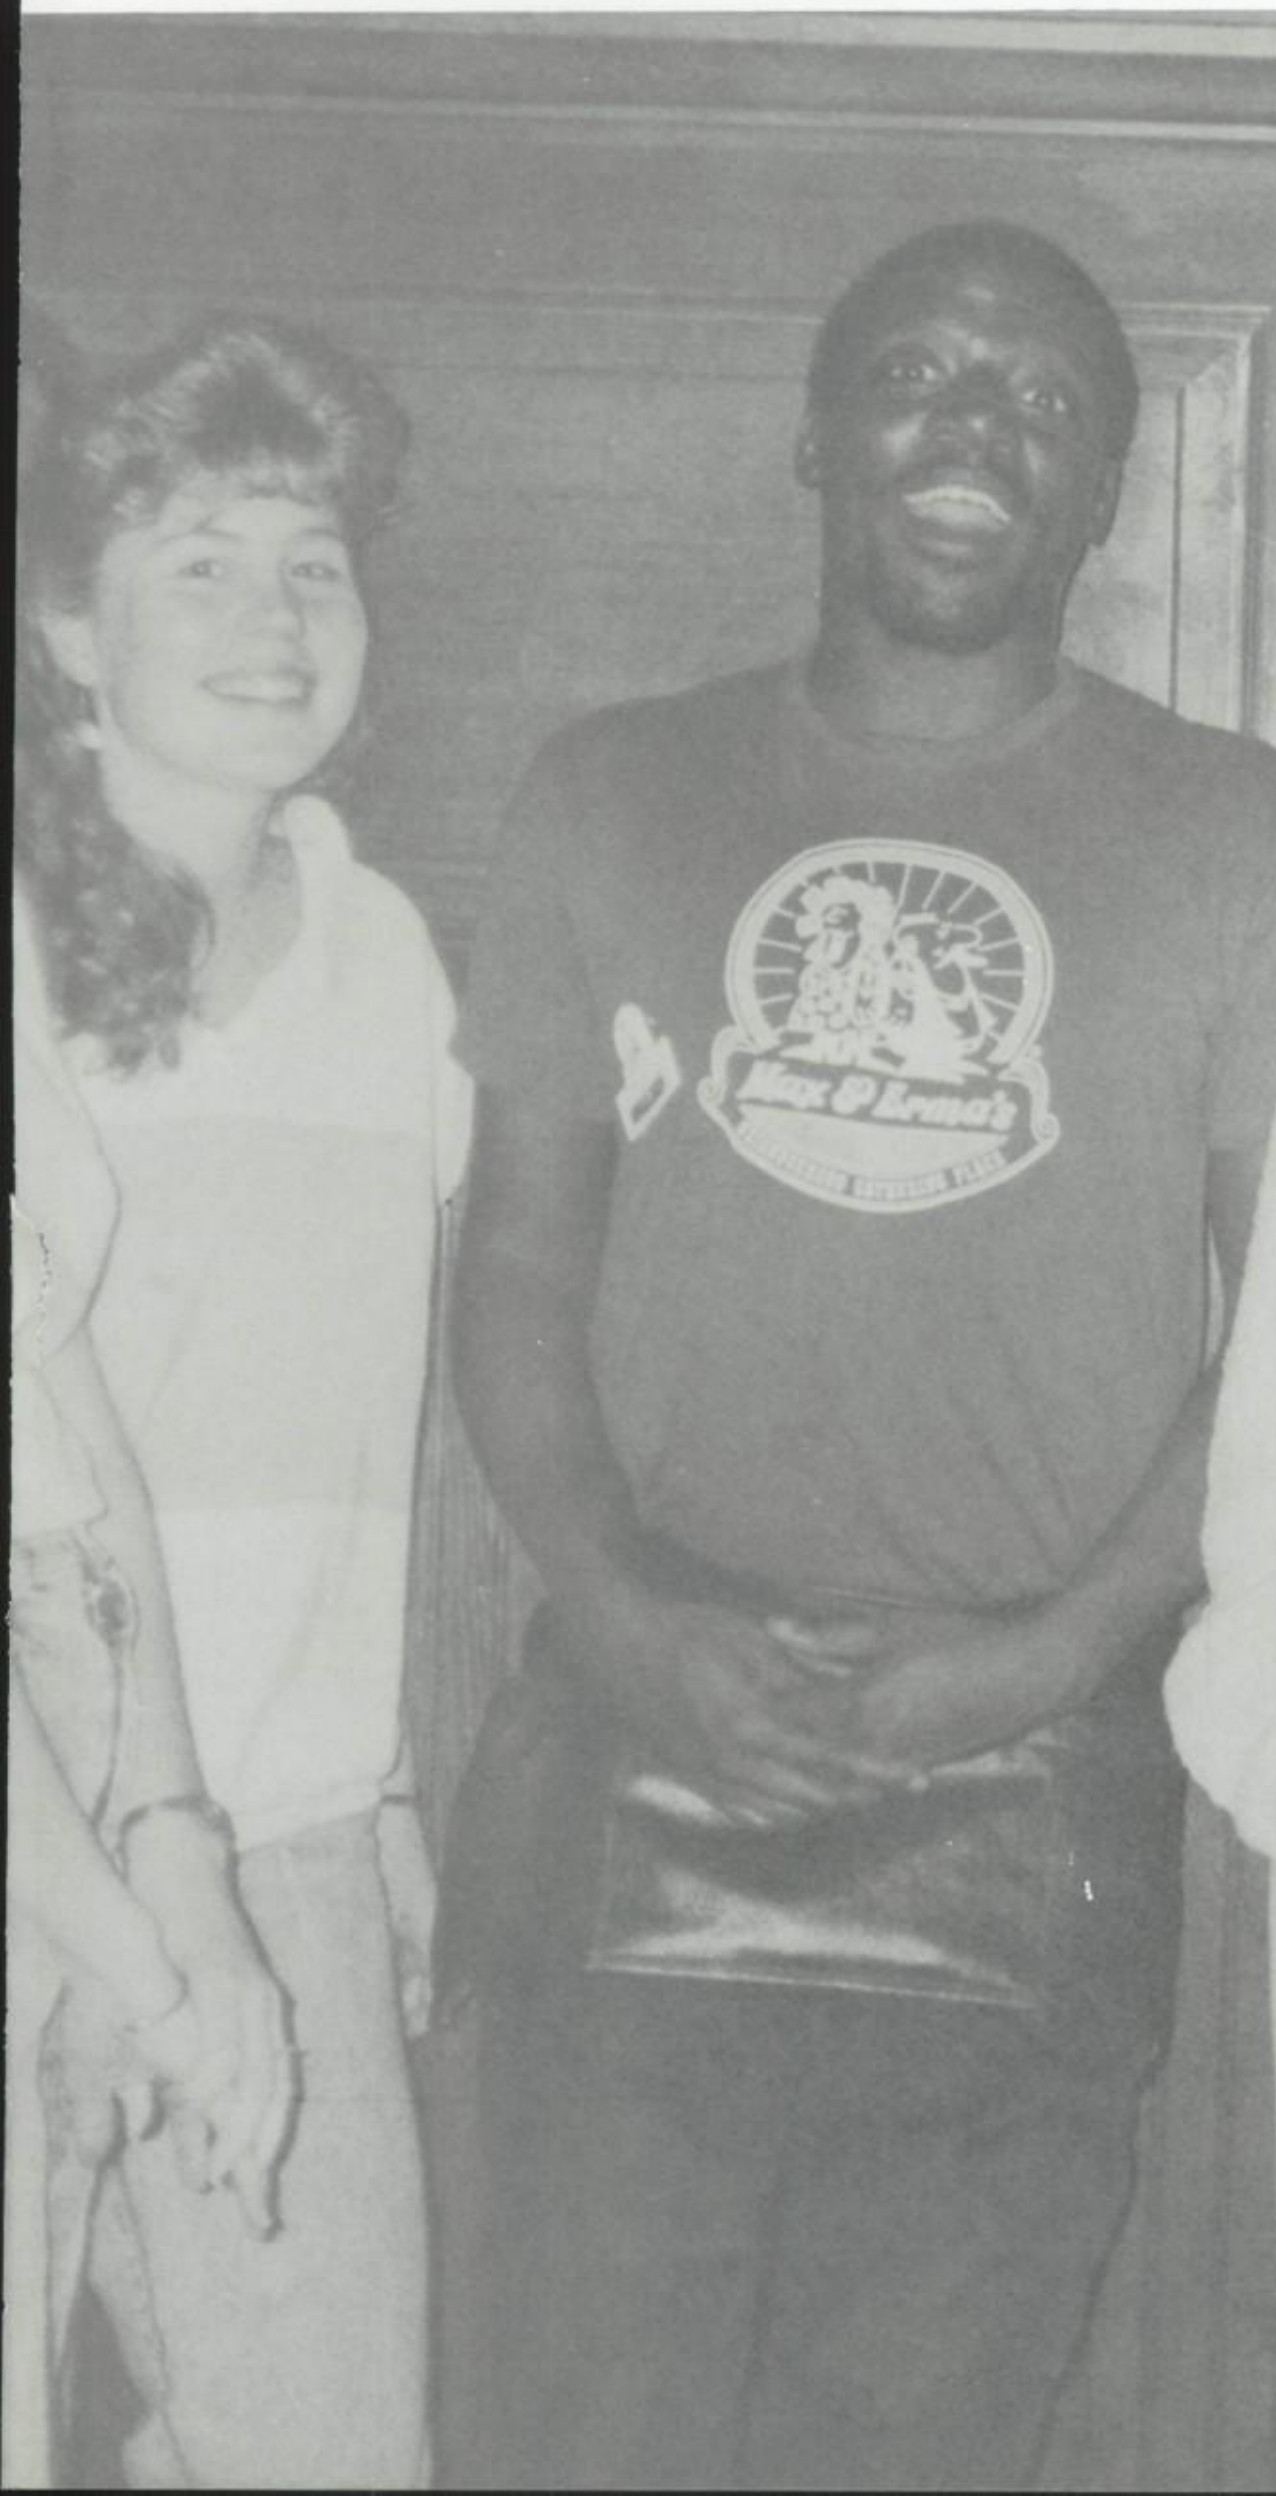

We started with the endless registration line in August, reacquainted ourselves with old friends, displayed our tans, shared summer stories. Then came the first day of school with confusing class schedules, wondering if summer would ever come again. Homecoming, and all the once hidden school spirit emerged in a frenzy of orange garbage bags, supporting our victorious football team, as well as powder-puff. Hoosier Hysteria was alive and well at Northrop as we got behind our successful basketball teams in seas of orange and occasional displays of toilet paper throwing (much to the dismay of Dr. Williams). And of course we came through again with a record amount of money for Penny Pitch, rewarded by the shaved heads of our principal and dean of boys, John Weicker. Then the return from Christmas vacation with a new year (and only five more months!) awaiting us along with our share of edible(?) lunches and those always exciting "organizational homeroom" meetings. Spring Break fever hit as most of us escaped from Fort Wayne for a memorable week of sun and fun only to return to Northrop for the final home stretch of the 1987-88 school year. The excitement of the prom along with the many end-of-the-year banquets and award programs seemed to make the time pass quickly as graduation suddenly appeared and the Class of '88 celebrated together, with diplomas in hand, as one student body.

It was quite a year, quite a successful year. One to look back upon, one to be proud of. We will never forget the friendships made, the lessons learned, and the times shared because these were our times — and they were the best.
